Relevant records in this system of records may be referred to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation or potential violation of law or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statue, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto.

A record from this system may be disclosed to other Federal agencies for the purpose of conducting national intelligence and security investigations.

Information contained in this system of records may be disclosed to other Federal agencies in connection with refugee assistance programs.

Records may be disclosed to one or more private firms for the purpose of entering data, sorting, analyzing, coding, microfilming, or otherwise refining records in the system. Such firms will be required to maintain Privacy Act safeguards with respect to such records.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of, and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Original input Forms I-53, Alien Address Report Card, are stored in boxes in INS-controlled areas that are locked when not supervised by INS employees. when entered into the system, the cards are serially numbered and microfilmed. Information for preparation of the microfiche index and reports is coded and stored on computer-readable magnetic tape.

Retrievability:

Records in the system are indexed and retrievable by name of the individual.

Safeguards:

Records are safeguarded in accordance with Department of Justice rules and procedures. INS offices are located in building, under security guard, and access to premises is by official identification. Access to automated systems is controlled by restricted passwords for use of remote terminals in secured areas.

Retention and disposal:

Original input forms are destroyed in accordance with procedures approved by NARA after microfilming and computer data entry is completed, verified, and accepted, or three years after the year of receipt, whichever is earlier. Copies of the index and reports for each year are kept for three years by INS.

System manager(s) and address:

Associate Commissioner, Information Systems, INS, Central Office, 425 I Street, NW., Washington, DC 20536.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager. To enable INS to identify whether the system contains a record relating to an individual, the requester must provide the individual's full name, date of birth, and place of birth; and, if known, the alien registration number.

Record access procedures:

A person desiring access to a record shall submit his request in writing to the agency official designated under "Notification procedure" above. He must also identify the record by furnishing the information listed under that procedure. If a request to access a record is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly-marked "Privacy Act Request," and a return address must be provided for transmitting any information to him.

Contesting record procedures:

A person desiring to contest a record shall submit a request in writing to the agency official designated under "Notification procedure" above. The requestor must also identify the record by furnishing the information listed under that caption and clearly state which record(s) is being contested, the reason(s) for contesting, and the proposed amendment(s) to the record(s). If a request to contest a record is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "Privacy Act Request," and a return address must be provided for transmitting any information.

Record source categories:

Information in the system is obtained from requests and petitions filed by the petitioners: public and private adoption agencies and social workers; and Federal, State local and foreign government agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

This system is exempt from subsection (d) of the Privacy Act. This exemption applies to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). Regulations have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/INS-007

System name:

Orphan Petitioner Index and Files.

System location:

District offices and suboffices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in the United States and foreign countries, as detailed in JUSTICE/INS-999.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who are prospective petitioners or who have filed a petition to classify an alien orphan as an immediate relative under the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended.

Categories of records in the system:

A. Index. The system contains Forms G-601, Adjudications Control Cards, to aid in the administrative control of the processing of cases within each office where a part of this system is located. B. Files. The system also contains Forms I-600. Petition to Classify Orphan As An Immediate Relative, filed for advance processing of orphan petitions by prospective adoptive parents; documentation of prospective adoptive parents' United States citizenship and marital status; agency responses indicating whether prospective adoptive parents have any arrest records; and home studies which include statements of financial ability and other elements that relate to the ability of the prospective parents to provide proper care to beneficiary orphans.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Section 101, 103, and 204 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended (8 U.S.C 1101, 1103, and 1154).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information in the system will be used by employees of the Immigration and Naturalization Service to determine the status of pending requests or petitions, to locate related files and other records promptly, and to determine the suitability of prospective petitioners as adoptive parents. Information regarding the status and progress of cases and the suitability of prospective petitioners as adoptive parents may be disseminated to other components of the Department of Justice, Members of Congress, and the President.

Relevant information from this system may be referred to the Department of State in the processing of petitions or issuance of visas for benefits under the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended.

Information from this system may be referred to officials of other Federal, state, and local government agencies and adoption agencies and social workers to elicit information required for making a final determination of the petitioner's ability to care for a beneficiary orphan.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the records.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are maintained on Forms G-601, Adjudications Control Cards, and as paper records in file folders.

Retrievability:

Records are retrieved by the name of the petitioner.

Safeguards:

This system of records is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Department of Justice and INS rules and procedures. The records are maintained in file cabinets in areas restricted to access by INS employees, and access to the premises is by official identification.

Retention and disposal:

When an orphan petition is filed, records from the advance processing file folders are merged into the case file relating to the beneficiary orphan. See JUSTICE/INS-001, the Immigration and Naturalization Service Index System. Subsystem E, centralized index and records (Master Index).

If no petition is filed within one year of completion of all advance processing, the records are returned to the petitioner or the responsible state or licensed agency. Materials not returned to the petitioner or responsible state or licensed agency will be destroyed.

The Forms G—601, Adjudications Control Cards, may be retained for three years following the year in which they were created.

System manager(s) and address:

Associate Commissioner, Examinations, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 I Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20536; and District Director or Officer in Charge of each INS office where a part of this system is located.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the District Director or Officer in Charge of the INS office where the file is located. If the file location is not known, inquiries may be addressed to the Associate Commissioner, Examinations, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 I Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20536. To enable INS to identify whether the system contains a record relating to an individual, the requester must provide the individual's full name, date of birth, place of birth, and a description of the subject matter.

Record access procedures:

A person desiring access to a record shall submit a request in writing to the agency official designated under "Notification procedure" above. The requester must also identify the record by furnishing the information listed under that caption. If a request to access a record is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "Privacy Act Request," and a return address must be provided for transmitting any information.

Contesting record procedures:

A person desiring to contest a record shall submit a request in writing to the agency official designated under "Notification procedure" above. The requester must also identify the record by furnishing the information listed under that caption and clearly state which record(s) is being contested, the reason(s) for contesting, and the proposed amendment(s) to the record(s). If a request to contest a record is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "Privacy Act Request," and a return address must be provided for transmitting any information.

Record source categories:

Information in the system is obtained from requests and petitions filed by the petitioners; public and private adoption agencies and social workers; and Federal, State, local and foreign government agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

This system is exempt from subsection (d) of the Privacy Act. This exemption applies to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). Regulations have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/INS-008

System name:

Bond Accounting and Control System (BACS).

System location:

Immigration and Naturalization Service regional offices: (1) Burlington, Vermont; (2) Fort Snelling, Twin Cities, Minnesota; (3) Dallas, Texas; and (4) San Pedro, California. Addresses of offices are listed in JUSTICE/INS-999 as published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, or in the telephone directories of the respective cities listed above under the heading "United States Government, Immigration and Naturalization Service."

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who have posted a bond with INS and the beneficiaries of posted bonds.

Categories of records in the system:

Information which allows identification of active bonds posted with INS such as: bond number, obligor's name and address, alien beneficiary's name and alien file number, type of bond, location and date bond was posted, and other data related to bonds.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Section 103 (8 U.S.C. 1103) in implementing the authorities set forth in Section 213 (8 U.S.C. 1183) and Section 293 (8 U.S.C. 1363) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information in this system will be used by employees of INS to control and account for collateral received to support an immigration bond. The system will allow prompt location of related files and other records and will enable INS to make timely responses to inquiries about these records.

The information in the system can be used to generate various documents (such as voucher disbursements) required for normal accounting procedures and to generate statistical and historical reports pertaining to immigration bonds posted, cancelled or breached.

Release of information may be made to other Federal, state, or local law enforcement agencies for investigative purposes or collection of breached bonds.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in a system of records maintained by the Department of Justice required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a member of Congress or staff upon the member's behalf when the member or staff acting requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information is stored on magnetic disks.

Retrievability:

Records may be retrieved by any of the following: Alien's name, alien's file number, obligor's name, bond-receipt control number, breach control number, or location and date bond was posted.

Safeguards:

Records are safeguarded in accordance with Department of Justice rules and procedures. INS offices are located in buildings under security guard, and access to premises is by official identification. All records are stored in spaces which are locked outside of normal office hours. Access to this automated system is obtained through remote terminals which are located in secured areas and require the use of restricted passwords.

Retention and disposal:

Records are deleted from magnetic disks one year (or earlier) after the bond is disbursed and the file closed.

System manager(s) and address:

The Associate Regional Commissioner, management, at the regional office having jurisdiction over the area in which the beneficiary alien resides. See the caption "System locations."

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager.

Record access procedures:

In all cases, requests for access to a record shall be in writing. Written requests may be submitted by mail or in person at an INS office. If a request for access is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." To identify a record relating to an individual, a requester should provide: The individual's full name, alien file number, and location and date bond was posted. The requester shall provide a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Any individual desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct his request to the regional INS office in which he believes the record concerning him may exist. The request should state clearly what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

Information contained in this system or records is supplied on INS forms by individuals who have posted a bond with the INS and by the beneficiaries of posted bonds.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/INS-009

System name:

Alien Status Verification Index.

System location:

Central, Regional, Distict, and other files control offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in the United States as detailed in JUSTICE/INS-999. Remote access terminals will also be located in state employment security offices (SESA's) and other Federal, State, and local agencies nationwide.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals covered by provisions of the immigration and nationality laws of the United States.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of an index of aliens and other persons on whom INS has a record as an applicant, petitioner, beneficiary, or possible violator of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Records are limited to index and file locator data including name, alien registration number (or "A-file" number), date and place of birth, social security account number, date and port of entry, coded status transaction data, immigration status classification, and office location of related records files.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Section 290, of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended (8 U.S.C. 1360).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

This system of records is used to verify an alien's status or to locate the INS file control office for the alien file of a particular individual.

A. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a Federal, State, or local government agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

B. A record from this system may be disclosed to other Federal, State, or local government agencies for the purpose of verifying information in conjunction with the conduct of a national intelligence and security investigation, or for criminal or civil law enforcement purposes.

Release of information to the news media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available for systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress:

Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member of staff request the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are stored on magnetic disk and tape.

Retrievability:

Records are indexed and retrievable by name and date and place of birth, or by name and social security account number, by name and A-file number.

Safeguards:

Records are safeguarded in accordance with Department of Justice rules and procedures. Access is controlled by restricted password for use of remote terminals in secured areas.

Retention and disposal:

Centralized index records stored on magnetic disk and tape are updated periodically and maintained for the life of the related record.

System manager(s) and address:

The Associate Commissioner, Information Systems, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Central Office, 425 I Street NW., Washington, D.C., is the sole manager of the system.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager listed above.

Record access procedures:

In all cases, requests for access to a record from this system shall be in writing, if a request for access is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." The requester shall include the name, date and place of birth of the person whose record is sought and, if known, the alien file number. The requester shall also provide a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Any individual desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct his request to the System Manager or to the INS office that maintains the file. The request should state clearly what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

Basic information contained in this system is taken from Department of State and INS applications and reports on the individual.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/INS-010

System name:

Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) Case Tracking and Reporting System.

System location:

Central, Regional, District, and other Files Control Offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in the United States as detailed in JUSTICE/INS-999.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals making requests, individuals designated to receive responses, and individuals whose records are requested by others under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act and/or Privacy Act.

Categories of records in the system:

Information extracted from FOIA/PA requests and the documentation provided by INS personnel of actions taken on the requests. The data base consists of data such as the names of requesters, record subjects, or persons designated to receive responses to requests; mailing addresses to send responses; date of receipt of requests; assigned request control numbers; date responses are due; interim and final action(s) taken on requests and the date(s) of final and/or interim actions; the persons or offices assigned action on requests; the types of requests; fee data; alien file numbers; specific exemptions applied to denial actions; offices where requests are transferred for referral or consultations; and the names/titles of officials responsible for denials.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

This system is maintained pursuant to 44 U.S.C. 3101 and 8 U.S.C. 1103 to implement the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 and 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

This system of records is used to record, control, and determine the status of FOIA/PA requests, and produce statistical reports required by both Acts. Information from the system may be provided to the record subject, the requester or other persons designated by the requester, and to other Federal agencies and Department of Justice components receiving INS referrals or with whom consultations are required in order to complete the processing of requests. All other uses are internal within INS.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information in this system may be disclosed as is necessary to appropriately respond to congressional inquiries on behalf of constituents.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from this system of records may be dislcosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records may be stored on magnetic disks and tapes.

Retention and disposal:

Records are indexed and retrieved by control number or by name of requester or subject.

Safeguards:

Records are safeguarded in accordance with Department of Justice Security regulations governing Privacy Act systems of records. Access to the automated system is controlled by restricted password from remote terminals in secured areas.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained for five years after date of last action and then destroyed.

System manager(s) and address:

The Associated Commissioner, Information Systems, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Central Office, 425 I Street, NW., Washington, D.C. is the sole manager of the system.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager listed above.

Record access procedures:

In all cases, requests for access to a record from this system shall be in writing. If a request for access is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "FOIA/PA Request." Requests should be submitted to the INS office where the request which is the subject of the inquiry was sent, or to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Attention: FOIA/PA Section, 425 I Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20536. The requester shall include the control number or name of the requester and/or name of the record subject, and the date and place of submission of the request. The requester shall also provide a return address for response to the inquiry.

Contesting record procedures:

Any individual desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct his request to the system manager or to the INS office where the request which is the subject of the inquiry was submitted. The request should state clearly what information is being contested, the reason(s) for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

Indivdiuals requesting information under FOIA/PA and INS officials and employees engaged in processing or making determinations on FOIA/PA requests.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/INS-011

System name:

Password Issuance and Control System (PICS).

System location:

Central, Regional, and District offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) as detailed in JUSTICE/INS-999.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Those INS employees, INS contractor employees, and other Federal, State or local government employees for whom authorization to access and use INS automated data processing (ADP) systems has been requested.

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records consists of paper records (INS Form G-872, Request for ADP Password) and an automated data base. INS Form G-872 contains personal identification data such as name, social security number, office location code, organization code, ADP security clearance information, office telephone number, company name of contractor employees, and a statement by the supervisor certifying the official need for access. Upon approval of the request, the user ID code and password issued will be included on the Form. The automated data base may include information extracted from INS Form G-872 and from the Secrutiy Clearance Information System (SCIS), JUSTICE/JMD-008. The SCIS data is necessary to determine the suitability and trustworthiness to access the information.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Section 103 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1103) as amended by Section 274A of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (8 U.S.C. 1324) and Department of Justice Order 2640.2A which delegates ADP security authority to INS for maintaining and operating its systems.

Purpose(s):

The purpose of the system is to expedite determinations of eligibility to access INS automated systems and to improve control by ADP Security Officers of ADP password and user ID distribution.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Relevant information contained in this system of records may be disclosed as follows:

A. Where there is an indication of violation or potential violation of law (whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature), to the appropriate agency (whether Federal, State, local or foreign) charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violations, or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

B. To the General Services Administration and the National Archives and Records Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Those records which can be accessed electronically are stored in a database on magnetic disc. Forms G-872, Request for ADP Password, are maintained in file folders at Central, Regional and District ADP Security Offices.

Retrievability:

These records are retrieved by social security number.

Safeguards:

INS offices are located in buildings under security guard, and access to premises is by official identification. Paper records are stored in locked files during non-duty hours. Access to automated data is obtained through terminals which require the use of restricted passwords and user IDs. Only designated Security Officers have access to PICS for creating and updating records of users within their jurisdiction.

Retention and disposal:

Inactive automated records are retained 10 years after date of last action and then deleted from the system. INS Forms G-872, Request for ADP Password, are retained 3 years after final action and then destroyed by shredding.

System manager(s) and address:

The Servicewide system manager is the Director, Technical Services Branch, Data Systems Division, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 I Street NW., Washington, DC 20536.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the system manager identified above.

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access in writing to the Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) Officer at the address identified above. Clearly mark the envelope and letter "Privacy Act Request." Provide the full name, social security number, user ID, and notarized signature of the individual who is the subject of the record, and a return address.

Contesting record procedures:

Direct all requests to contest or amend information to the FOIA/PA Officer at the address identified above. State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reason for contesting it, and the proposed amendment thereof. Clearly mark the envelope "Privacy Act Request." The record must be identified in the same manner as described for making a request for access.

Record source categories:

INS Form 872, Request for ADP Password, completed by the supervisor or program manager, and security clearance information extracted from SCIS, JUSTICE/JMD-008.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/INS-012

System name:

Deportable Alien Control System (DACS).

System location:

Central, Regional, District, and other offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in the United States as detailed in JUSTICE/INS-999.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Aliens alleged to be deportable by INS.

Categories of records in the system:

The system is a computer data base that contains biographic information about deportable aliens such as name, date and country of birth; United States and foreign addresses; file number, charge, amount of bond, hearing date, case assignment, scheduling date, section(s) of law under which deportability/excludability is alleged; data collected to support the INS position on deportability/excludability, including information on any criminal or subversive activities; date, place, and type of last entry into the United States; attorney/representative's identification number; family data, and other case-related information.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

8 U.S.C. 1103, 1251, and 1252.

Purpose(s):

The system provides INS with an automated data base which assists in the arrest, deportation, or detention of aliens in accordance with immigration and nationality laws. It also serves as a docket and control system by providing management with information concerning the status and/or disposition of deportable aliens.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Relevant information contained in this system of records may be disclosed as follows:

A. To clerks and judges of Federal courts exercising jurisdiction over the deportable aliens in determining grounds for deportation.

B. To other Federal, State, and local government law enforcement and regulatory agencies and foreign governments, including the Department of Defense and all components thereof, the Department of State, the Department of Treasury, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Selective Service System, the United States Coast Guard, the United Nations, and INTERPOL, and individuals and organizations during the course of investigation in the processing of a matter or during a proceeding within the purview of the immigration and nationality laws to elicit information required by INS to carry out its functions and statutory nandates.

C. Where there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law (whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature), to the appropriate agency (whether Federal, State, local or foreign), charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violations, or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

D. Where there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of the immigration and nationality laws, or of a general statute within INS jurisdiction, or of a regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, to a court, magistrate, or administrative tribunal in the course of presenting evidence, and to opposing counsel during discovery.

E. Where there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of the law of another nation (whether civil or criminal), to the appropriate foreign government agency charged with enforcing or implementing such laws and to international organizations engaged in the collection and dissemination of intelligence concerning criminal activity.

F. To other Federal agencies for the purpose of conducting national intelligence and security investigations.

G. To an applicant, petitioner or respondent or to his or her attorney or representative as defined in 8 CFR 1.1(j) in connection with any proceeding before INS.

H. To the news nedia and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

I. To a Member of Congress or staff acting on the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

J. To the General Services Administration and the National Archives and Records Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are stored in a data base on magnetic disks.

Retrievability:

These records are retrieved by name and/or date of birth, A-file number, or by alien's Bureau of Prisons number, when applicable.

Safeguards:

INS offices are located in buildings under security guard, and access to premises is by official identification. Access to terminals is limited to INS employees with user identification numbers. Access to records in this system is by restricted password and is further protected by secondary passwords.

Retention and disposal:

Deportable alien case control and detention records are deleted at the time of case closure. A retention and disposition schedule for the case summary and detention history records is currently being negotiated and will be submitted to the Archivist of the United States for approval.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Commissioner, Detention and Deportation, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 I Street, NW, Washington, DC 20536.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the system manager identified above.

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access in writing to the Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) Officer at the nearest INS Office, or the INS office maintaining the desired records (if known) by using the list of Principal Offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service Appendix, JUSTICE/INS-999, published in the Federal Register. Clearly mark the envelope and letter "Privacy Act Request." Provide the A-file number and/or the full name and date of birth, with a notarized signature of the individual who is the subject of the record, and a return address.

Contesting record procedures:

Direct all requests to contest or amend information in the record to the FOIA/PA Officer at one of the addresses identified above. State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reason for contesting it, and the proposed amendment thereof. Clearly mark the envelope "Privacy Act Request." The record must be identified in the same manner as described for making a request for access.

Record source categories:

Basic information is obtained from "The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) Alien File (A File) and Central Index System, (CIS), JUSTICE/INS-001A." Information may also come from the alien, the alien's attorney/representative, INS officials, other Federal, State, local, and foreign agencies and the courts.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/INS-013

System name:

Fees and Application Receipt and Entry System (FARES).

System location:

Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) Central Office, Regional Service Centers, District Offices and sub-offices as detailed in Justice/INS-999.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who have filed applications or petitions for benefits under the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended, and/or who have submitted fee payments with such applications or petitions; individuals who have paid fees for access to records under the Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOIA/PA); individuals who have posted a bond and related fees with INS; and individuals who have refunded money to INS.

Categories of records in the system:

Information which identifies individuals named above, e.g., name and address, date of birth, and alien registration number. Records in the system may also include such information as date documents were filed or received in INS, status, location of record, FOIA/PA or other control number where applicable, fee receipt data, and posted bond data.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

8 U.S.C.1103; 8 U.S.C. 1363; and 31 U.S.C. 3512.

Purpose(s):

This system will enable INS to determine the status of pending applications and petitions for benefits; to account for and control the receipt and disposition of any fees or refunds collected, including those which accompany applications, petitions, posted bonds, and FOIA/PA requests; and to locate related files and respond to inquiries about these records.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

No external disclosure will be made from this system. The system will be used by employees as indicated under "Purpose of the System."

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information is stored on magnetic disks and tape.

Retrievability:

Records may be retrieved by name of the individuals covered by the system; and by fee receipt number.

Safeguards:

Records are safeguarded in accordance with Department of Justice rules and procedures. INS offices are located in buildings under security guard, and access to premises is by official identification. Offices are locked during non-duty hours. Access to this system is obtained through remote terminals which require the use of restricted passwords and a user ID.

Retention and disposal:

Records are archived off-line for an indefinite period one year after the final action. A disposition schedule for archived records is pending.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Commissioner, Records Systems Division, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 I Street NW., Washington, DC 20536.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the system manager.

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access in writing to the FOIA/PA Officer at any INS office. Clearly mark the envelope and letter "Privacy Act Request." Depending on the type of record, provide the name and date of birth of the applicant, name of petitioner or FOIA/PA requester, alien registration number of beneficiary and receipt number to assist in locating and/or verifying the identity of the record. For your convenience, INS Form G-639, Freedom of Information Act Privacy Act Request, may be obtained from the nearest INS office and used to submit a request.

Contesting record procedures:

Direct all requests to contest or amend information to the FOIA/PA Officer at any INS office. State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reason for contesting it, and the proposed amendment thereof. Clearly mark the envelope "Privacy Act Amendment Request." The record must be identified in the same manner as described for making a request for access.

Record source categories:

Information contained in this system of records is obtained from the individuals covered by the system.

INTERPOL–UNITED STATES NATIONAL CENTRAL BUREAU

JUSTICE/INTERPOL–001

System name:

The INTERPOL-United States National Central Bureau (INTERPOL–USNCB) (Department of Justice) INTERPOL–USNCB Records System.

System location:

INTERPOL-U.S. National Central Bureau, Department of Justice, Room 800, Shoreham Bldg., Washington, DC 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who have been convicted or are subjects of a criminal investigation with international aspects; specific deceased persons in connection with death notices; individuals who may be associated with certain weapons, motor vehicles, artifacts, etc., stolen and/or involved in a crime; victims of criminal violations in the United States or abroad; and INTERPOL–USNCB personnel involved in litigation.

Categories of records in the system:

The program records of the INTERPOL–USNCB consists of criminal and non-criminal case files. The files contain fingerprint records, photographs, criminal investigative reports, radio messages (international), teletype messages (internal U.S.), log sheets, computer printouts, letters, memoranda, and statements of witnesses and parties to litigation.

These records relate to fugitives, wanted persons, lookouts (temporary and permanent), specific missing persons, deceased persons in connection with death notices. Information about individuals includes names, alias, date of birth, address, physical description, various identification numbers, reason for the record or lookout, and details and circumstances surrounding the actual or suspected violation.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

22 U.S.C. 263a.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

In the event a record(s) in this system of records indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be referred, as a routine use to the appropriate law enforcement and criminal justice agencies whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulations or order issued pursuant thereto. A record may be disclosed to federal, state or local agencies maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license grant or other benefit; to federal agencies in response to their request in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter. A record may be disclosed to appropriate parties engaged in litigation or in preparation of possible litigation, e.g., to potential witnesses for the purpose of securing their testimony when necessary before courts, magistrates or administrative tribunals; to parties and their attorneys for the purpose of proceeding with litigation or settlement of disputes; to individuals seeking information by using established discovery procedures, whether in connection with civil, criminal, or regulatory proceedings; to foreign governments in accordance with formal or informal international agreements; to local, state, federal and foreign agents; to the Treasury Enforcement Communications System [TECS] (Treasury/CS 00.244); to the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) General Secretariat and National Central Bureaus in member countries; to the INTERPOL Supervisory Board, an international board comprised of three judges having oversight responsibilities regarding the purpose and scope of personal information maintained in the international archives of INTERPOL; to employees and officials of financial and commercial business firms and private individuals where such release is considered reasonably necessary to obtain information to further investigative efforts or to apprehend criminal offenders; to other third parties during the course of an investigation to the extent necessary to obtain information pertinent to the investigation; and to translators of foreign languages as necessary. In addition, records are accessed by INTERPOL–USNCB employees and by volunteer students and students working under a college work-study program who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties.

Release of Information to the News Media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of Information to Members of Congress:

Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information in behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information is stored in file folders and on microfilm in the INTERPOL-United States National Central Bureau. Magnetic disks in the INTERPOL Case Tracking System (CTS) are stored at the Justice Data Center, U.S. Department of Justice, and certain limited data, e.g., that which concerns fugitives and wanted persons, is stored in the Treasury Enforcement Communications System (TECS) TREASURY/CS 00.244, a system published by the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved primarily by name, file name, system identification number, personal identification number, and by weapon or motor vehicle number or by other identifying data. Prior to 1975, case files were arranged by name of subject. Between 1975 and 1979 case files were sequentially numbered. Since October 1979, files have been arranged by year, month and sequential number.

Safeguards:

Information maintained on magnetic disks is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Department rules and procedures governing the handling of computerized information. Only those individuals specifically authorized and assigned an identification code by the system manager will have access to the computer. Identification codes will be assigned only to those INTERPOL-USNCB employees who require access to the information to perform their official duties. In addition, access to the information must be accompanied through a terminal which is located in the INTERPOL-USNCB office that is occupied twenty-four hours a day. Information in file folders and in microfilm records is stored in file cabinets in the same secured area.

Retention and disposal:

Case files opened after April 5, 1982 have been stored on microfilm (41 CFR 101–11.506). In addition, records that were closed prior to April 5, 1982 but are recalled from the Federal Archives and Records Center (FARC) are also microfilmed.

Case files that were closed prior to April 5, 1982 are transferred to the FARC two years from the date the case is closed and are destroyed twenty years thereafer, if there has been no recall from the FARC and no case activity.

Case files closed as of April 5, 1982 and thereafter are disposed of as follows: The hard copy (paper record) of the case file may be destroyed when the microfilm records have been verified for clearness, completeness and accuracy. The microfilm record of the case file is destroyed ten years after closing of the case, if there has been no case activity.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, INTERPOL-United States National Cental Bureau, Department of Justice, Room 800, Shoreham Building, Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries regarding whether the system contains a record pertaining to an individual may be addressed to the Chief, INTERPOL-United States National Central Bureau, Department of Justice, Washington, DC 20530. To enable INTERPOL-USNCB personnel to determine whether the system contains a record relating to him or her, the requester must submit a written request identifying the record system, identifying the category and type of records sought, and providing the individual's full name and at least two items of secondary information (date of birth, social security number, employee identification number, or similar identifying information).

Record access procedures:

Although the Attorney General has exempted the system from the access, contest, and amendment provisions of the Privacy Act, some records may be available under the Freedom of Information Act. Inquiries should be addressed to the official designated under "Notification procedure" above. The letter should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Request" and a return address provided for transmitting any information to the requester.

Contesting record procedures:

See "Access procedures" above.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include investigating reports of federal, state, local, and foreign law enforcement agencies (including investigating reports from a system of records published by Department of Treasury Enforcement Communications System (TECS) TREASURY/CS 00.244): Other non-Department of Justice investigative agencies: Client agencies of the Department of Justice; statements of witnesses and parties; and the work product of the staff of the United States National Central Bureau working on particular cases. Although the organization uses the name INTERPOL-USNCB for purposes of public recognition, the INTERPOL-USNCB is not synonymous with the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO-INTERPOL), which is a private, intergovernmental organization headquarted in St. Cloud, France. The Department of Justice INTERPOL-USNCB serves as the United States liaison with the INTERPOL General Secretariat and works in cooperation with the National Central Bureaus of other member countries, but is not an agent, legal representative, nor organization subunit of the International Criminal Police Organization. The records maintained by the INTERPOL-USNCB are separate and distinct from records maintained by the international Criminal Police Organization, and INTERPOL-USNCB does not have custody of, access to, nor control over the records of the International Criminal Police Organization.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e), (1), (2), and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (8), (f), and (g) if the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), and (k)(2) and (k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE MANAGEMENT DIVISION

JUSTICE/JMD–001

System name:

Background Investigation Check-off Card.

System location:

U.S. Department of Justice, 633 Indiana Avenue, NW., Suite 402, Washington, DC 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All employees of the Offices, Boards, and Divisions except employees in the U.S. Attorneys Offices, and the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys, for whom the U.S. Office of Personnel Management conducts background investigations.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains an index card for each employee of the Offices, Boards, and Divisions, except those excluded in Categories of Individuals above, on whom a name and fingerprint or background investigation has been initiated.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is established and maintained in order to fulfill the requirements of Executive Order 10450.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The index cards are used to annotate and monitor the progress of the name and fingerprint checks and the full field character investigations of the employes. The completed cards are used to develop a variety of workload and timeframe data concerning the initiation and completion of these investigations to ensure that the requirements of Executive Order 10450 and Department of Justice Order 2610.2 are being effectively and efficiently met.

Release of Information to the News Media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR part 502 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of Information to Members of Congress:

Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is subject to the record.

Release of Information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information maintained in the system is manually stored in the boxes.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved manually by reference to the name of the employee on whom the investigation is being conducted.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is unclassified. It is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Personnel Service policies and procedures.

Retention and disposal:

When a full-field background investigation or National Agency Check is initiated, the background investigation check-off card is forwarded to the Justice Management Division Security Staff where it is ultimately merged in system Justice/JMD-008, Security Clearance Information System.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Director, Personnel Service, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Suite 402, IND Building, Washington, D.C.

Notification procedure:

Same as the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

Same as the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures:

Same as the System Manager.

Record source categories:

The sources of information contained in this system are those Personnel Service employees authorized to annotate these cards. Information reported is extracted from personnel documents initiating the various investigations and the resulting reports of completion.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/JMD-002

System name: Controlled Substances Act Nonpublic Records.

System location: U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons who have been convicted for the first time of violating Section 404(a) of the Controlled Substances Act (Pub. L. 91-513), i.e. persons who have knowingly or intentionally possessed a controlled substance except as authorized by the act.

Categories of records in the system: Arrest records of law enforcement agencies, which include personal data, photographs, fingerprints, copies of court orders, DOJ-330 Request for Non-Public Records and/or DOJ-329 Certificate of Expungement.

Authority for maintenance of the system: This system is established and maintained in accordance with the Controlled Substances Act, Pub. L. 91-513 Sec. 404, 21 U.S.C. 844.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: These records are retained by the Department of Justice and are available only to a Federal court upon a Federal court order issued to the Attorney General demanding such records for use by said court in determining whether or not a person qualified under Pub. L. 91-513 Sec. 404(b), 21 U.S.C. 844(b).

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration: A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: These records are stored in locked file cabinets.

Retrievability: These records are indexed by the name of the offender.

Safeguards: Access to these records is restricted to the Chief, Records Maintenance and Disposition Section and the assistant to the Chief.

Retention and disposal: Although these records will ultimately be destroyed by shredding, the establishment of a disposal schedule is still pending.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Records and Publications Staff, Office of Personnel and Administration, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th & Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure: Same as the System Manager.

Record access procedures: Same as the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures: Same as the System Manager.

Record source categories: Law enforcement agencies and courts.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Attorney General has exempted the system from subsection (d) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/JMD-003

System name:

Department of Justice Payroll System.

System location:

Categories of records within the Payroll System of Records are kept at the following locations: (1) Justice Employee Data Service: 601 D Street NW., Washington, DC 20530; (2) Justice Computer Service; 425 I Street, NW., Washington, DC 20530; (3) at various time and attendance recording and processing stations around the world; (4) at computerized record off-site backup facilities; and (5) at various Federal Records Centers.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

(1) Current DOJ employees with the exception of those employed within the FBI and; (2) Many past DOJ employees with the exception of those that served within the FBI.

Categories of records in the system:

A. Payroll Master Employee Records: These are machine-readable and microfiche records containing information on current pay and leave status for individuals serviced by the automated payroll accounting system.

B. Bond, Allotment and Check Mailing Records: These are machine-readable and microfiche records containing information on Savings Bond deductions, savings account allotments, and net check mailing requested by the employee.

C. History of Earning Records: These are machine-readable and microfiche records containing information on earnings, leave and other pay related activities.

D. Automated Retirement Records: These are machine-readable records containing information relevant to the Civil Service Retirement System and the Federal Employees Retirement System. These records will be used to automatically generate "Individual Retirement Records" (SF-2806) or "Individual Retirement Records (Federal Employees Retirement)" (SF-3100) upon an employee's separation.

E. Revised Social Security Numbers Records: These are machine-readable records containing the new and old social security number for employees whose current social security number is different from that previously entered into the automated system.

F. Employee Pay Records: These are manila folders containing source documents, correspondence and other papers in support of an active employee's pay, leave and allowances.

G. Active Retirement Records: These are manual records maintained on active employees to facilitate timely compliance with the requirements of the Civil Service Retirement System or Federal Employees Retirement Service. Upon separation, the original SF-2806 or SF-3100 is forwarded to the Office of Personnel Management and a copy is filed in the Employee Pay Record (F above). This category of records will eventually be replaced by the automated retirement records (D above).

H. Former Employee Pay Records: These records are the Employee Pay Records (F above) for employees that have been separated, transferred or retired. In addition to information contained in the Employee Pay Records, these records include information related to the retirement, seperation or transfer. These records are destroyed two years after separation of employee.

I. Employee Death Records: These records are the Employee Pay Records (F above) for employees that died while on active duty with Department of Justice. In addition to information contained in the Employee Pay Records, these records include information related to the employee's death and the settlement of pending pay and allowances.

J. Returned Check Records: These records are a manual log for recording and controlling checks issued to employees that were returned to the Justice Employee Data Service because they were undelivered, erroneous or cancelled prior to conversion to cash.

K. Time and Attendance Report: These microfilm records of Form DOJ-296 contain information on an employee's attendance and use of leave in a particular pay period. They are also used to indicate leave adjustments and balances.

L. Indebtedness Records: These records include source documents, correspondence and other papers containing information regarding the Government's claims of debt against individuals covered by the system. These records are supplemented by hard copy, machine-readable or microfiche records necessary to establish the identity and address of the individuals, including in certain cases the taxpayer's mailing address provided by the Internal Revenue Service.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The head of each executive agency is responsible for establishing and maintaining an adequate payroll system, covering pay, leave, and allowances, as a part of the system of accounting and internal control of the Budget and Accounting Procedures Act of 1950, as amended, 31 U.S.C. 66, 66a, and 200(a).

Purpose(s):

The purpose of each use of categories of records within the DOJ Payroll System of Records is to enable the administration of the payroll function and related financial matters in accordance with applicable laws and regulations and to comply with the requirements of the Comptroller General.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A. Authorize, prepare and document payment to all Department employees covered by the DOJ Payroll System entitled to be paid, with consideration given to all authorized deductions from gross pay.

B. Specify and document proper disposition of all authorized deductions from gross pay.

C. Prepare adequate and reliable payroll reports needed for (1) management, (2) budget, (3) support of payments, (4) the conduct and accounting of payroll related employee services, (5) control and documentation of payroll system operation, and (6) to meet external reporting requirements.

D. Support effective communications and payroll matters between the Department of Justice and its present and former employees.

E. Support proper coordination of pay, leave and allowance operations with personnel functions and other related activities.

F. Support adequate control over all phases and segments of the payroll system including leave accounting.

G. Support appropriate integration of the payroll system with the Departmental accounting systems.

H. Provide to the State, City, or other local jurisdiction which is authorized to tax the employee's compensation a copy of an employee's record, including the employee's Department of the Treasury Form W-2 and Tax Statement. The record will be provided in accordance with a withholding agreement between the State, City, or other local jurisdiction and the Department of the Treasury pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 516, 5517, and 5520 or in the absence thereof, in response to a written request from an appropriate official of the taxing jurisdiction to the System Manager listed below. The request must include a copy of the applicable statute authorizing the taxation of compensation and should indicate whether the authority of the jurisdiction to tax the employee is based on place of residence, place of employment, or both. However, the social security numbers will only be provided to state or local taxing authorities which meet the criteria of the Privacy Act.

I. Provide permanent record of actions taken pertinent to the administration of pay leave and allowances.

J. Support legal investigations of suspected fraud.

K. Disseminate a record, or any facts derived therefrom, in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Department of Justice is authorized to appear when i. the Department, or any subdivision thereof, or ii. any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity, or iii. any employee of the Department in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or iv. the United States where the Department determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has any interest in litigation and such reports are determined by the Department to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

L. Release of information to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Information contained in the system may be disclosed to the IRS to obtain taxpayer mailing addresses for the purpose of locating such taxpayer to collect or compromise a Federal claim against the taxpayer.

M. Release of information to consumer reporting agencies. Information directly related to the identify of debtors and the history of claims contained in the system or records may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies for the purpose of encouraging repayment of overdue debts. Such disclosures will be made only when a claim is overdue and only after due process steps have been taken to notify the debtor and give him or her a chance to meet the terms of the debt. Addresses of taxpayers obtained from the IRS will be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies only for the purpose of allowing such agencies to prepare a commercial credit report on the taxpayer for use by the Department.

N. Release of information about debtors to the U.S. Treasury or other Federal employers in order to effect salary or administrative offsets. Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to an employer in order to effect salary or administrative offsets to satisfy a debt owed the United States by that person. Such disclosures will be made only when all procedural steps established by the Debt Collection Act have been taken.

O. Release of information to debt collection agencies. Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to a person or organization with whom the head of the agency has contracted for collection services to recover indebtedness owed to the United States. Addresses of taxpayers obtained from the IRS will also be disclosed, but only where necessary to locate such taxpayer to collect or compromise a Federal claim.

P. Release of information to United States Attorneys or the Civil Division. Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to United States Attorneys or the Civil Division for advice, litigation or enforced collection.

CATEGORIES OF USERS:

Records are accessed by users on a need or right to know basis. A category of users may have potential access under more than one use above.

A. Present or former employees serviced by the DOJ Payroll System.

B. Justice Employees Data Service Staff.

C. Department of the Treasury disbursing offices.

D. Department of Justice budget and accounting offices.

E. Department of Justice personnel offices.

F. Employee supervisors.

G. Employee administrative offices.

H. Federal, state and local taxing authorities.

I. Federal Employees Health Benefits carriers.

J. Employee organization offices participating in dues allotment program.

K. Financial organizations participating in savings account allotment program.

L. Financial organizations participating in net pay to checking account program.

M. State human resource offices administering unemployment compensation programs.

N. General Accounting Office and internal audit staffs.

O. Federal, state or local law enforcement agencies (in support of legal investigations of suspected fraud).

P. Other Federal agencies requiring information as specified in applicable laws or regulations, e.g., Office of Personnel Management.

Q. Heirs, executors and legal representatives of beneficiaries.

R. State and local courts of competent jurisdiction for the enforcement of child support and/or alimony pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 659.

S. Consumer reporting agencies as defined by 15 U.S.C. subsection 1681a(f) or 31 U.S.C. subsection 3701(a)(3)(B).

T. Debt collection agents, for purposes of collecting Federal claims against taxpayers.

U. Department of Justice law enforcement or litigative organizations for advice or for purposes of litigation or enforced collection pertaining to Federal debt claims.

Release of Information to the News Media. Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of Information to Members of Congress. Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of Information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA). A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Various categories of records are stored on different mediums. Categories A, B, and E are on magnetic discs. Category C is on magnetic tape and microfiche. Category D is on magnetic tape. All other records are maintained in paper form.

Retrievability:

Categories of records on magnetic media are retrievable by employee social security number which is maintained to comply with Internal Revenue requirements. Records in paper form and microfiche are retrievable by employee name and social security number.

Safeguards:

The principal current safeguard for payroll records is guard force screening of individuals entering buildings within which records are kept. More stringent security practices and procedures are under development.

Retention and disposal:

Payroll records retention and disposal are in accordance with General Records Schedule 2 promulgated by the General Services Administration.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Finance Staff, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, 601 D Street, NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager.

A request for notification of the existence of records upon an individual shall be made in writing with the envelope and the letter clearly marked 'Privacy Notification Request'. Include in the request the name of the system of records, the individual's full name and social security number while employed with the Department of Justice, the name of the organization within which the individual is either a current or former employee. The requestor shall include a return address for the notification response.

Record access procedures:

Address access requests to the System Manager.

A request for access to records from this system shall be made in writing with the envelope and the letter clearly marked 'Privacy Access Request'. Include in the request the name of the system of records, the legal name and social security number of the subject individual and the name of the organization within which the individual is either a current or former employee. The requestor shall also provide a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Individual desiring to contest or amend information should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reason for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Information contained within the DOJ Payroll System of Records is obtained from the following sources:

A. Subject Individual: Information collected from the subject individual generally consists of that necessary to administer allotments, deductions or other services requested by the individual.

B. Personnel Office: Information collected from the personnel office generally consists of employment status information which provides the legal basis upon which valid payments are computed.

C. Time and Attendance Clerk: Information collected from this clerk generally consists of an accounting of the individual's presence or absence from the duty station and the usage of leave.

D. Supervisor or Administrative Officer: Information collected from these officers generally consists of leave authorizations and information concerning the individual's duty station.

E. Financial Institutions or Employee Organizations: Information collected from institutions or organizations generally consists of that necessary to insure the timely and accurate forwarding to the institution or organization of monies allotted to an account at the institution or organization by the subject individual.

F. Previous Federal Employer: Information collected from the previous employer within the Federal government generally consists of leave status information at the time of separation.

G. Other Federal Agencies: Information collected from other Federal agencies generally consists of program information necessary to properly administer pay, leave, and allowance. Information collected from IRS may include taxpayer mailing addresses which are necessary to locate debtors.

H. Other Officials: Information collected from other officials consists of that necessary to administer the payroll function. This may include authorization for special payments, death certificate or other documents as necessary.

I. Consumer Reporting Agencies and Debt Collection Agencies: Information provided to assist in collecting debts.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/JMD-004

System name:

Bookstream (Justice/JMD-004).

System location:

Justice Manager Division (JMD), Main Library, Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All Office, Board, and Division (OBD) Metropolitan Washington Department of Justice employees, and other selected Department employees who request to borrow from the Library system.

Categories of records in the system:

The file contains the full name of Department of Justice employees; their organization building; room number; telephone number and last four digits of their social security number. In addition, a record of all library materials borrowed by or loaned to each employee is maintained.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

This file is maintained pursuant to requirements for maintenance of records of Federal agencies. (See 44 U.S.C. 3101 (1976).)

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The file is used by Main Library staff personnel to maintain more effective control over library materials, including the ability to recall materials and to clear Department of Justice employees leaving the agency. Records will not be disseminated, and there will be no release of information outside of the Library system other than to notify library patrons of the availability of materials or overdue status of borrowed materials. A list of items outstanding prior to clearance from the agency will be provided to the employee.

There will also be a release of oustanding loans to the Department of Justice Board of Survey when an employee leaving the Department cannot account for items charged out. The Board of Survey, consisting of Department of Justice personnel, was established by OBD Order 1300.4, February 18, 1981.

A record from the system of records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration for records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2404 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Automated records are maintained by JMD Library staff on a Data General M600 minicomputer using DATALIB proprietary software.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by a variety of datafields including, but not limited to the name of the employee, call number, title key or patron indentification code.

Safeguards:

Information maintained in the system is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Department rules and procedures governing the handling of computerized information. Only those individuals specifically authorized and assigned an access code will have use of the circulation system. Access codes will be assigned only to those library employees who have the requisite need for the information to perform their official duties. In addition, access to the information must be accomplished through a single terminal which is only operational from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and access to such terminal will be limited.

Retention and disposal:

Records classified by the employee's name are retained for two weeks after the employee leaves the employment of the Justice Department. The records are then deleted from the system.

System manager(s) and address:

Circulation Librarian, Room 5400, Main Library, United States Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries regarding whether the system contains a record pertaining to an individual may be addressed to the Circulation Librarian, Room 5400, Main Library, United States Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. 20530. Before identifying whether the system contains a record relating to an individual employee, Department of Justice employment is first verified by checking information provided by the employee against an employee personnel listing extracted from the Justice Uniform Personnel System (Juniper). (See "Record source categories" below.) Bookstream is then searched for records relating to that employee. Therefore, to assist the Library in verifying employment and in identifying any record relating to an employee, the employee must provide his full name, social security number, date of employment and duty assignment station.

Record access procedures:

Persons desiring to access a record shall submit their request in writing, by mail, or in person to the agency official designated under "Notification procedure" above. If a request to access a record is made by mail, the envelope and letter shall be clearly marked "Privacy Act Request." In addition, the requester must furnish the information set forth under "Notification procedure" above.

Contesting record procedures:

See "Record access procedure" above.

Record source categories:

Sources are the Juniper system and bibliographic records either keyed at the time an item is borrowed or taken from the master record of Library holdings. The Juniper system is a system of records which is included under the umbrella of a government-wide system of records reported by the Office of Personnel Management. The system is entitled "General Personnel Records, OPM/GOVT-1."

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/JMD-005

System name:

Grievance Records.

System location:

Records relating to grievances originating in an office, board or division (defined in 28 CFR 0.1) except for the Executive Office for United States Attorneys, are located in the Office of the Assistant Director for Personnel Service. Records relating to grievances originating in the Executive Office for United States Attorneys or in a United States Attorney's office are located in the office of the Personnel Officer, Executive Office for United States Attorneys. Records relating to grievances originating in a particular bureau (defined in 28 CFR 0.1) are located in the central personnel office of the bureau where the grievance originated, except for the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) which is excluded from coverage of the Agency Administrative Grievance System by 5 CFR 771.206(a). (See caption "System managers and addresses.")

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Current or former Department of Justice employees, except for employees of the FBI, who have submitted grievances in accordance with 5 CFR Part 771 (Office of Personnel Management (OPM) regulations) and the Department's grievance procedures, or in accordance with a negotiated grievance procedure.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains records relating to grievances filed by the agency employees under 5 CFR Part 771 and the Department's grievance procedures, or under a negotiated grievance procedure. These case files contain all documents related to the grievance, including statements of witnesses, reports of interviews and hearings, examiner's findings and recommendations, or arbitration award, and a copy of any original and final decision and related correspondence and exhibits.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 552a(f); 5 CFR Part 771; 5 U.S.C. 1032, 3301, 3302; E.O. 10577; 3 CFR 1954–1958 Comp., p. 218.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records and information in these records may be used:

a. To disclose pertinent information to another appropriate Federal, State, or local agency, responsible for investigating, prosecuting, enforcing, or implementing a statute rule, regulation, or order, where the Department becomes aware of an indication of a violation or potential violation of civil or criminal law or regulation.

b. To disclose information to any source from which additional information is requested in the course of processing a grievance to the extent necessary to identify the individual, inform the source of the purpose(s) of the request, and identify the type of information requested.

c. To disclose information to another Federal agency (in response to its request) for its use in the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the conducting of a security and/or suitability investigation of an individual, the classifying of jobs, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to its decision on the matter.

d. To provide information to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

e. To disclose information to another Federal agency or to a court when the Government is party to a judicial proceeding before the court.

f. By the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2908.

g. By the Department or OPM in the production of summary descriptive statistics, if available, and analytical studies in support of the function for which the records are collected and maintained, or for related work force studies. While published statistics and studies do not contain individual identifiers, in some instances the selection of data elements included in the study may be structured in such a way as to make the data individually identifiable by inference.

h. To disclose information to officials of the Merit Systems Protection Board; the Special Counsel; the Federal Labor Relations Authority and its General Counsel; the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; or, the OPM when requested to perform their authorized duties.

i. To disclose in response to a request for discovery or for appearance of a witness, information that is relevant to the subject matter involved in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding.

j. To provide information to labor organization officials recognized under the Civil Service Reform Act when relevant and necessary to their duties of exclusive representation concerning personnel policies, practices, and matters affecting work conditions.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are maintained in file folders.

Retrievability:

These records are retrieved by the names of the individuals on whom they are maintained.

Safeguards:

These records are maintained in lockable metal filing cabinets to which only authorized personnel have access.

Retention and disposal:

These records are disposed of three years after closing of the case. Disposal is by shredding or burning.

System manager(s) and address:

a. Offices, Boards and Divisions. Assistant Director for Personnel Service, U.S. Department of Justice, 633 Indiana Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

b. Bureau of Prisons. Personnel Director, Bureau of Prisons, HOLC Building, 320 First Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20534.

c. Drug Enforcement Administration. Deputy Assistant Administrator for Personnel, Drug Enforcement Administration, 1405 I Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20537.

d. Immigration and Naturalization Service. Assistant Commissioner for Personnel and Training, Immigration and Naturalization Service, CAB Building, 425 I Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

e. Office of Justice Programs. Director, Office of Personnel, Office of Justice Programs, 633 Indiana Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

g. Executive Officer for United States Attorneys. Personnel Officer, 601 D Street, NW., Patrick Henry Building, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Individuals who have filed grievances may contact the appropriate personnel office (named under the caption "System managers" and addresses" above) where the action was processed regarding the existence of such records on them. They must furnish the following information for the records to be located and identified:

a. Name.

b. Approximate date of closing of the case and the subject matter of the grievance.

c. Organization component involved.

Record access procedures:

Individuals who have filed grievances may request access to the official copy of the grievance file by contacting the appropriate personnel office (named under the caption "System managers and addresses" above) where the action was processed. Individuals must provide the information listed under the caption "Notification procedures" for their records to be located and identified. Individuals requesting access must also follow the Department's Privacy Act regulations (28 CFR 16.41) regarding access to records and verification of identity.

Contesting record procedures:

Review of requests from individuals seeking amendment of their records which have been the subject of a judicial or quasi-judicial action will be limited in scope. Review of amendment requests of these records will be restricted to determining if the record accurately documents the action of the agency ruling on the case and will not include a review of the merits of the action, determination, or finding.

Individuals wishing to request amendment to the records to correct factual errors should contact the personnel office (named under the caption "System managers and addresses" above) where the grievance was processed. Individuals must furnish the information listed under the caption "Notification procedures" for their records to be located and identified.

Individuals requesting amendment must also follow the office's Privacy Act regulations (28 CFR 16.41) regarding amendment to records and verifications of identity.

Record source categories:

Information in this system of records is provided:

a. By the individual on whom the record is maintained.

b. By testimony of witnesses.

c. By Department officials.

d. From related correspondence from organizations or persons.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/JMD-006

System name:

Debt Collection Management System, JUSTICE/JMD-006.

System location:

Department of Justice, Justice Management Division (JMD), Central Intake Facility (CIF), 1110 Bonifant Street, Suite 220, Silver Spring, Maryland.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Persons indebted to the United States who have allowed their debts to become delinquent and whose debts have been sent by client Federal agencies to the Department of Justice for settlement or enforced collection through litigation.

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records contains records relating to the negotiation, compromise, settlement, and litigation of indebtedness owed the United States. Records will consist of an automated support data base and temporary custody of case files. Case files are assigned promptly to a U.S. Attorney (USA) or contract private counsel to undertake enforced debt collection action. This system describes case files during the period which they are in the possession of the JMD, CIF. Upon assignment of a case file to the USA or contract private counsel, the case is covered by the Debt Collection Enforcement System, JUSTICE/USA-015.

The client agency case file includes such documents as the Claims Collection Litigation Report; Certificate of Indebtedness; any partial payment records, status reports, correspondence, and any other documentation developed during the negotiation of the indebtedness.

The automated data base contains data extracted from the case file and any data generated or developed to support the administrative operations of the debt collection program. Information may include personal data, e.g., name, social security number, date of birth, and locator information; claim information, e.g., type of claim such as benefit overpayment, loan default, bankruptcy, etc.; payment demand information, compromise offered, etc.; account information, e.g., debtor payments including principal, penalties, interests, and balances, etc.; information regarding debtor's employment, ability to pay, property liens, etc.; value of claim, name of source agency which provided the loan or benefit; information on the status and disposition of cases at various intervals of time; and any other information related to the negotiation, compromise, settlement, or litigation of indebtedness owed the United States, or to the administrative management of the debt collection program.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The Federal Debt Recovery Act of 1986, 31 U.S.C. 3718(b).

Purpose(s):

The Federal Debt Recovery Act authorizes the Attorney General to contract with private counsel to assist the USA in the collection of consumer and commercial debts owed the United States on a pilot project basis. Accordingly, the Department is participating in a pilot program in ten judicial districts and has established this system of records to provide automated litigation support to and administrative management of a debt collection program which allows the assignment of client Federal agency case files to USAs and contract private counsel to pursue the collection of indebtedness owed the United States. A separate system of records entitled "Debt Collection Enforcement System, JUSTICE/USA-015" has been established to cover records maintained by the USAs and contract private counsel in support of debt collection activities.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

In the course of its collection and enforcement activities, the Department will release client Federal agency case files to the CIF to conduct the administrative operations of the debt collection program. Through the administrative operations of the CIF, the Department will release the case files and any related records or information created by the CIF to the contract private counsel to negotiate, settle, and litigate indebtedness owed the United States.

The Department may also disclose records or information from this system as follows:

(a) To client agencies who have referred debt collection cases to the Department for settlement or litigation and enforced collection to notify such agencies of the status of the case or of any decision or determination that has been made, or to make such other inquiries and reports as are necessary during the processing of the case.

(b) To a Federal agency in response to its request and in connection with hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of the required security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

(d) To volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program as is necessary to enable them to perform their function;

(e) To employees or to contract personnel to access the records for Privacy Act training purposes.

(g) To the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(h) To a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

(i) To the National Archives and Records Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Case files are stored in locked rooms; automated data is stored on magnetic tape.

Retrievability:

Data is retrieved by name of debtor.

Safeguards:

Access to records is restricted to those personnel who must have access to perform their duties and is limited to those cases assigned. Case files are maintained separately in locked rooms during non-duty hours. Access to automated data requires the use of the proper password and user identification code.

Retention and disposal:

Paper records in this system will be returned to client Federal agencies for disposition; automated information will be erased ten years after the related case files reported in the Debt Collection Enforcement System, JUSTICE/USA-015 have been closed. (Pending approval of the National Archives and Records Administration.)

System manager(s) and address:

Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Debt Collection Management, Justice Management Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Debt Collection Management, Justice Management Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Record access procedures:

Address requests for access to Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Debt Collection Management, Justice Management Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. 20530. Clearly mark the envelope "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the debtor's name, date of birth, address, and any other identifying information which may be of assistance in locating the record, e.g., name of the case or Federal agency to whom the debtor is indebted. In addition, include notarized signature of the debtor as well as the name and address of the individual to receive the information if other than the debtor.

Contesting record procedures:

Address requests to Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Debt Collection Management, Justice Management Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. 20530. State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

The individuals covered by the system; client agencies of the Department to whom the individual is indebted; an attorney or other representative for the debtor and/or payor; any Federal, State, local, foreign, private organization or individual who may have information relating to the debt, the debtor's ability to pay or any other information relevant and necessary to assist in the settlement or effective litigation and enforced collection of the debt.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/JMD-007

System name:

Accounting System for the Offices, Boards and Divisions and the United States Marshals Service.

System location:

United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All individuals on whom vouchers are submitted requesting payment for goods or services rendered (except payroll vouchers for Department of Justice employees,) including vendors, contractors, experts, witnesses, court reporters, travelers, and employees.

Categories of records in the system:

All vouchers processed, i.e., all documents required to reserve, obligate, process and effect collection or payment of funds. (Excluded from the system are payroll vouchers.)

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is established and maintained in accordance with 31 U.S.C. 3512.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

After processing the vouchers, the records are used to maintain individual financial accountability; to furnish statistical data (not identified by personal identifiers) to meet both internal and external audit and reporting requirements; and to provide Administrative Officers from the Officers, Boards and Divisions and the United States Marshals Service with information on vouchers by name and social security number.

Release of information to the news media. Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from system of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress. Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Release of taxpayer mailing address information. Information contained in the system or records may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to obtain taxpayer mailing addresses for the purpose of locating such taxpayer to collect or compromise a Federal claim against the taxpayer.

Release of information to consumer reporting agencies. Information directly related to the identity of debtors and the history of claims contained in the system or records may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies for the purpose of encouraging repayment of overdue debts. Such disclosures will be made only when a claim is overdue and only after due process steps have been taken to notify the debtor and give him or her a chance to meet the terms of the debt. Addresses of taxpayers obtained from the Department of the Treasury will be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies only for the purpose of allowing such agencies to prepare a commercial credit report on the taxpayer for use by the Department.

Release of information about debtors. Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed in order to effect salary or administrative offsets to satisfy a debt owed the United States by that person. Such disclosures will be made only when all procedural steps established by the Debt Collection act have been taken.

Release of information to debt collection agencies. Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to a person or organization with whom the head of the agency has contracted for collection services to recover indebtedness owed to the United States. Addresses of taxpayers obtained from the Department of the Treasury will also be disclosed, but only where necessary to locate such taxpayer to collect or compromise a Federal claim.

Release of information to United States Attorneys. Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to United States Attorneys' offices for litigation and enforced collection.

Release of information in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body. Records within this system or any facts derived therefrom, may be disseminated before a court or adjudicative body before which the Justice Management Division is authorized to appear when i. the Justice Management Division, or any subdivision thereof, or ii. any employee of the Justice Management Division in his or her official capacity, or iii. any employee of the Justice Management Division in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or iv. the United States, where the Justice Management Division determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Justice Management Division to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Magnetic disks, magnetic tapes, microfilm, and file folders.

Retrievability:

Records on magnetic tapes and disks are primarily retrieved by social security number or digital identifiers. Records covering all fiscal years prior to Fiscal Year 1983 are maintained in paper form; as of Fiscal Year 1983 paper records have been converted to microfilm. Records in paper form and on microfilm are retrieved by batch and controlled by schedule on which paid.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is unclassified. Operational access to information maintained on magnetic disks is controlled by the convention of the operating system utilized. This is normally by password key. These passwords are issued only to employees who have a need to know in order to perform job functions relating to financial management and accountability. Records are also safeguarded in accordance with organizational rules and procedures. Access is limited to personnel of the Department of Justice who have a need for the records in the performance of their official duties.

Retention and disposal:

Magnetic disks, magnetic tapes, microfilm, and paper documents are retained for a period of six years and three months and subsequently destroyed in accordance with regulations prescribed by the General Accounting Office and promulgated by the General Services Administration.

JUSTICE/JMD-008

System name:

Security Clearance Information System (SCIS).

System location:

U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who have been investigated and cleared for employment and/or for access to data classified for national security reasons, i.e.,

A. Current employees, excluding the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), and the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA),

B. Former employees, excluding the FBI and DEA (maintained for a maximum of one year from date of termination),

C. Contractors with whom contracts (or other agreements) are, have been, or are offered to be entered into by the Department of Justice, including the FBI and DEA, and

D. Persons associated with and/or acting for the defense or for the courts in a criminal proceeding which involves classified information.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains two subsystems: (a) a Clearance Index Reference Record which is an automated system for identifying the individuals in Categories of Individuals above listing the status and types of investigations, the dates of clearances and level of clearances and (b) a Character File including one or more of the following: (1) Standard form 86 (Office of Personnel Management), Security Investigation Data for Sensitive Position; (2) Copies of investigative reports from the Office of Personnel Management, the FBI, and/or other Federal investigative agencies; (3) Correspondence related to the request for the investigations, results of the investigation, and clearance approvals for access to classified national security information and waivers; and (4) Other information relating to the trustworthiness of the employee.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is established and maintained in accordance with Presidential Executive Orders 10450 (Clearance for Federal Employment) and 12356 (Access to Data Classified for National Security Reasons), and the Classified Information Procedures Act of 1980.

Purpose(s):

Records in this system are used to determine the suitability, eligibility and/or qualifications of employees for initial or continued employment in the Department of Justice (excluding the FBI and DEA), and for employment in sensitive positions involving access to classified information. The records are also used to make similar suitability determinations regarding the employment of contractors to perform a service for the Department (including the FBI and DEA), and to establish the trustworthiness for access to classified information of persons associated with an/or acting for the court or the defense during criminal proceedings.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records or information in these records may be disclosed to:

(a) Designated officers and employees of agencies, offices, and other establishments in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal Government and the District of Columbia Government, when it has been determined by the Department of Justice, or by such agency, office, or establishment, that such agency, office or establishment having an interest in either the initial or continued employment of an individual, needs such records or information from this system in order to evaluate qualifications, suitability and loyalty to the United States Government, or trustworthiness to access classified information or restricted areas, and/or for the purpose of either granting, renewing, suspending, or revoking a security clearance.

(b) Designated officers and employees of agencies, offices, and other establishments in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal Government, and the District of Columbia Government, when it has been determined by the Department of Justice, or by such agency, office, or establishment, that such agency, office or establishment needs records or information from this system either because it has conducted or is conducting an investigation of the individual in order to evaluate qualifications, suitability, or loyalty to the United States Government, or trustworthiness to access classified information or restricted areas, and/or for the purpose of either granting, renewing, suspending, or revoking a security clearance.

(c) Designated officers and employees of agencies, offices, and other establishments in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal Government, and the District of Columbia Government, when it has been determined by the Department of Justice, or by such agency, office, or establishment, that such agency, office or establishment having an interest in either the initial or continued employment of a contractor, needs such records or information from this system in order to evaluate qualifications, suitability, and loyalty to the United States Government, or trustworthiness to access classified information or restricted areas, and/or the purpose of either granting, renewing, suspending, or revoking a security clearance.

(d) Designated officers and employees of agencies, offices, and other establishments in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal Government, and the District of Columbia government, when it has been determined by the Department of Justice, or by such agency, office or establishment, that such agency, office or establishment needs records or information from this system either because it has conducted or is conducting an investigation of the contractor in order to evaluate qualifications, suitability, or loyalty to the United States Government, or trustworthiness to access classified information or restricted areas, and/or for the purposes of either granting, renewing, suspending or revoking a security clearance.

(e) Security officials and investigators of other U.S. Government Agencies or Departments for liaison purposes involving access to classified material during meetings, conferences or training courses.

(f) The news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(g) A Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

(h) The National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Automated data is stored on a main frame computer in the Department of Justice Uniform Personnel System. Paper files are maintained in a secure file room.

Retrievability:

All data is retrieved by searching under the employee's name and social security account number.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system includes some classified National Security Information. It is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Departmental rules and procedures governing the protection of this material.

Safeguards include the assignment to authorized users of passwords to access the automated data, and of combination formulas to access manual records in locked safes.

Retention and disposal:

Records are retained and disposed of in accordance with items 23.a, 23.b, and 24 of the General Records Schedule as approved by the Archivist of the United States.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Security and Emergency Planning Staff, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Same as the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing to the System Manager with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the name, title and organization of the employee, a notarized signature, and the general subject matter of the inquiry. The requestor will also provide a return address for transmitting a reply. Requests for copies of investigative reports must be directed to the Office of Personnel Management, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or other Federal investigative agencies, as appropriate.

Contesting record procedures:

Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system are (a) individuals covered by the system and (b) those individuals (informants) contacted by the Federal investigators who furnished information in the background investigation.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsection (d) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 533 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/JMD–010

System name:

Document Information System (DIS).

System location:

U.S. Department of Justice; 10th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Employees of the Department of Justice who have been designated by the Attorney General as authorized to classify documents. Employees of the Department of Justice who have been delegated classifying authority by designation of the Attorney General. Individuals (mostly aliens) about whom documents exist which have been classified in the interest of national security.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains records of all documents classified by Department of Justice employees. The system also contains a record on all Department of Justice employees (from January 1, 1973 to present) who have or have had the authority to classify documents.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system was established and is maintained pursuant to Executive Order 11652.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The system is routinely used by the Interagency Classification Review Committee, the Department of Justice Security Staff, and the Department of Justice Review Committee.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information is stored in machine readable form on magnetic tape. A copy of the data capture form is maintained in the originating office for two weeks, then destroyed. The original data capture form is maintained at the Department until data contained therein has been successfully processed, then the form is destroyed.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved in any form for all routine uses. Information may be retrieved for non-routine uses with the approval of the Director, Central Management Services Staff, and in accordance with the provisions of the Privacy Act.

Safeguards:

Access to information contained in the system is controlled by the Director, Systems Operations Staff, Justice Management Division. Access is normally limited to routine users and members of the Systems Operations Staff, on a "need-to-know" basis.

Retention and disposal:

Records contained in the system are retained indefinitely. The system of records is never purged and no disposal schedule is required.

JUSTICE/JMD-014

System name: Department of Justice Relocation Management Services Information System.

System location:

Office of Personnel and Administration, Justice Management Division (JMD), 10th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Department of Justice (DOJ) employees who have been authorized by their employing organizations to transfer to an alternate location for the benefit of the Government and who have chosen to utilize the relocation services offered by a firm under contract to DOJ.

Categories of records in the system:

Manual and automated records will contain abbreviated data, e.g., relocation number, name, social security number, employing organization, address, telephone number, descriptive housing data, and billing information.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

28 U.S.C. 509 and 510; 5 U.S.C. 301; 44 U.S.C. 3101; and 28 CFR 0.75.

Purpose(s):

The purpose of this system is to maintain information on home sale transactions for those individuals employed by DOJ who are authorized to use home sale services when being transferred for the benefit of the Government. To enable DOJ to administer its relocation management program and provide home sale services for transferring employees, it is necessary for a system of records to be maintained. This system will be maintained for DOJ by a contractor offering relocation services designed specifically for DOJ. The system will allow tracking of employee home sale transactions from initial employee notification of eligibility, through appraisal, offer, acquisition, and final contractor billing and payment. Such information is essential to the conduct and monitoring of relocation services. In accordance with subsection (m) of the Privacy Act, DOJ shall cause the requirements of the Privacy Act to apply to this system.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Primary users of this system will be DOJ and contractor employees working directly for DOJ. The system will be used to manage relocation services within DOJ and to monitor the status of home sale transactions for employees using the relocation management program.

Release of Information to a Court or Adjudicative Body:

Records or information may be disclosed as a routine in use a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which DOJ is authorized to appear when any of the following is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by DOJ to be arguably relevant to the litigation: the DOJ or any of its subdivisions; and DOJ employee in his or her official capacity or in his or her individual capacity were DOJ agrees to represent the employee; or the United States where the DOJ determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions.

Release of Information to the News Media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from the system of records maintained by DOJ unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of Information to Members of Congress:

Information contained in the system of records maintained by DOJ may be disclosed as is necessary to respond appropriately to congressional inquiries on behalf of constituents.

Release of Information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record from a system of record may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and to GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of Title 44 of the United States Code.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records will be stored on magnetic discs and in file folders.

Retrievability:

Records will be indexed and retrieved by name, relocation number and type of transaction.

Safeguards:

Access to computerized records will be restricted to DOJ and contractor relocation management personnel through the use of assigned codes. Paper records will be secured in locked file cabinets.

Retention and disposal:

A detailed records retention plan and disposal schedule is being developed by NARA and DOJ.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Finance Staff, Office of the Comptroller, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Room 1111, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Direct all inquiries to the system manager identified above. Clearly mark the letter and envelope "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request."

Record access procedures: Make all requests for access in writing and clearly mark letter and envelope "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request." Clearly indicate name of the requestor, nature of the record sought, approximate date of the record, and provide the required verification of identity (28 CFR 16.41 (d)). Direct all requests to the system manager identified above, and provide a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Direct all requests to contest or amend information to the system manager identified above. State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reason for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought. Clearly mark the letter and envelop "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request."

Record source categories:

The relocating employee will be either the primary source of records in this system or will be actively and directly involved with any information provided by other sources i.e., personnel files, office records, contractor files.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

JUSTICE/OAG-001

System name:

General Files System of the Office of the Attorney General.

System location:

Office of the Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The system encompasses individuals who relate to official Federal investigations, policy decisions, and administrative matters of such significance that the Attorney General maintains information indexed to the name of that individual including, but not limited to, subjects of litigation, targets of investigations, Members and staff members of Congress, upper-echleon government officials, and individuals of national prominence or notoriety.

Categories of records in the system:

Records may include case files, litigation materials, exhibits, internal memoranda or reports, or other records on a given subject or individual. Records vary in number and kind according to the breadth of the Attorney General's responsibilities (28 CFR 0.5) and are limited to those which are of such significance that the Attorney General has investigative, policy, law enforcement, or administrative interest. An index to these records is described under the caption "Retrievability."

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These records are maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records may be disclosed to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy.

These records may be disclosed to a Member of Congress or staff acting on the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information for investigative or policy decisionmaking purposes or to provide constituent assistance.

These records may be disclosed to members of the judicial branch of the Federal Government in response to a specific request where disclosure appears relevant to the authorized function of the recipient judicial office or court system.

These records may be disclosed to any civil or criminal law enforcement authorities, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, which require information relevant to a civil or criminal investigation.

These records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

These records may be disclosed to officials and employees of the White House or any Federal agency which requires information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring, appointment, or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the conducting of a security or suitability investigation, the classifying of a job, or the issuance of a grant or benefit.

These records may be disclosed to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies or associations which require information concerning the eligibility or suitability of an individual for a license or permit.

These records may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of the Attorney General is authorized to appear when (a) the Office of the Attorney General, or any subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of the Office of the Attorney General in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of the Office of the Attorney General in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where the Office of the Attorney General determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Office of the Attorney General to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are stored in paper folders and on index cards. As of May 1982, the index record is also stored on magnetic disks.

Retrievability:

Records created before 1975 are indexed and retrieved manually by subject title. Records created since 1975 are indexed and retrieved manually by subject title, individual's name, the Department component which created the record, and by name of the Attorney General under whose administration the records were created. As of May 1982 records may also be retrieved through a computerized indexing system.

Safeguards:

Records are maintained in locked cabinets stored in a locked room or, in the case of those records that are classified, in safes or vaults stored in a locked room. The computer is also maintained in a locked room. The computer has a key lock and may be accessed only by persons with a Top Secret clearance by use of a code.

Retention and disposal:

Records are kept indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Special Assistant to the Attorney General, Office of the Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the system manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access to records from this system in writing to the system manager and clearly mark both the letter and the envelope "Privacy Act Request."

Contesting record procedures:

Make all requests to contest or amend information maintained in the system in writing to the system manager. State clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include individuals, State, local and foreign government agencies as appropriate, the executive and legislative branches of the Federal Government, and interested third parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2), and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in a record pertaining to a particular individual relates to official Federal investigations and law enforcement matters. Those files indexed under an individual's name which concern policy formulation or administrative matters are not being exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2) or (k)(5).

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The system encompasses all Assistant United States Attorneys.

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records consists of records folders which may contain up to a total of five sections. The personnel section contains personnel records such as completed Civil Service forms, letters of recommendation, law school grade transcripts, appointment letters, appointment affidavits, bar affidavits, locator forms and personnel action forms. The character section contains completed or portions of ongoing background investigations and matters related thereto. The Congressional section contains Congressional and other political type recommendations regarding appointment. The protest section contains correspondence, if any exists, protesting the appointment of applicants. The complaint section contains correspondence from individuals or groups complaining about office holders. Rarely does a personnel folder contain more than the personnel and character sections.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These records are maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records are used only by Department of Justice personnel. Information contained in a folder may be used as the basis for answering future inquires from other government agencies about a former assistant's qualifications. The personnel section may be made available to other federal agencies, at their request, upon the transfer of the assistant to such an agency.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute and unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to Member of Congress of staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration: A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Release of information to civil or criminal law enforcement agencies: Information may be disclosed to any civil or criminal law enforcement agency, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, which requires information relevant to a civil or criminal investigation.

Release of information to agencies regarding the hiring or retention of employees: Information may be disclosed to officials and employees of the White House or any Federal agency which requires information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring, appointment, or retention of an employee; the issuance of a security clearance; the execution of a security or suitability investigation; the classification of a job; or the issuance of a grant or benefit.

Release of information to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies: Information may be disclosed to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies or associations which require information concerning the suitability or eligibility of an individual for a license or permit.

Release of information before a court or adjudicative body: Information may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of the Deputy Attorney General (ODAG) is authorized to appear when (a) ODAG, or any subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of ODAG in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of ODAG in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where ODAG determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by ODAG to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are stored in paper folders.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by use of the assistant's name, as the folders are filed alphabetically by name.

Safeguards:

These records are maintained in cabinets stored in a locked room.

Retention and disposal:

These records are retained until the subjects of the files resign or otherwise leave their offices for non-federal government employment. In that instance, the personnel section is sent to the St. Louis Records Center for an indefinite period. If the assistant transfers to another agency of the federal government, the personnel section is sent to the gaining agency. All other sections of the folder are destroyed six months after the assistant leaves office.

System manager(s) and address:

Associate Deputy Attorney General, Office of the Deputy Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the System Manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (d)(1) and (e)(1) of section 552a, Title 5, United States Code, by the Attorney General under the authority of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) to the extent therein permitted.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to non-exempt portions of records from this system should be directed orally or in writing to the System Manager. When requests are in writing, the envelope and letter should clearly be marked 'Privacy Access Request.'

Contesting record procedures:

Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

JUSTICE/DAG-011

System name:

Miscellaneous Attorney Personnel Records System.

System location:

Office of the Deputy Attorney General United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Persons who applied to or are employed by the Department of Justice as attorneys and are not included within another OAAG system.

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records consists of records folders which may contain up to a total of four sections. The personnel section contains records such as resumes, letter of recommendation, law school grade transcripts, completed Civil Service forms, and related personnel matters. The character section contains completed or portions of ongoing background investigations and matters related thereto. The Congressional section contains Congressional and other political type recommendations regarding appointment. The protest section contains correspondence, if any exists, protesting the appointment of applicants. The complaint section contains correspondence from individuals or groups complaining about office holders and may contain matters relating to the disposition of those complaints. Rarely does a personnel folder contain more than the personnel and character sections.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The records are maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records are used only by Department of Justice personnel. Information contained in a folder may be used as the basis for answering future inquiries from other government agencies about a former employee's qualifications. The personnel section may be made available to other federal agencies, at their request, upon the transfer of an employee to such an agency.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration: A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Release of information to civil or criminal law enforcement agencies; Information may be disclosed to any civil or criminal law enforcement agency, whether Federal, State, local, of foreign, which requires information relevant to a civil or criminal investigation.

Release of information to agencies regarding the hiring or retention of employees: Information may be disclosed to officials and employees of the White House or any Federal agency which requires information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring, appointment, or retention of an employee; the issuance of a security clearance; the execution of a security or suitability investigation; the classification of a job; or the issuance of a grant or benefit.

Release of information to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies: Information may be disclosed to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies or associations which require information concerning the suitability or eligibility of an individual for a license or permit.

Release of information before a court or adjudicative body: Information may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of the Deputy Attorney General (ODAG) is authorized to appear when (a) ODAG, or any subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of ODAG in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of ODAG in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where ODAG determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by ODAG to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are stored in paper folders.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by use of an individual's name, as the folders are filed alphabetically by name.

Safeguards:

These records are maintained in cabinets stored in a lockable room.

Retention and disposal:

These records are retained until the subjects of the files resign or otherwise leave their offices for non-federal employment. In that instance, the personnel section is sent to the St. Louis Records Center for an indefinite period. If the individual transfers to another agency of the Federal government, the personnel section is sent to the gaining agency. All other sections of the folder are destroyed six months after the individual leaves office. The entire folders of individuals who were applicants and were not offered employment or did not accept employment with the Department are destroyed one year after final action is taken on the application.

System manager(s) and address:

Associate Deputy Attorney General, Office of the Deputy Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the System Manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (d)(1) and (e)(1) of section 552a, Title 5, United States Code, by the Attorney General under the authority of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) to the extent therein permitted.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to non-exempt portions of records from this system should be directed orally or in writing to the System Manager. When requests are in writing, the envelope and letter should clearly be marked "Privacy Access Request."

Contesting record procedures:

Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Non-exempt sources of information contained in this system include the individuals who are the subjects of the records, government agencies as appropriate, and interested third parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (d)(1) and (e)(1) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

General Files System of the Office of the Deputy Attorney General.

System location:

Office of the Deputy Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The system encompasses individuals who relate to official Federal investigations, policy decisions, and administrative matters of such significance that the Deputy Attorney General maintains information indexed to the name of that individual, including, but not limited to, subjects of litigation, targets of investigations, Members and staff members of Congress, upper-echelon government officials, and individuals of national prominence or notoriety.

Categories of records in the system:

Records may include case files, litigation materials, exhibits, internal memoranda and reports, or other records on a given subject or individual. Records vary in number and kind according to the breadth of the Deputy Attorney General's responsibilities (28 CFR 0.15) and are limited to those which are of such significance that the Deputy Attorney General has investigative, policy, law enforcement, or administrative interest. An index to these records is described under the caption "Retrievability."

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These records are maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records may be disclosed to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy.

These records may be disclosed to a Member of Congress or staff acting on the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information for investigative or policy decisionmaking purposes or to provide constituent assistance.

These records may be disclosed to members of the judicial branch of the Federal Government in response to a specific request where disclosure appears relevant to the authorized function of the recipient judicial office or court system.

These records may be disclosed to any civil or criminal law enforcement authorities, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, which require information relevant to a civil or criminal investigation.

These records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

These records may be disclosed to officials and employees of the White House or any Federal agency which requires information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring, appointment, or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the conducting of a security or suitability investigation, the classifying of a job, or the issuance of a grant or benefit.

These records may be disclosed to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies or associations which require information concerning the eligibility or suitability of an individual for a license or permit.

These records may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of the Deputy Attorney General is authorized to appear when (a) the Office of the Deputy Attorney General, or any subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of the Office of the Deputy Attorney General in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of the Office of the Deputy Attorney General in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where the Office of the Deputy Attorney General determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Office of the Deputy Attorney General to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are stored in paper folders and on index cards. As of April, 1982, the index record is also stored on magnetic disks.

Retrievability:

Deputy Attorney General records created prior to 1973 were incorporated into Attorney General files, and are retrievable from the index to the General Files System of the Office of the Attorney General. Records created by the Office of the Deputy Attorney General since 1973 are indexed and retrieved manually by use of the subject title, individual's name, or Department component which created the record. As of April 1982, records may also be retrieved through a computerized logging system.

Safeguards:

Records are maintained in locked cabinets stored in a locked room or, in the case of those records that are classified, in safes or vaults stored in a locked room. The computer is also maintained in a locked room. The computer has a key lock and may be accessed only by persons with a Top Secret clearance by use of a code.

Retention and disposal:

Records are kept indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Associate Deputy Attorney General, Office of the Deputy Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the system manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2), and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access to records from this system in writing to the system manager, and clearly mark both the letter and envelope "Privacy Act Request."

Contesting record procedures:

Make all requests to contest or amend information maintained in the system in writing to the system manager. State clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include individuals, State, local and foreign government agencies as appropriate, the executive and legislative branches of the Federal Government, and interested third parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2), and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirement of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. THESE EXEMPTIONS APPLY ONLY TO THE EXTENT THAT INFORMATION IN A RECORD PERTAINING TO A PARTICULAR INDIVIDUAL RELATES TO OFFICIAL FEDERAL INVESTIGATIONS AND LAW ENFORCEMENT MATTERS. THOSE FILES INDEXED UNDER AN INDIVIDUAL'S NAME AND WHICH CONCERN POLICY FORMULATION OR ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS ARE NOT BEING EXEMPTED PURSUANT TO 5 U.S.C. 552(J)(2), (K)(1), (K)(2) OR (K)(5).

OFFICE OF LEGAL COUNSEL

JUSTICE/OLC-001

System name:

Attorney Assignment Reports.

System location:

Office of Legal Counsel, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Attorneys employed in the Office of Legal Counsel, U.S. Department of Justice at the time each report was filed.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of memoranda addressed to the Assistant Attorney General by each staff attorney at periodic intervals listing current assignments. Some reports also list completed assignments, projected workload and anticipated leave.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These records are kept for administrative convenience pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301 and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information from the system is not used outside the Department except to advise Executive Branch agencies as to the identity of the attorney working on a specific assignment, when inquiry is made.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress. Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration: A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The Assistant Attorney General, each of his Deputies, the Administrative Officer and the attorney who filed the report each have copies. Some are retained chronologically in file folders, some alphabetically in note books.

Retrievability:

Information may be retrieved by name, alphabetically, or chronologically.

Safeguards:

Information is maintained in offices occupied during the day and locked at night.

Retention and disposal:

The Assistant Attorney General's file is chronological and is maintained for three months. Attorneys may retain their copies indefinitely, others are kept for about two years and disposed of.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager, the Administrative Officer or the two Deputies at the above address.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to a record from this system may be made in person or in writing, specifying the name of the attorney and the dates of reports requested.

Contesting record procedures:

Any requests for correction should be addressed to the System Manager.

Record source categories:

Information is supplied by the attorneys employed by the Office of Legal Counsel on the date the report is filed.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

Justice/OLC-002

System name:

Office of Legal Counsel Central File.

System location:

U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Legal Counsel, 10th and Consititution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The system will permit retrieval of information concerning persons mentioned in the legal opinions, memoranda, correspondence, testimony and other writings of the Office of Legal Counsel. These will include:

(A) Addresses, authors and employees of the Office of Legal Counsel whose name appears in memoranda, opinions, correspondence, testimony and other writings of the Office;

(B) Individuals who are the subject of opinions, particularly on such subjects as conflict of interest, employee standards of conduct, and immigration;

(C) Attendees at meetings described in a memorandum included in the file;

(D) Litigants and judges identified in connection with reported court decisions and pending cases described in memoranda; and

(E) Other individuals identified in connection with questions presented to the Office of Legal Counsel for resolution or comment.

Categories of records in the system:

The system consists of memoranda, correspondence, testimony and other writings of the Office of Legal Counsel from 1945 to the present.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is maintained pursuant to the responsibilities of the Office of Legal Counsel set forth in 28 CFR 0.25.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information contained in this system is provided to the following categories of users for the purposes stated:

(A) Access to the computerized files of the Office of Legal Counsel will be confined to employees of the Office of Legal Counsel and other employees of the Department of Justice with specific permission.

(B) With the approval of the agency that requested the opinion, selected recent opinions of the Office of Legal Counsel will be published for general use, but personal information about individuals will be deleted if release of that information would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;

(C) Unpublished opinions of the Office of Legal Counsel are ordinarily made available upon request to third parties consistent with the Freedom of Information Act.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The indices are maintained on 5 x 7 cards in a master subject-matter index on all Office of Legal Counsel memoranda, opinions, correspondence, testimony and other writings. In addition, to facilitate Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act searches, an alphabetical assortment of cards has been established within the immigration and conflict of interest opinion indices which contain the names of individuals who are the subjects of these opinions. These are, in effect, cross-indices to a small portion of the Office of Legal Counsel's overall opinions that are otherwise indexed and retrieved according to subject matter. These indices are maintained to assist in the retrieval of opinions and memoranda from chronological files. However, because the system is undergoing gradual conversion to a computerized system to facilitate legal research, some opinions are also now stored on magnetic disks. Even though the software design creates the capability for name retrieval, the purpose of the design is to facilitate retrieval by legal subject matter and the Office of Legal Counsel will continue to utilize the system in this manner.

Retrievability:

The alphabetical card index on conflict of interest and immigration opinions will be retrieved by name. In addition, while that information which has been entered into the computer to date may be retrieved by name, all information, except that on conflict of interest and immigration opinions, will ordinarily continue to be retrieved by legal subject matter since the Office seldom has need to focus on a name in legal research.

Safeguards:

Index cards and chronological files are kept in locked offices when unattended. Access is restricted to those personnel with a need to know.

The compilation of Office of Legal Counsel opinions available on magnetic tape is subject to two access limitations designed to insure that only authorized personnel of the Office of Legal Counsel have access. First, the opinions in the computer system can be retrieved only by those persons having a specified identification number, and numbers are assigned only to personnel of the Office of Legal Counsel. Second, there is an access code word in addition to the identification number required for access to the opinions, and the code word is made known only to the Office of Legal Counsel personnel.

During the period in which new opinions are being computerized an exception to these access restrictions is made so that the contracting assistant in the Justice Management Division who is overseeing the computerization also has access to the opinions.

Retention and disposal:

The records will be maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Administrative Officer, Office of Legal Counsel, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be addressed to the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, at the address above.

Record access procedures:

Same as above.

Contesting record procedures:

Same as above.

Record source categories:

General legal research sources and individuals and agencies requesting opinions from the Office of Legal Counsel.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

Release of information to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies: Information may be disclosed to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies or associations which require information concerning the suitability or eligibility of an individual for a license or permit.

Release of information before a court or adjudicative body: Information may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of Legal Policy is authorized to appear when (a) the Office of Legal Policy, or anu subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of the Office of Legal Policy in his or her official capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where the Office of Legal Policy determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Office of Legal Policy to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are maintained in paper folders.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by use of the name of the judge, as these records are filed alphabetically.

Safeguards:

These records are maintained in cabinets stored in a locked room.

Retention and disposal:

The personnel section of the folders of United States Supreme Court Judges are sent to the National Archives upon the death of the judge. All other sections are retained indefinitely as are the entire records folders of all other United States Judges.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Attorney General, Office of the Legal Policy, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the System Manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (d)(1) and (e)(1) of section 552a, Title 5, United States Code, by the Attorney General under the authority of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) to the extent therein permitted.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to non-exempt portions of records from this system should be directed orally or in writing to the System Manager. When requests are in writing, the envelope and letter should be marked 'Privacy Access Request.'

Contesting record procedures:

Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Non-exempt sources of information contained in this system include the general public, organizations, associations, the subjects of the records themselves, government agencies as appropriate, and other interested parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (d)(1) and (e)(1) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

JUSTICE/OLP-003

System name:

General Files System of the Office of Legal Policy.

System location:

Office of the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Policy, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The system encompasses individuals who relate to official Federal investigations, policy decisions, and administrative matters of such significance that the Assistant Attorney General maintains information indexed to the name of that individual, including, but not limited to, subjects of litigation, targets of investigations, Members and staff members of Congress, upper-echelon government officials, and individuals of national prominence or notoriety.

Categories of records in the system:

Records may include case files, litigation materials, exhibits, internal memoranda and reports, or other records on a given subject or individual. Records vary in number and kind according to the breath of the Assistant Attorney General's responsibilities (28 CFR 0.23). Records include those of such significance that the Assistant Attorney General has policy or administrative interest, and those which cover investigative or law enforcement cases for which the Assistant Attorney General is asked to provide an analysis and establish future policy direction. A computerized index record containing the subject title and/or individual's name is also maintained.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These records are maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records may be disclosed to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy.

These records may be disclosed to a Member of Congress or staff acting on the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information for investigative or policymaking purposes or to provide constituent assistance.

These records may be disclosed to members of the judicial branch of the Federal Government in response to a specific request where disclosure appears relevant to the authorized function of the recipient judicial office or court system.

These records may be disclosed to any civil or criminal law enforcement authorities, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, which requires information relevant to a civil or criminal investigation.

These records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

These records may be disclosed to officials and employees of the White House or any Federal agency which requires information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring, appointment, or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the conducting of a security or suitability investigation, the classifying of a job, or the issuance of a grant or benefit.

These records may be disclosed to Federal, State, and local licensing agencies or associations which require information concerning the eligibility or suitability of an individual for a license or permit.

These records may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of Legal Policy is authorized to appear when (a) the Office of Legal Policy, or any subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of the Office of Legal Policy in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of the Office of Legal Policy in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where the Office of Legal Policy determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Office of Legal Policy to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are stored in paper folders and on index cards. As of August 1982, the index record is also stored on magnetic disks.

Retrievability:

Records may be retrieved by subject title or individual's name.

Safeguards:

Records are maintained in cabinets stored in a locked room or, in the case of those records that are classified, in safes or vaults. The computer is also maintained in a locked room. The computer has a key lock and may be accessed only by persons with a Top Secret clearance by use of a code.

Retention and disposal:

Records are kept indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Deputy Director, Office of Information and Privacy, Office of Legal Policy, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the system manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2) and (k)(5).

Record access procedures:

Make requests for access to records from this system in writing to the system manager, and clearly mark both the letter and the envelope "Privacy Act Request."

Contesting record procedures:

Make all requests to contest or amend information maintained in the system in writing to the system manager. State clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include individuals, local, State and foreign government agencies as appropriate, the executive and legislative branches of the Federal Government, and interested third parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2) and (k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register. These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in a record pertaining to a particular individual relates to official Federal investigations and law enforcement matters. Those files indexed under an individual's name and which concern policy formulation or administrative matters are not being exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2) or (k)(5).

JUSTICE/OLP-004

System name:

Declassification Review System.

System location:

Office of Information and Privacy, Office of Legal Policy, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

This system encompasses: (1) Individuals who (under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) or Privacy Act) appeal from the denial of access to classified Department of Justice documents; (2) individuals who (under the FOIA of Privacy Act) request declassification of and access to classified documents from the Office of the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, Associate Attorney General, or Legal Policy; and (3) individuals who (under Executive Order 12356) request declassification of and access to classified Department of Justice documents which are maintained in a Presidential library.

Categories of records in the system:

Records consist of (1) copies of classified documents which originated in any component of the Department of Justice and which were denied by a component under the FOIA or Privacy Act, and classified notes and cover sheets created during the declassification review of those documents; (2) classified Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, Associate Attorney General, and Office of Legal Policy documents which are requested under the FOIA or Privacy Act, classified notes created during the declassification review of these documents, correspondence with other Federal agencies concerning the declassification or release of information which originated with the agencies or in which they have a substantial interest, and copies of responses to the requesters; and (3) copies of final declassification determinations by Department components of Department documents maintained in Presidential libraries as required by Executive Order 12356, Section 3.4(a).

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These records are maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301.

Purpose(s):

Classified Department records identified under category (1) above are reviewed by the Attorney General's Department Review Committee (DRC) to determine whether or not they continue to be properly classified pursuant to Executive Order 12356. The DRC was established to resolve issues concerning the administration of the President's Executive Order on National Security information. DRC members consist of representatives from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Criminal Division, Justice Management Division, and the Offices of Legal Counsel, Intelligence Policy and Review and the Deputy Attorney General. Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, Associate Attorney General, and Office of Legal Policy records identified under categories (1) and (2) above are reviewed by the Office of Legal Policy to determine whether the records should be declassified and considered for release pursuant to the FOIA or Privacy Act. Copies of final declassification determinations identified under catetory (3) above are simply stored in the Classification Review Unit of the Office of Legal Policy. The Unit serves as the routing point for Department of Justice documents referred by a Presidential library for declassification review.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records may be disclosed to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

These records may be disclosed to a Member of Congress or staff acting on the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information for investigative or policy decisionmaking purposes or to provide constituent assistance.

These records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

These records may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Office of Information and Privacy is authorized to appear when (a) the Office of Information and Privacy, or any subdivision thereof, or (b) any employee of the Office of Information and Privacy in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of the Department of Justice in his or her individual capacity where the Department has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, where the Office of Information and Privacy determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Office of Information and Privacy to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are stored in file folders in cabinets or safes.

Retrievability:

These records are indexed and retrieved manually by the individual's name or case file number.

Safeguards:

Classified records are stored in safes with combination locks. Only those persons with Top Secret security clearances who are responsible for conducting declassification reviews have access to the combinations of these safes. The safes are stored in rooms with combination or deadbolt locks. Unclassified records are stored in cabinets in these same rooms.

Retention and disposal:

Records are kept indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Classification Review Unit, Office of Information and Privacy, Office of Legal Policy, United States Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the system manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access to records from this system in writing to the system manager and clearly mark both the letter and the envelope "Privacy Act Request." Provide the full name and notarized signature of the individual who is the subject of the request, and a return address.

Contesting record procedures:

Make all requests to contest or amend information maintained in this system in writing to the system manager. State clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

The records in this system are generally copies of records maintained in other systems of records of the Department of Justice. Additional records consist of letters from the individuals covered by the system.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsection (c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

OFFICE OF PARDON ATTORNEY

JUSTICE/OPA-001

System name:

Executive Clemency Files.

System location:

Office of the Pardon Attorney (OPA), U.S. Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who have applied for or been granted Executive clemency.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains the individual petitions for Executive clemency (Forms OPA-6 or OPA-13) and accompanying oath and character affidavits (Form OPA-11), investigatory material, evaluative reports, official and other correspondence, both solicited and unsolicited, and inter-agency and intra-agency correspondence and memoranda relating to individual petitions for clemency. The system includes Presidential Clemency Board files transferred to the OPA upon termination of the Board on September 15, 1975.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is established and maintained in accordance with the United States Constitution, Article II, Section 2; Executive Order of the President dated June 16, 1893; Order of the Attorney General No. 1011-83, 48 FR 22290 (1983), as codified in 28 CFR 1.1 et seq.; Order of the Attorney General No. 1012-83, 48 FR 22290 (1983), as codified in 28 CFR 0.35 and 0.36; E.O. 11878 dated September 10, 1975; and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Purpose(s):

Executive clemency files are maintained by the Attorney General or his designee to investigate each petition for Executive clemency, to review each petition and the information developed by the investigation and to determine whether, in his judgment, the request for clemency is of sufficient merit to warrant a recommendation for favorable action by the President. The information also is used by Federal parole authorities and other Department of Justice employees to assist them in the performance of their official duties.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records in the system may be used as follows: (a) To provide information to the President and members of his staff to facilitate the consideration of the Attorney General's reommendation regarding each petition for Executive clemency; (b) to prepare notices to the public of the name of each grantee of clemency, date of Presidential action, nature of clemency granted, nature of grantee's offense, date and place of sentencing, description of sentence imposed, and names of character affiants and interested parties; to disclose similar information to that specified above with respect to clemency denials of general public interest if the disclosure does not constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy; (c) to prepare bound and indexed volumes containing photocopies of the official warrant of clemency granted each recipient of clemency as a public and official record of Presidential action; (d) upon specific request, to advise the requester whether a named person has applied for, been granted or denied clemency, the date thereof, and the nature of the clemency granted or denied; (e) upon specific request, to make closed files available for historical research purposes when in the public interest and in conformity with Department of Justice policy; (f) to provide information which indicates a violation or apparent violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign; or to provide information either in connection with the solicitation of information necessary and relevant to Executive clemency review or to assist these agencies, where appropriate, in performing their law enforcement responsibilities in situations other than those involving a violation or apparent violation of law, e.g., state parole or clemency review; (g) to provide information to present and former law enforcement and judicial authorities to permit the formulation of comments and recommendations regarding individual clemency matters arising from cases with which they may be familiar; (h) to provide information to assist sentencing authorities in executing appropriate actions subsequent to Presidential clemency decisions; (i) to release information in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the OPA is authorized to appear when (1) one of the following is a party to or has an interest in the litigation: i. The OPA; ii. any employee of the OPA in his or her official capacity; iii. any employee of the OPA in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or, iv. the United States where the OPA determines that it is likely to be affected by the litigation; and (2) the records, or information derived therefrom, are determined by the OPA to be arguably relevant to the litigation; (j) to disseminate information to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; (k) to make information available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record; and (l) to make records available to the National Archives and Record Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information in the system is maintained in its original form (i.e., paper letters, notes and memoranda) and stored in locked file cabinets in the OPA and in the Federal Records Center in Suitland, Maryland.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by using a name index to obtain the case file number assigned to each applicant for Executive clemency.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is protected in accordance with Department of Justice security regulations for Privacy Act systems of records. Files are maintained in the OPA or in the Federal Records Center, are not commingled with other Department of Justice records, and are made available only in accordance with the aforementioned routine uses. When not in the custody of an appropriate official, records are stored in a central file room protected by an intrusion alarm.

Retention and disposal:

Records are stored in the OPA and closed cases generally are transferred to the Federal Records Center in Suitland, Maryland when five years old. Except for clemency reports which are furnished to the President in connection with clemency application, Presidential responses, warrants or other documents signifying the President's action in a clemency case, and cases which may be designated by the Pardon Attorney as having significant public interest, records are destroyed after 25 years.

System manager(s) and address:

Pardon Attorney, Office of the Pardon Attorney, Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the Pardon Attorney, Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryand 20815.

Record access procedures:

While the Attorney General has exempted Executive Clemency files from the access provisions of the Privacy Act, requests for discretionary releases of records shall be made in writing to the system manager listed above with the envelope and letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the general subject mater of the document. Provide full name, current address, date and place of birth, signature (which must be notarized) and a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

While the Attorney General has exempted Executive Clemency files from the correction (contest and amendment) provisions of the Privacy Act, requests for the discretionary correction (contest and amendment) of records should be directed to the system manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information are the OPA staff, individual applicants for clemency and their representatives, Federal Bureau of Investigation or other official investigatory reports, Bureau of Prisons records, Armed Forces reports, probation or parole reports, and reports from individuals or non-Federal organizations, both solicited and unsolicited.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsection (d) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

The system contains miscellaneous correspondence originated by OPA and received by OPA, either directly or by referral, excluding correspondence pertaining to (1) individuals who have formally applied for or received Executive clemency and (2) individuals who have made formal requests for records under the Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is established and maintained in accordance with the United States Constitution, Article II, Section 2; Executive Order of the President dated June 16, 1893; Order of the Attorney General No. 1011-83, 48 FR 22290 (1983), as codified in 28 CFR 1.1 et seq.; Order of the Attorney General No. 1012-83, 48 FR 22290 (1983), as codified in 28 CFR 0.35 and 0.36; E.O. 11878 dated September 10, 1975; and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Purpose(s):

Records in the system are used by employees in the performance of their duties for reference and informational purposes to facilitate efficient, accurate and consistent responses to oral and written inquiries, particularly successive inquiries, and to provide access for a reasonable period of time to any relevant and necessary information which may assist in formulating policy and/or in considering potential candidates for Executive clemency.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records in the system may be used as follows: (a) To provide information to the President and members of his staff which may be of political, policy or official interest and/or which may assist them in formulating policy decisions regarding the exercise of Executive clemency; (b) to release information in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the OPA is authorized to appear when (1) one of the following is a party to or has an interest in the litigation: i. The OPA; ii. any employee of the OPA in his or her official capacity; iii. any employee of the OPA in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or, iv. the United States where the OPA determines that it is likely to be affected by the litigation; and (2) the records, or information derived therefrom, are determined by the OPA to be arguably relevant to the litigation; (c) to disseminate information to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; (d) to make information available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record; (e) to make records available to the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information in the system is maintained in its original form (i.e., paper letters, notes and memoranda) and stored in locked file cabinets in the OPA.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by the name of the individuals covered by the system.

Safeguards:

Information in the system is protected in accordance with Department of Justice security regulations for Privacy Act systems of records. Records are maintained in the OPA and are not commingled with other Department of Justice records. When not in the custody of an appropriate official, records are stored in a central file room protected by key locks and an intrusion alarm.

Retention and disposal:

Records are destroyed at the end of the calendar year following the calendar year in which they were received (incoming correspondence). If an individual covered by the system formally applies for or receives Executive clemency, all records pertaining to that individual will be transferred immediately to the Executive Clemency Files (JUSTICE/OPA-001).

System manager(s) and address:

Pardon Attorney, Office of the Pardon Attorney, Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the Pardon Attorney, Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Record access procedures:

Requests for records in the system shall be made in writing with the envelope and letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request" and shall be addressed to the system manager listed above. Include in the request the general subject matter and date of correspondence. Provide full name, current address, date and place of birth, signature (which must be notarized) and a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Requests to contest or amend records shall be addressed in writing to the system manager and shall state clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

Sources of information are the individuals covered and the OPA staff.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/OPA-003

System name:

Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOI/PA) Request File.

System location:

Office of the Pardon Attorney (OPA), U.S. Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who have submitted requests pursuant to the FOI/PA (5 U.S.C. 552 and 552a) for copies of records in the custody of the OPA.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains the FOI/PA requests and a copy of the outgoing response advising the requester of the disposition of the request. The system includes copies of the requested records which have not been released either in whole or in part. In addition, it also contains copies of memoranda addressed to the Office of Information and Privacy prepared in connection with any administrative appeals of the Pardon Attorney's determination, and copies of the pleadings filed in connection with any judicial appeals.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The system is established and maintained in accordance with the United States Constitution, Article II, Section 2; Executive Order of the President dated June 16, 1893; Order of the Attorney General No. 1011-83, 48 FR 22290 (1983), as codified in 28 CFR 1.1 et seq.; Order of the Attorney General No. 1012-83, 48 FR 22290 (1983), as codified in 28 CFR 0.35 and 0.36; E.O. 1187 dated September 10, 1975; and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Purpose(s):

The FOI/PA Request File is maintained to facilitate complete, accurate and consistent responses to written FOI/PA requests and to expedite response time. The system also assists the OPA in compiling its contribution to the Department of Justice annual FOI/PA statistical reports and enables it to readily determine that portion of its resources devoted to FOI/PA processing. The FOI/PA Request File also aids in processing administrative and judicial appeals of access and amendment denials.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records in the system may be used as follows: (a) To release information in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the OPA is authorized to appear when (1) one of the following is a party to or has an interest in the litigation: i. The OPA; ii. any employee of the OPA in his or her official capacity; iii. any employee of the OPA in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or iv. the United States where the OPA determines that it is likely to be affected by the litigation; and (2) the records, or information derived therefrom, are determined by the OPA to be arguably relevant to the litigation; (b) to make available information to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; (c) to provide information to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record; (d) to release records to the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information in the system is maintained in its original form (i.e., paper letters, notes and memoranda) and stored in locked file cabinets in the OPA.

Retrievability:

Records are retrieved by the name of the individual submitting the FOI/PA request.

Safeguards:

Records in the system are protected in accordance with Department of Justice security regulations for Privacy Act systems of records. Records are maintained in the OPA and are not commingled with other Department of Justice records. When not in the custody of an appropriate official, records are stored in a central file room protected by key locks and an intrusion alarm.

Retention and disposal:

Records in the system are retained according to General Records Schedule (GRS) No. 14, Informational Services Records, which contains the mandatory records disposition standards for FOI/PA requests as promulgated by the National Archives and Records Administration. GRS 14, item 16a(3)(a) requires that denied requests not appealed be retained for six years and item 17a requires that appealed requests be retained for six years after final agency determination or three years after final adjudication by the courts, whichever is later.

System manager(s) and address:

Pardon Attorney, Office of the Pardon Attorney, Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the Pardon Attorney, Department of Justice, Suite 490, Park Place Building, 5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

Record access procedures:

While the Attorney General has exempted the FOI/PA Request File from the access provisions of the Privacy Act, requests for discretionary releases of records shall be made in writing to the system manager listed above with the envelope and letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the general subject matter of the document. Provide full name, current address, date and place of birth, signature (which must be notarized) and return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

While the Attorney General has exempted the FOI/PA Request File from the correction (contest and amendment) provisions of the Privacy Act, requests for the discretionary correction (contest and amendment) of records should be directed to the system manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the propsoed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information are the FOI/PA requester and the OPA staff.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsection (d) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

OFFICE OF PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

JUSTICE/OPR-001

System name:

Office of Professional Responsibility Record Index.

System location:

U.S. Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records consists of complaints filed against Departmental employees, the results of investigations into those complaints, and actions taken after completion of the investigations. This system also includes all records developed pursuant to special assignments given to the Office of Professional Responsibility by the Attorney General or the Deputy Attorney General as well as records containing information indicating possible misconduct by employees of the Federal Government, other than the Department of Justice, which have been furnished to the Office of Professional Responsibility for referral, if warranted, to the appropriate investigative authority.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

44 U.S.C. 3101 et seq. and 28 CFR 0.39 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A record maintained in this system of records may be disseminated as a routine use of such record as follows: (1) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or a potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (2) in the course of investigating the potential or actual violation of any law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, or during the course of a trial or hearing or the preparation for a trial or hearing for such violations, a record may be disseminated to a Federal, state, local, or foreign agency, or to an individual or organization. If there is reason to believe that such agency, individual, or organization possesses information relating to the investigation, trial, or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an informant; (3) a record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated in an appropriate Federal, state, local or foreign court or grand jury proceeding in accordance with established constitutional, substantive or procedural law or practice; (4) a record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a Federal, state, or local administrative or regulatory proceeding or hearing in accordance with the procedures governing such proceeding or hearing; (5) a record may be disseminated to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of security clearance or the reporting of an investigation of an employee; (6) information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; (7) release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record; (8) a record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information is stored manually in file jackets and electronically in office automation equipment.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved in some instances by the name of the complainant and in some instances by the name of the employee who is the subject of the complaint.

Safeguards:

The information is stored in safes, locked filing cabinets and office automation equipment in a limited access area and is maintained according to applicable departmental security regulations.

Retention and disposal:

Records in this system are retained and disposed of in accordance with the General Records Schedule, Federal Property Management Regulations 101-11.4.

System manager(s) and address:

Counsel on Professional Responsibility, Department of Justice, 10th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address any inquiries to the system manager listed above.

Record access procedures:

The major part of this system is exempted from this requirement under (5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2) or (k)(5). To the extent that this system of seconds is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access and contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to record contained in this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in this request the name of the individual involved, his birth date and place, or any other identifying number or information which may be of assstance in locating the record. The requester will also provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager listed above.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: None.

PAROLE COMMISSION

JUSTICE/PRC-001

System name:

Docket, Scheduling and Control.

System location:

Records are maintained at each of the Regional Offices for inmates incarcerated in and persons under supervision in each region, except for the National Appeals Board docket maintained in Washington. Duplicates of regional materials are maintained in Washington. All requests for records should be made to the appropriate regional office or Headquarters at the following addresses: United States Parole Commission, 2nd and Chestnut Sts. Customs House—7th Floor Philadelphia, PA 19106, United States Parole Commission, 1718 Peachtree St., NW., Suite 250, Atlanta, GA 30309, United States Parole Commission, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase Md. 20815, ATTN: National Appeals Board, United States Parole Commission, Air World Center Suite 220, 10920 Ambassador Dr., Kansas City, Mo. 64153. United States Parole Commission, 525 Griffin St., Suite 820 Dallas, Tex. 75202. United States Parole Commission, 1301 Shoreway Road Fourth Floor, Belmont CA 94002

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Current and former inmates under the custody of the Attorney General who are to be scheduled for hearings under Commission procedures. Former inmates includes those presently under supervision as parolees or mandatory releasees and those against whom a revocation warrant has been issued.

Categories of records in the system:

(a) Docket sheets—Each region and the National Appeals Board in Washington maintains a cumulative series of docket sheets in time sequence showing Commission action. Principal data elements are name and register number of inmate, offense, sentence, and previous and present Action. The appeal docket includes the data and type of appeal in addition to much of the above data. These provide a continual running record of the basic data elements per inmate and former inmate. Docket sheets are used to input this information into a computer program which produces printouts of identical information and certain statistical reports. (b) Hearing schedules—Shortly after inmates are incarcerated, their names appear on an eligibility list prepared by the Bureau of Prisons, for initial parole hearings. Following the hearing, the Commission may order that the inmate be denied parole, granted a presumptive parole date, granted an effective (within six months) parole date or continued to a 15 year reconsideration hearing. Other types of hearings and reviews are provided for in the Code of Federal Regulations as part of parole, rescission or revocation procedures. All of the different types of hearings and reviews are placed on schedules for examiners to process when they visit the various institutions or hold "local" hearings. The data elements are similar to those on the docket but indicate the number and type of hearing or review to be held instead of the result.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

18 U.S.C. 4201–4218, 5005–5041, 28 CFR Part 0, Subpart V, and 28 CFR Part 2.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(a) The dockets provide the basis of answering basic inquiries, mostly from within the Parole Commission, as to when a hearing came up for an individual and what action was taken. The schedules indicate to examiners and prison staff the specific hearings and reviews to be prepared for and held.

(b) In the event that material in this system indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be referred to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(c) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal, State or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant information if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning parole matters.

(d) A record from this system may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

(e) Internal users—Employees of the Department of Justice who have a need to know the information in the performance of their duties.

(f) External users—As noted above, on occasion employees of Federal, State and local enforcement, correctional, prosecutive, or other agencies, and courts may have access to this information.

Release of information to the news media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to members of congress.

Information not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and in response to a communication from the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record may be disclosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information stored in the system is on sheets of paper, one item per line, stored in folders or binders. An experimental program to store such data on tape disk, or microfiche using ADP technology, and to prepare certain computer printouts is in effect in all regions. Data also may be stored on paper printouts through file retention.

Retrievability:

Name, register number, date, institution Commission action, and statistical data as to such actions.

Safeguards:

Copies of dockets, printouts and schedules are not disseminated outside of Commission offices and Bureau of Prisons installations. They are available only to Commission and bureau employees on a "need to know" basis. Information therefrom may be given outside the Department as indicated in the "Routine Uses." If so, a letter will be written covering the item disclosed, date and identity of the recipient. If information must be given over the phone due to urgency, the caller will be identified beforehand and details of the call recorded.

Retention and disposal:

Records in this system are kept for five (5) years after the effective date of the schedule or date of the last item recorded on the docket. They are then shredded and electronically stored records are erased.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Research and Program Development, United States Parole Commission, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to Regional Commissioner at appropriate location. For general inquiries, address system manager. The Attorney General has exempted this system from compliance with the provisions of subsection (d), under the provisions of subsection (j).

Authority for maintenance of the system:

18 U.S.C. 4201–4218, 5005–5041, 28 CFR Part 0, Subpart V, and 28 CFR Part 2.

Purpose(s):

The system constitutes the agency's records upon which it bases all its decisions with respect to every stage of parole consideration from initial hearing to termination of parole supervision. For example, it is used by USPC hearing examiners to perform a prehearing review and to conduct the inmate's initial parole hearing. After that hearing, it is maintained in the appropriate regional office where it provides the principal information source for all decisions leading to parole or denial of parole, and all decisions following release to supervision. It is used at USPC headquarters when appeals come before the National Appeals Board or when needed by legal counsel and others on the headquarters staff. It is used by employees at all levels, including USPC members, to provide information for decisionmaking in every area of USPC responsibility. Files of released inmates are used to make statistical studies of subjects related to parole and revocation. Finally, the file is maintained to provide the rationale of USPC actions when an agency determination is questioned by members of the public or challenged in judicial proceedings.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(a) The system may be used as a source for disclosure of information which is solely a matter of public record and which is traditionally released by the agency to further public understanding of its criminal justice system, including but not limited to offense, sentence data, and prospective release date.

(b) The system may be used to provide an informational source for responding to inquiries from Federal inmates, their families, representatives, and Congressional offices.

(c) Record from the system of records may be routinely disclosed to U.S. Probation Officers for the performance of their official duties.

(d) In the event that the USPC is informed of a violation or suspected violation of law whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be disclosed to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order, issued pursuant thereto.

(e) Records from this system may be disclosed to a Federal, State or local agency or court if that agency or court requests information for an official purpose to which the documents appear to be relevant.

(f) A record from this system may be disclosed to a person or to persons who may be exposed to harm through contact with a particular parolee or mandatory releasee (or to persons in a position to prevent or minimize such harm), if it is deemed to be necessary to give notice that such danger exists.

(g) Lists of names of parolees and mandatory releasees entering a jurisdiction and related information may be disclosed to law enforcement agencies upon request as may be required for the protection of the public for the enforcement of parole conditions.

(h) Disclosure of USPC notices of action may be made (1) by the Office of Public Affairs of the U.S. Department of Justice to the public generally, and (2) by USPC to specific crime victims and witnesses (as those terms are used in the Victim and Witness Protection Act of 1982), from the files of prisoners whose applications for parole have been decided by USPC. The purpose of such disclosure is to further understanding of the criminal justice system by the public and by crime victims and witnesses.

(i) Incidental disclosure of file material may be made during the course of a parole or parole revocation hearing to victims and witnesses of crime and other legitimately interested persons authorized by USPC to attend such hearing, so as to further their understanding of the case to permit their intelligent comment with respect to USPC's decision.

(j) Records which are arguably relevant to litigation in which the Parole Commission has an interest, or to the litigation defense of its present or former employees (if the Department of Justice has agreed to provide representation) may be disclosed from a current or former inmates's or parolee's file by disseminating in proceeding before a court or tribunal at any time deemed appropriate by the Government's attorney.

(k) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a current or former criminal justice official who is a defendant in a lawsuit brought by, or which involves, an individual who is the subject of a file maintained in this system of records, provided that such litigation arises from allegations of misconduct on the part of the defendant while a criminal justice official, and that the records are arguably relevant to the matter in litigation. Such records may be disclosed to the defendant to facilitate the preparation of his or her defense.

(l) Records from this system may be disclosed to any person performing any service for the USPC pursuant to authority exercised by the Chairman under 18 U.S.C. 4204(b) (1) through (8), and for the purposes contemplated by that statute.

(m) A record relating to the identification and location of Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV)-positive parolees (those who test positive for the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome virus) may be disseminated to State or local health departments where permitted by State law.

(n) Where the Commission or supervising probation office believes that a specific person is or has been exposed to a medically recognized risk from an HIV-positive parolee and has not been advised of such risk, a record relating to the identification of that parolee may be released to the parolee's physician or State or local health authorities for the purpose of determining if the physician or health authorities are willing to provide a warning to the third-party at risk and, if willing, for the purpose of providing such a warning.

(o) A record relating to the identification of an HIV-positive parolee may be made to a third party where it is believed that such third party is or has been exposed to medically recognized type of risk from an HIV-positive parolee and has not been advised of such risk. Such disclosures under this routine use would be made only where the parolee's physician or State or local health authorities are unable or unwilling to make such a warning to the third party; such disclosures will be made discreeting and as a confidential communication.

(p) To the extent not prohibited by State law, a record relating to the identification and location of an HIV-positive parolee may be disseminated to those medical facilities, State or local health departments, community organizations or similar groups capable of providing medical help or counseling to HIV-positive parolees.

(q) A record relating to the identification of an HIV-positive parolee may be released to the United States Marshal when the Commission issues a parole violator warrant for the arrest of an HIV-positive parolee.

(r) Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(s) Information nor otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

(t) A record may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Manual requests records are stored in locked safes. Automated requests records are stored on disks.

Retrievability:

Requests reports are filed and retrieved under the names of those persons and individuals identified under the caption "Categories of individuals covered by the system." These records are retrieved by Department personnel to perform their duties, e.g., when subsequent requests are made by the public for copies of their previous requests and responses thereto, or when the requester submits a supplemental request to information clarifying a previous request.

Safeguards:

Access to requests records is limited to Department of Justice personnel who have need for the records to perform their duties. Request files (manual records) are stored in locked safes. All records are stored in an office which is occupied during the day and locked at night.

Retention and disposal:

Records are held at the regional office until termination of sentence then transferred to the Washington National Records Center. Records are destroyed ten years after the case becomes inactive.

System manager(s) and address:

FOIA Officer, United States Parole Commission, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to Regional Commissioner at appropriate location. For general inquiries, address System Manager. The Attorney General has exempted this system from compliance with the provisions of Subsection (d) under the provisions of Subsection (j).

Record source categories:

1. Individual inmate: 2. Federal law enforcement agencies and personnel: 3. State and Federal probation services; 4. Non-Federal law enforcement agencies; 5. Educational institutions; 6. Hospital or medical sources; 7. Relatives, friends and other interested individuals or groups in the community; 8. Former or future employers; 9. Evaluations, observations, reports and findings of institution supervisors, counselors, boards and committees, Parole Commission examiners, Parole Commission Members; 10. Federal court records; 11. U.S. Bureau of Prisons personnel and records.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d)(e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/PRC-004

System name:

Labor and Pension Case, Legal File and General Correspondence System.

System location:

All Labor and Pension cases, most legal files and some general correspondence material is located at: Commission Headquarters, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815. The balance of the general correspondence material is located at the Commission's Regional Offices, the addresses of which are specified in the Inmate and Supervisions System.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All applicants for exemptions under 29 U.S.C. 504 and 29 U.S.C. 1111, all persons litigating with the U.S. Parole Commission, all persons corresponding with the Commission on subjects not amenable to being filed in an inmate or supervision file identified by an individual, and all Congressmen inquiring about constituents.

Categories of records in the system:

Pursuant to 29 U.S.C. 504 and 1111, the Commission processes applications of persons convicted of certain crimes for exemptions to allow their employment in the Labor or pension plan fields. The files contain memoranda, correspondence, and legal documents with information of a personal nature, i.e., family history, employment history, income and wealth, etc., and of a criminal history nature, i.e., record of arrests and convictions, and details as to the crime which barred employment. The final decision of the Commission in each case is a public document under the Freedom of Information Act. The General Counsel's Office of the Parole Commission maintains work files for each inmate or person on supervision who is litigating with the Commission. These files contain personal and criminal history type data regarding inmates, and internal communications among attorneys, Commissioners and others developing the Commission's legal position in these cases. Files of the Commission's correspondence with Congressmen who inquire about constituents who have paroles or revocations pending or other subjects are maintained in the Chairman's Office and in the regions. Files of correspondence, notes, and memoranda concerning parole revocation, rescission, and related problems are also maintained in those locations. Some of this material duplicates material in the inmate files and contain criminal history type information about individuals.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These files are maintained pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 4201, 5005-5041, 28 CFR Part O, Subpart V, 28 CFR Parts 2 and 4, 29 U.S.C. 504, 1111, and all statutory sections and procedural rules allowing inmates, persons under supervision, or others to litigate with the Parole Commission.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Within the Parole Commission material in this system is used respectively by General Counsel's Office staff and Commission Members in processing exemption applications. The legal file material is used by General Counsel's Office staff in asserting the litigative position of the Commission. The general correspondence is used by the Commission personnel in responding to Congressmen, and by Commission Members and others in transacting the day-to-day business of the Commission. Final pension and labor case decisions are used by the Commission, the Justice, and Labor Departments, and the public to establish precedents in this field of administrative law.

In the event that material in this system indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the revelant records may be referred to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, or local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal, State or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant information if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision relating to pension or labor matters. A record from this system may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

Release of information to the News Media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress:

Information contained in systems of records maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and in response to a communication from the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record may be disclosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

All data is on documents or other papers on bound files. Labor and pension case material is in the General Counsel's Office or the Chairman's Office at Headquarters, except for final decisions which are in the Freedom of Information Act reading room. Legal files are in the General Counsel's Office at Headquarters. General correspondence is in the Chairman's Office, the office of his staff at Headquarters, and the offices of each Regional Commissioner.

Retrievability:

Labor, pension, and legal file material is indexed or filed by name of applicant or litigant, respectively. General correspondence is indexed or filed by subject, time sequence or individuals to whom the item refer.

Safeguards:

Material is available only to Commission employees on a "need to know" basis. Storage locations are supervised by day and locked at night. Only disclosure made therefrom is to other agencies of the Department of Justice, the U.S. Probation Office, Federal enforcement agencies or the Congress. Disclosure to congressmen in response to inquiries concerning constituents is subject to the exemptions of the Freedom of Information Act. The Commission decisions in labor and pension cases are public information under the Freedom of Information Act.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained for 10 years after the fiscal decision of the court, and are shredded or destroyed electronically thereafter.

System manager(s) and address:

General Counsel, United States Parole Commission, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, MD 20815.

Record source categories:

a. Applicants for exemptions under 29 U.S.C. 504 and 29 U.S.C. 1111; b. U.S. Department of Labor; c. Administrative Law Judges and others connected with labor or pension cases; d. Litigants proceeding against Parole Commission; e. The Commission's legal staff and other Commission personnel; f. Congressmen and others making inquiries of Commission; g. Commission Members and employees responding to inquiries, corresponding with others, preparing speeches, policy statements and other means of contact with other branches of the Federal Government, State, and local governments, and the public.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8), (f) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/PRC-006

System name:

Statistical, Education and Developmental System.

System location:

Parole Commission Headquarters, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Any inmate or former inmate under custody of the Attorney General including former inmates supervised as parolees or mandatory releases.

Categories of records in the system:

All records as described in the Workload Record, Decision Result, and Annual Report System Plus data on additional input forms and certain follow-up forms and the Salient Factor Worksheet Form. These forms include criminal history-type data elements regarding specific individuals selected from the above category of individuals. This data is either organized and processed by hand or is input into a computer and has been used to provide the following one-time reports in pamphlet-text form: (a) Administrative Review of Parole Selection and Revocation decisions; (b) Parole Decisionmaking, a Salient Factor Score; (c) Effect of Representation at Parole Hearings: (d) Parole Decisionmaking—Structuring Discretion (e) Time Served and Release Performance—A Federal Sample and certain additional reports, all available in the public reading room. The data base collected as described in this and in JUSTICE/PRC 007 system will be used to prepare studies on similar or related subjects in the future. It has been used to develop revocation guidelines similar to parole guidelines, rescission guidelines and other operational improvements. Items collected for this data base may change depending on the subject matter of new studies to be undertaken by the Commission.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

18 U.S.C. 4201-4218, 5005-5041, 28 CFR Part O, Subpart V, 28 CFR Part 2.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

a. Internal—Develop methodology for a more scientific determination of parolability and revocability, methodology to comply with changing concepts of due process, and methodolgy to select persons to be released from prison who will be less likely to recidivate.

b. External—Add to the general body of knowledge in the parole area of criminology, and provide educational material for other parole boards, and members of the criminal justice and academic communities interested in this subject. Published pamphlets in text form are prepared on subjects of interest in this area of criminology and are circulated freely. They contain no references to individuals, either by name, address, register number or other means of identification. They do not contain recognizable fact situations, descriptions, or other writings through which identification of any individual within the present or former jurisdiction of the Parole Commission can be made.

Release of information to the news media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 502 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to members of congress:

Information contained in systems of records maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and in response to a communication from the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record may be disclosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Data is in input forms on printouts or other computer produced storage media. It is stored as described in the JUSTICE/PRC-007 system description. Pamphlet text reports are public documents stored in offices, libraries and in bookshelves, and in the public reading room.

Retrievability:

Information by name, register number or FBI identification number may be retrieved from the input forms, card decks, or storage media. This material is used only by authorized Parole Commission personnel on a "need to know" basis and is data processed only by authorized Bureau of Prisons or Justice Department personnel. Material is not retrieved in identifiable form except that computer produced "hard copy" may be used to prepare a report or internal work papers. The final pamphlet text reports and material resulting from studies are used by Commission personnel for internal purposes and the public externally. None of this material contains any references to an individual. Documents which contains information concerning one individual are made available to that individual if requested under the Privacy Act.

Safeguards:

See "Safeguards" section of JUSTICE/PRC-007 regarding input forms, printouts, discs, or tape. Reports in pamphlet form are not safeguarded.

Retention and disposal:

See "Retention and Disposal" of preceding system. The studies in pamphlet form are not disposed of on schedule. Some will be maintained perpetually in archives.

System manager(s) and address:

Research Director, U.S. Parole Commission, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Record source categories:

a. Commission inmate files; b. Docket Sheets; c. Commission Notices of Action, orders and documentation following hearings; d. Commission warrant applications and warrants; e. General Commission records and data; f. Enforcement agency records regarding former inmates.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8), (f), and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c), and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

JUSTICE/PRC-007

System name:

Workload Record, Decision Result, and Annual Report System.

System location:

U.S. Parole Commission Headquarters, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Any inmate and parolee or mandatory releasee who has been the subject of a decision for the period covered in the report for which the data is used (prior month, prior quarter, prior year or other period).

Categories of records in the system:

Certain original input forms indicate the inmate or person under supervision by name and register number and give the date and specific statistical detail as to the decision made. They include criminal history type of information regarding the persons in questions. The principle types of decisions covered are after initial or review hearings, after a record review, after Regional Appeal, after National Appeal, and after a decision reopening and modifying. The data is input into a computer and is used to provide the following: (a) A monthly report of workload containing number and type of hearings per region further broken out by institutions within regions and type of sentence; (b) Bimonthly report on decision results indicating, among other statistics, number and type of decisions within above, and below guidelines broken out by examiners making the decisions; (c) Other or substitute reports as needed; and (d) Together with land posted data on other items of statistical value, this data is being used to create the Annual Report of the Commission.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

18 U.S.C. 4201–4216, 5005–5041, 28 CFR Part O, Supart V, 28 CFR Part 2

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(a) These records are used internally to analyze work product, the performance of evaluators, and various types of procedures and hearings and to evaluate the guidelines and other Commission procedures.

(b) These records are used to prepare an annual report to the Attorney General, and Congress and the public indicating in quantitative and qualitative terms Commission activity and accomplishment.

(c) In the event that material in this system indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether a civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be referred to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal, State, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant information if necessary to obtain information relevant to Parole Commission matters.

(e) A record from this system may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

Release of Information to the News Media:

Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of Information to Members of Congress:

Information contained in the systems of records maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and in response to a communication from the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record may be disclosed as a routine use to the NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Paper input forms are stored in folders only until information from them is entered into machine readable media. Monthly and other reports in the form of computer printouts are filed in folders. Annual report is in book form and stored in library shelves.

Retrievability:

Data in this system can be retrieved by inmate's name and register number from the original input forms, and computer-produced storage media. It is usually only retrieved by region, by examiner, by type of decision made or hearing held, by relation to the guidelines and other similar means except for individual case retrievability when infrequently required.

Safeguards:

Data on forms, tape or other computer produced storage media retrievable by individual is stored in the Commission's Office in cabinets. Commission employees supervise this data by day and use it on a "need to know" basis. The rooms where it is stored are locked outside of office hours and the entire Headquarters building is locked at certain times with card key access. Monthly and other reports are for use of the Chairman, the Executive Officer and Commission Members and professional personnel. No information thereon is retrievable as pertaining to any individual except certain breakouts by Parole Commission employee examiners and by inmate in the guideline section of reports. These printouts are stored in the Commission Headquarters offices, all of which are supervised by day, and locked at night. The Annual Report contains no information identifiable by individual and is a public document.

Retention and disposal:

The master file and documentation are to be retained permanently. All other related records, including reports and software, are to be destroyed when no longer needed for administrative use.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Research and Program Development, 5550 Friendship Blvd., Chevy Chase, Md. 20815.

Record source categories:

(a) Commission inmates files; (b) Docket sheets; (c) Commission notices of action, orders, and documentation following hearings; (d) Commission warrant applications and warrants; (e) General Commission records and data.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

44 U.S.C. 3101; 8 U.S.C. 1324b; and 29 CFR Part 44.

Purpose(s):

This system has been established to maintain investigatory and law enforcement records concerning charges filed with OSC by or on behalf of individuals alleging immigration-related employment discrimination. The system also contains charges filed with other law enforcement entities that have been referred to OSC pursuant to section 102 of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (8 U.S.C. 1324b) to provide relief for injured parties and to enforce prohibition of immigration-related, unfair employment practices.

Employees and officials of the Department may access the system to make decisions in the course of investigations and legal proceedings; to assist in preparing responses to correspondence from persons outside the Department; to prepare budget requests and various reports on the work product of OSC; and to carry out any other authorized internal duties.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) A record relating to a possible or potential violation of law may be disseminated to the appropriate Federal, State or local agency charged with the responsibility to enforce or implement such law; (2) in the course of an investigation or litigation of a case or matter, a record may be disseminated to a Federal, State or local agency, or to an individual organization, if there is reason to believe that such agency, individual or organization possesses information or has the expertise in an official or technical capacity to analyze information relating to the investigation, trail or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or expert analysis or to obtain the cooperation of a prospective witness or informant; (3) a record relating to a case or matter, or any facts derived therefrom, may be disseminated in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which OSC is authorized to appear, when the United States, or any agency or subdivision thereof, is a part of litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by OSC to be arguably relevant to the litigation; (4) a record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to an actual or potential party of litigation or the party's attorney (a) to negotiate or discusss such matters as settlement of the case or matter or (b) to conduct a formal or informal discovery proceeding; (5) a record relating to a case or matter that has been referred to OSC for investigation may be disseminated by OSC to referring agencies to notify such agency of the status of the case or matter or of any determination that has been made; (6) a record may be disseminated to the United States Commission on Civil Rights in response to its request and pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 1975d; (7) information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; (8) information in the system may be disclosed as is necessary to respond to inquiries by Members of Congress on behalf of individual constituents that are subjects of OSC rcords; and (9) records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Information in this system is indexed, and stored in file jackets and on computer disks or tapes.

Retrievability:

Entries are arranged alphabetically and are retrieved from the computer by names of the individuals covered by this system of records. Information may also be retrieved from file jackets by an assigned number appearing in the manual index.

Safeguards:

Information in manual and computer form is safeguarded and protected in accordance with applicable Department security regulations for systems of records. Only those employees with the need to know in order to perform their duties will be able to access the information. Access to records in the computer system is restricted through use of password encryption: Access to both the manual and computer system is restricted by locks on storage facilities.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained in the system while current and required for official Government use. When no longer needed on an active basis, the paper files are transferred to the Federal Records Center, Suitland, Maryland, and some records are transferred to computer tape and stored in accordance with Departmental security regulations for systems of records. A request for Records Disposition Authority is pending approval of the National Archives and Records Administration.

TAX DIVISION

JUSTICE/TAX - 001

System name: Tax Division Central Classification Cards, Index Docket Cards, and Associated Records - Criminal Tax Cases.

System location: U.S. Department of Justice; Tax Division; 10th and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons referred to in potential or actual criminal tax cases and related matters of concern to the Tax Division under the Internal Revenue laws.

Categories of records in the system: The system consists of an alphabetical index by individual name of all criminal tax cases, and related matters assigned, referred, or of interest to the Tax Division. Records in many instances are duplicated in the criminal section of the Division which has specific jurisdiction over criminal tax cases.

Authority for maintenance of the system: This system is established and maintained pursuant to 28 CFR 0.70 and 0.71.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A. Classification cards are maintained on each Tax Division criminal case to identify and assign mail to the proper office within the Division; to relate incoming material to an existing case; to establish a file number for a new case upon receipt; and to provide a central index of cases within the Division.

B. Docket cards are records pertaining to the flow of legal work in the Division. They are maintained on each criminal case which is being or was handled by the Division's sections.

C. Case files maintained allow Division attorneys immediate access to information which is essential in carrying out their responsibilities concerning all criminal tax cases.

D. A record maintained in this system of records may be disseminated as a routine use as follows: (1) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, the record in question may be disseminated to the appropriate federal, state, local, or foreign agency charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing such law; (2) In the course of investigating the potential or actual violation of any law whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, or during the course of a trial or hearing or the preparation for a trial or hearing for such violation, a record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local or foreign agency, or to an individual or organization, if there is reason to believe that such agency, individual, or organization possesses information relating to the investigation, trial, or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an informant; (3) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to the appropriate Federal, state, local, or foreign court or grand jury in accordance with applicable constitutional, substantive, or procedural law or practice; (4) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a Federal, state, or local administrative or regulatory proceeding or hearing in accordance with the procedures governing such proceeding or hearing; (5) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to an actual or potential party or his attorney for the purpose of negotiation or discussion on such matters as settlement of the case or matter, plea bargaining, or informal discovery proceedings; (6) A record relating to a case or matter that has been referred to the Tax Division may be disseminated to the referring agency to notify such agency of the status of the case or matter or of any decision or determination that has been made; (7) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a foreign country pursuant to an international treaty or convention entered into and ratified by the United States or to an executive agreement; (8) A record may be disseminated to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration: A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Information contained in this system is stored manually on index cards and in folders.

Retrievability: Information is retrieved manually by the name of the individual from the index card which in turn indicates the case number, and the section unit or attorney assigned to work on the material.

Safeguards: Information contained in this system is safeguarded and protected in accordance with applicable Departmental rules and procedures governing access, production and disclosure of any materials contained in its official files.

Retention and disposal: Currently there are no provisions for the disposal of the cards in this system, however, the records of the closed classes are forwarded to the Federal Record Center, where they are destroyed after 25 years.

System manager(s) and address: Assistant Attorney General; Tax Division; U.S. Department of Justice; 10th Street and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Notification procedure: An inquiry concerning this system should be directed to the System Manager listed above.

Record access procedures: To the extent that this system of records is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access and contest. A determination as to the applicability of an exemption as to a specific record shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record contained in this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked 'Privacy Access Request'. Include in the request the name of the individual involved, his birth date and place, or any other identifying number which may be of assistance in locating the record, the name of the case or matter involved, if known, the name of the judicial district involved, if known, and any other information which may be of assistance in locating the record. The requestor will also provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager listed above.

Contesting record procedures: Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories: Internal Revenue Service, Department offices and employees, and other Federal, state, local, and foreign law enforcement and non-law enforcement agencies, private persons, witnesses, and informants.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Attorney General has proposed exemption of this system from subsection (c)(3), (c)(4), (d)(1), (d)(2), (d)(3), (d)(4), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The individuals on whom records are maintained in this system may be broadly classified in four categories. (1) Those individuals who have been charged with Federal and D.C. Code violations; (2) those individuals who are currently under investigation for violations of Federal and D.C. Code; (3) those individuals about whom complaints have been made on upon whom investigations were conducted, but no prosecution was initiated; and (4) complainants.

Categories of records in the system:

A file may consist of a single sheet of paper describing briefly the nature of a complaint and its disposition or it may consist of a more comprehensive file containing the results of a hearing, depending on the complexity or seriousness of the complaint. If the complaint results in criminal charges being preferred, the contents of the file are transferred to the appropriate criminal file system.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301, 28 U.S.C. 547, 23 D.C. Code 101(c).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A record maintained in this system of records may be disseminated as a routine use of such record as follows:

(1) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, the record in question may be disseminated to the appropriate agency, federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcement or implementing such laws;

(2) In the course of investigating the potential or actual violation of any law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, or during the course of a trial or hearing or the preparation for a trial or hearing for such violation, a record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign agency, or to an individual, if there is reason to believe that such agency or individual possesses information relating to the investigation, trial, or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an informant;

(3) Records or extracts thereof relating to case matters or matter may be disseminated to a defendant or his attorney or to the appropriate federal, state, local or foreign court or grand jury in accordance with established constitutional, substantive, or procedural law or practice;

(4) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a federal, state, or local administrative or regulatory proceeding or hearing in accordance with the procedures governing such proceeding or hearing;

(5) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to an actual or potential party or his attorney for the purpose of negotiation or discussion on such matters as settlement of the case or matter, plea bargaining, or informal discovery proceedings;

(6) A record relating to a case or matter than has been referred for investigation may be disseminated to the referring agency to notify such agency of the status of the case or matter or of any decision or determination that has been made;

(7) A record relating to a person held arraignment, trial or sentence, or after conviction, may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign prison, probation, parole, bail or pardon authority, or to any agency or individual, concerned with the custody maintenance, transportation, or release of such person;

(8) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a foreign country pursuant to an international treaty or convention entered into and ratified by the United States;

(9) A record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign law enforcement agency to assist in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency;

(10) A record may be disseminated to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter;

(11) A record may be accessed by volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program, as is necessary to enable them to perform their function.

(12) Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(13) Release of information to Members of Congress. Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record and;

(14) Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Citizen complaint files are maintained in one of two ways; either on a single sheet which is a record of the complaint and disposition thereof or in complaints which result in further proceedings, a file folder would be established. Some material is recorded and stored on magetic tape, card or other data processing type storage matter for reproduction later into conventinal formats and for management information purposes.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved either by the name of a complainant, the name of a person about whom a complaint is registered or by a complaint number. If further proceedings are conducted with respect to a citizen's complaint and the complaint materializes into a criminal action, the file folder will become part of the criminal files and then is retrievable in the same manner as any criminal file is retrieved. Information may be accessed by means of cathode-ray tube terminals (CRT'S).

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is unclassified. It is safeguarded and protected by being maintained in files at the Citizens Complaint Center, and the Legal Services section of the Executive Office for United States Attorneys, which is manned at all times when it is open and at other times is locked. More sensitive files that materialize into hearings or require further action by the Misdemeanor Trial Section of the Superior Court Division, or the Executive Office for United States Attorneys, are maintained by the Chief of the Misdemeanor Trial Section in his office in Building B of the Superior Court, or the Assistant Director for Legal Services, Executive Office for United States Attorneys in his safe. Information that is retrievable by CRT's within various U.S. Attorneys' offices and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys require user identification numbers which are issued to authorized employees of the Department of Justice.

Retention and disposal:

Files are retained and disposed of in accordance with Title 3, U.S. Attorney's Manual.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Misdemeanor Trial Section: U.S Attorney's Office; Superior Court. Operations, 555 4th St. NW., Washington, DC 20001; Director, Executive Office for United States Attorneys, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th & Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

The major part of these systems are exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2),(k)I1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the general subject matter of the document or its file number. The requestor will also provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager listed above.

Contesting record procedures:

The major parts of these systems are exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2),(k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for contest is received. Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system come primarily from citizens walking into this unit to register complaints. Sources also include but are not limited to investigative reports of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, forensic reports, statements of witnesses and parties, as well as verbatim transcripts for grand jury proceedings and court proceedings, memoranda and reports from the court and agencies thereof and the work product of Assistant United States Attorneys and legal assistants working on particular cases.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (8), (f), (g) and (h) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(1) and (2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b),(c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

These systems are established and maintained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 301, 28 U.S.C. 547 and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Purpose(s):

Records are maintained for the purpose of litigating or otherwise resolving civil cases or matters handled by the United States Attorneys or the Executive Office for United States Attorneys.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A record maintained in this system of records may be disseminated as a routine use of such record as follows:

(a) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law, civil, or regulatory in nature, the record in question may be disseminated to the appropriate Federal, State, local or foreign agency charged with the responsibility of investigating, defending or pursuing such violation, civil claim or remedy, or charged with enforcing, defending or implementing such law;

(b) In the course of investigating the potential or actual violation or civil liability of any government action or law, civil, or regulatory in nature or during the course of a trial or hearing or the preparation for a trial or hearing for such civil action, a record may be disseminated to a Federal, State, local, or foreign agency, or to an individual or organization, if there is reason to believe that such agency, individual, or organization possesses information relating to the investigation or civil action trial, or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an agency;

(c) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated in an appropriate Federal, State, local, or foreign court or grand jury proceeding in accordance with established constitutional, substantive, or procedural law or practice;

(d) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a Federal, State, or local administrative or regulatory proceeding or hearing in accordance with the procedures governing such proceeding or hearing;

(e) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to an actual or potential party or his attorney for the purpose of negotiation or discussion on such matters as settlement of the case or matter, or informal discovery proceedings;

(f) A record relating to a case or matter that has been referred by an agency for investigation, civil action, or enforcement, or that involves a case or matter within the jurisdiction of an agency, may be disseminated to such agency to notify the agency of the status of the case or matter or of any decision or determination that has been made, or to make such other inquiries and reports as are necessary during the processing of the case or matter;

(g) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminating to a foreign country pursuant to an international treaty or convention entered into and ratified by the United States or to an executive agreement;

(h) A record may be disseminated to a Federal, State, local, foreign, or international law enforcement agency to assist in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency or to assist in general civil matters or cases;

(i) A record may be disseminated to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of security clearance as is required, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter;

(j) A record may be disseminated to the public, news media, trade associations, or organized groups, when the purpose of the dissemination is educational or informational, such as descriptions of types or courses of action or distinctive or unique modus operandi, provided that the record does not contain any information identifiable to a specific individual other than such modus operandi;

(k) A record may be disseminated to a foreign country, through the United States Department of State or directly to the representative of such country, to the extent necessary to assist such country in general crime prevention, the pursuit of general civil, regulatory or administrative civil actions or to provide investigative leads to such country, or assist in the location and/or returning of witnesses and other evidence;

(l) A record that contains classified national security information and material may be disseminated to persons who are engaged in historical research projects, or who have previously occupied policy-making positions to which they were appointed by the President, in accordance with the provisions codified in 28 CFR 17.96;

(m) A record relating to an actual or potential civil or criminal violation of title 17, United States Code, may be disseminated to a person injured by such violation to assist him in the institution or maintenance of a suit brought under such title;

(n) A record may be accessed by volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program, as is necessary to enable them to perform their function;

(o) A record, or facts derived therefrom, may be disseminated in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the United States Attorney's office or the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys is authorized to appear when i. the United States Attorney's office or the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys, or any subdivision thereof, or ii. any employee of the United States Attorney's office or the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys in his or her official capacity, or iii. any employee of the United States Attorney's office or the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or iv. the United States, where the United States Attorney's office or the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the United States Attorney's office or the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys to be arguably relevant to the litigation;

(p) A record, or facts derived therefrom, may be disseminated in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the United States Attorney's Office is authorized to appear, when the United States, or any agency or subdivision thereof, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the United States Attorney's Office to be arguably relevant to the litigation;

(q) Records relating to an individual who owes an overdue debt to the United States may be disseminated to (1) a Federal agency which employs the individual to enable the employing agency to offset the individual's salary, (2) a Federal, State, local or foreign agency, an organization, including a consumer reporting agency, or individual to elicit information to assist the United States Attorney in the collection of the overdue debt, (3) a collection agency or private counsel to enable them to collect the overdue debt, and (4) the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to enable that agency to offset the individual's tax refund. Records provided to the IRS may be used in a computer matching program to identify individuals who are entitled to refunds against which such offset for overdue debts would be appropriate;

(r) Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;

(s) Information not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of this record;

(t) A record may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906; and

(u) Notice of disclosure under Subsection (b)(12) of the Privacy Act: Records relating to individuals who owe a past-due debt to the United States may be disseminated to consumer reporting agencies to encourage payment of the past-due debt.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

All information, except that specified in this paragraph, is recorded on basic paper/cardboard material, and stored within manila file folders, within metal file cabinets, electric file/card retrievers or safes. Some material is recorded and stored on magnetic tape, card or other data processing type storage matter for reproduction later into conventional formats.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved primarily by name of person, case number, complaint number or court docket number. Information within this system of records may be accessed by various U.S. Attorneys' offices, and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys by means of cathode-ray tube terminals (CRT's).

Safeguards:

Information in the system is both confidential and nonconfidential and located in file cabinets in the United States Attorney offices. Confidential materials are in locked file drawers and safes, and nonconfidential materials are in unlocked file drawers. Offices are locked during nonworking hours and are secured by either Federal Protective Service, United States Postal Service, or private building guards. Information that is retrievable by CRT's within various U.S. Attorney's offices and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys requires user identification numbers which are issued to authorized employees of the Department of Justice.

Retention and disposal:

Records are destroyed ten years after case is closed in accordance with approved retention and disposal schedules.

System manager(s) and address:

System Manager for the system in each office is the Administrative Officer/Assistant, for the U.S. Attorney for each district. (See appendix.)

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager for the judicial district in which the case or matter is pending. (See appendix.)

Record access procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this sytem is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/ or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to examination shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the name of the individual involved, his birth date and place, or any other identifying number or information which may be of assistance in locating the record and the name of the case or matter involved, if known. The requestor will also provide his or her notarized signature and a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager. (See appendix.)

Contesting record procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(j)(2), (k)(1) and/ or (k)(2). Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

All information except that specified in this paragraph, is recorded on basic paper/cardboard material, and stored within manila file folders, within metal file cabinets, electric file/card retrievers or safes. Some material is recorded and stored on magnetic tape, card or other data processing type storage matter for reproduction later into conventional formats.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved primarily by name of person, case number, compliant number of court docket number. Information within this system of records may be accessed by various U.S. Attorney's offices and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys by means of catho-ray tube terminals (CRTs).

Safeguards:

Information in the system is both confidential and non-confidential and located in file cabinets in the United States Attorney offices. Confidential materials are in locked file drawers and safes, and non-confidential materials are in unlocked file drawers. Offices are locked during non-working hours and are secured by either Federal Protective Service, United States Postal Service, or private building by CRTs within various U.S. Attorney's offices and the Executive Office for United States Attorneys requires user identification numbers which are issued to authorized employees of the Department of Justice.

Retention and disposal:

Case files involving no sentence, or sentences of ten years or less, are destroyed ten years after case in closed. Case files involving sentences of more than ten years are destroyed one year after the date of termination of sentence. Both are in accordance with approved retention and disposal schedules.

System manager(s) and address:

System manager for the system in each office is the Administrative Office/Asssistant, for the U.S. Attorney for each district (See Appendix).

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager for the judicial district in which the case or matter is pending (See Appendix).

Record access procedures: The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request". Include in the request the name of the individual involved, his birth date and place, or any other identifying number or information which may be of assistance in locating the record and the name of the case or matter involved, if known. The requester will also provide his or her notarized signature and a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager (See Appendix).

Contesting record procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for contest is received. Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager (See Appendix) stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include, but are not limited to investigative reports of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies; client agencies of the Department of Justice; other non-Department of Justice investigative agencies; forensic reports; statements of witnesses and parties; verbatim transcripts of Grand Jury and court proceedings; data, memoranda and reports from the Court and agencies thereof; and the work product of Assistant United States Attorneys, Department of Justice attorneys and staff, and legal assistants working on particular cases.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked 'Privacy Access Request.' Include in the request the general subject matter of the document or its file number. The requestor will also provide a return address for trnasmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manger listed above.

Contesting record procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1), and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for contest is received. Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendments to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system are investigative reports of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, statement of witnesses, informants and parties, as well as verbatim transcripts of grand jury proceedings and court proceedings, memoranda and reports from the court and agencies thereof and the work product of Assistant United States Attorneys and legal assistants working on particular cases.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsection (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), (g) and (h) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k) (1) and (2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/USA—011

System name:

Prosecutor's Management Information System (PROMIS).

System location:

U.S. Attorney's Office: Judiciary Center Bldg., 555 4th Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20001.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The individuals on whom records are maintained in PROMIS are as follows: (1) Those individuals who have been charged with criminal violations: (2) those individuals who are currently under investigation for criminal violations: (3) those individuals upon whom criminal investigations were conducted, but no prosecution was initiated; and (4) the names and addresses of all witnesses and arresting police officers.

Categories of records in the system:

The data in PROMIS fall into six major categories.

1. Information about the accused or defendant. This includes name, alias, sex, race, date of birth, address, facts about prior arrest and convictions, and employment status. If judged appropriate, additional data could be added, such as information about alcohol or drug abuse. Some of this information is used to rate the gravity of the case in terms of the defendant's criminal history.

2. Information about the crime. The date, time, and place of the crime; the number of persons involved in the crime; and a numerical rating reflecting the gravity of the crime in terms of the amount and degree of personal injury, property damage or loss, and intimidation.

3. Information about the arrest. The date, time, and place of the arrest, the type of arrest and identity of the arresting officers.

4. Information about criminal charges. The charges originally placed by the police against the arrestee the charges actually filed in court against the defendant, the reasons for changes in the charges by the prosecutor, the penal statute for the charge, the FBI Uniform Crime Report Code for the charge, and the Project SEARCH Code for the charge.

5. Information about court events. The dates of every court event in a case from arraignment through motion hearing, continuance hearing, final disposition, and sentencing; the names of the principals involved in each event, including the defense and prosecution attorneys and judge; the outcomes of the events and the reasons therefor.

6. Information about witnesses. The names and addresses, the prosecutor's assessment of whether the witnesses are essential to the case, and any indications of reluctance to testify by the witnesses.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301, 28 U.S.C. 547, 23 D.C. Code 101(c).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A record maintained in this system of records may be disseminated as a routine use by such records as follows:

(1) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, the record in question may be disseminated to the appropriate agency federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing such law;

(2) In the course of investigating the potential or actual violation of any law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, or during the course of a trial or hearing or the preparation for a trial or hearing for such violation, a record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign agency, or to an individual, if there is reason to believe that such agency or individual possesses information relating to the investigation, trial, or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an informant;

(3) Records or extracts thereof relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a defendant or his attorney or to the appropriate federal, state, local, or foreign, court or grand jury in accordance with established constitutional, substantive, or procedural law or practice;

(4) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a federal, state, or local administrative or regulatory proceeding or hearing in accordance with the procedures governing such proceeding or hearing;

(5) A record relating to case or matter may be disseminated to an actual or potential party or his attorney for the purpose of negotiation or discussion on such matters as settlement of the case or matter, plea bargaining, or informal discovery proceedings, or to the Public Defender Service in connection with caseload management of other purposes;

(6) A record relating to a case or matter that has been referred for investigation may be disseminated to the referring agency to notify such agency of the status of the case or matter or of any decision or determination that has been made or to assist in eliciting additional information;

(7) A record relating to a person held pending arraignment, trial or sentence, or after conviction, may be disseminated to a federal, state, local or foreign prison, probation, parole, bail or pardon authority, or to any agency or individual concerned with the custody maintenance, transportation, or release of such a person;

(8) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a foreign country pursuant to an international treaty or convention entered into and ratified by the United States;

(9) A record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign law enforcement agency to assist in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency;

(10) A record may be disseminated to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; and

(11) A record may be accessed by volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program, as is necessary to enable them to perform their function.

(12) This office utilizes it to track the workload of the criminal court process from three separate vantage points. First, the workload is tracked from the vantage point of the crime or criminal incident. This is accomplished by including in PROMIS the complaint number which the police department assigns to a reported crime. With this number, prosecutors can follow the full history of the court actions arising from the crime even though those actions may involve multiple defendants, multiple cases, and multiple trials and dispositions.

(13) PROMIS tracks the court workload from the vantage point of the accused or defendant. This is achieved by incorporating in PROMIS the fingerprint-based number the police department assigns to the individual following his or her arrest. This identfication number is used again by the department if the same individual is subsequently arrested. Through this number, prosecuting attorneys accumulate criminal history files on offenders and note incidents of recidivism.

(14) PROMIS tracks from the vantage point of the court proceedings. This is accomplished by including in PROMIS the docket number the Court assigns to the case pending before it. With this number, prosecutors trace the history of any formal criminal action from arraignment through final disposition and sentencing, and account for the separate fate of each count or charge.

The inclusion of these three numbers is significant. The numbers provide a capability to track the criminal incident, the defendant, or the court actions and provide the basis for the routine communication among the various Federal, state, local, and foreign law enforcement agencies.

(15) PROMIS generates, on a recurring basis, five categories of reports: Misdemeanor calendars, felony calendars, case status reports, workload reports, and special reports. These reports are prepared from information contained in the data base both by persons employed by this office, the Justice Department and persons under contract to the Department for this purpose.

(16) Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of the particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(18) Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are stored on magnetic tapes and discs at the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police Department Computer Center. Printouts from the terminals are stored with case jackets. Status, calendars, and statistical reports are stored in the files and offices of supervisory attorneys.

Retrievability:

This system has an on-line data retrieval capability with respect to certain information continued in the data base. These subsets of information are retrieved on data display terminals which are located at various work stations throughout the office. Certain of these terminals have a printout capability. All information on these subsets is a matter of public record. The system also has the capability for the production of periodic reports. Both the periodic reports and the on-line displays are utilized in accordance with the above listed routine uses.

Safeguards:

The magnetic tapes and discs are maintained in a secure vault at the Metropolitan Police Department Computer Center. In addition to the physical security safeguards, there is a twenty-four hour patrol. The data display terminals are located in semi-public areas of the office (i.e., administrative work stations through which the public must pass on official business). However, only trained operators may retrieve the information, which is of public record. The terminals are not open to the public after working hours.

Retention and disposal:

The files are retained and disposed of in accordance with Title 8, U.S. Attorney's Manual, pages 70–77.

System manager(s) and address:

Administrative Assistant: United States Attorney; Judiciary Center Bldg., 555 4th St. NW., Washington, DC. 20001.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (j)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the general subject matter of the document or its file number. The requestor will also provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager listed above.

Contesting record procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for contest is received. Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

About 80 percent of the data contained in PROMIS is obtained at the intake and screening stage as the by-product of the case documentation process. Carbon copies of various forms completed immediately before or during the case screening stage serve as input documents for PROMIS.

As a case moves through the subsequent proceedings, additional information about its status is fed to PROMIS. This is achieved through turnaround documents—forms generated by PROMIS in advance of a court event—on which the results of a given processing (e.g., preliminary hearing, sentencing, etc.) are recorded and then entered in PROMIS.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), (g) and (h) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k) (1) and (2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/USA—013

System name:

U.S. Attorney, District of Columbia Superior Court Operations, Criminal Files, including but not limited to the following subsystems: (a) Criminal File Folder (USA-S1), (b) Criminal File Folder (USA-33), (c) Criminal Docket Card (USA-T7), and (d) Index.

System location:

U.S. Attorney's Office, Judiciary Center Bldg., 555 4th St. NW., Washington, D.C. 20001

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The individuals on whom records are maintained may be broadly classified in three categories (1) Those individuals who have been charged with criminal violations; (2) those individuals who are currently under investigation for criminal violations; and (3) those individuals upon whom criminal investigations were conducted, but no prosecution was initiated.

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records, consisting of numbered Criminal File Folders, (USA-S1 and USA-33), contains criminal investigative reports about named individuals submitted to this office by federal, state, local and foreign law enforcement agencies involved with the investigation of suspected violations as well as by complaints made by private parties. Those matters which become cases either by way of indictment or information in addition to the data contained in the investigative reports, also contain copies of indictments, informations, complaints, and all pleadings submitted to the court in connection with the actual prosecution of the case. These files also contain communications between the Court and agencies thereof, and the United States Attorney, and all correspondence relative to the case or matter. The files further contain psychiatric, chemical and other forensic reports, documentary evidence and the work product and internal memoranda of the Assistant United States Attorney in charge of the investigation compiled in preparation for the prosecution of each case. In those cases which have gone through trial and appeal, the file would further reflect transcripts of the trial, all pleadings and correspondence between the attorneys and the Court of Appeals, and copies of briefs submitted in the prosecution of the Appeal.

A synopsis record of a matter or case is maintained by means of a criminal docket card (USA-T7), for all actions through sentencing. A synopsis record of a case on appeal is maintained on an Appellate Docket Card (USA-9X-199), Appellate Proceedings). All of these subsystems comprise an internal cross-reference record keeping system of the criminal business at the office. Through the medium of forms and on-line data input, certain of this information is conveyed to a computer center for inclusion in the Prosecutor's Management Information System (a system which will be reported on separately), from which status and statistical reports are issued and distributed back to this office either in the form of computer printouts or on data display terminals which contain much of the same information as the files in different format.

Because of the number of diverse functions which must be performed with respect to each case; and because of the large volume of cases and because operations are conducted in three separate buildings, there are a number of file folder locator mechanisms and cross references utilized to constantly track a file folder when it is not physically located in file control. These indexes or locators are maintained in the form of 'out cards,' log books index card files, etc. They are referenced by name, number, and other identifiers. In themselves, they are not separate systems of records, but indexes or references to the primary system.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A record maintained in this system of records may be disseminated as a routine use of such record as follows:

(1) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, the record in question may be disseminated to the appropriate agency, federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing such law;

(2) In the course of investigating the potential or actual violation of any law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, or during the course of a trail or hearing or the preparation for a trial or hearing for such violation, a record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign agency, or to an individual, if there is reason to believe that such agency or individual possesses information relating to the investigation, trial, or hearing and the dissemination is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an informant;

(3) Records or extracts thereof relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a defendant or his attorney or to the appropriate federal, state, local, or foreign, court or grand jury in accordance with established constitutional, substantive, or procedural law or practice;

(4) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a federal, state, or local administrative or regulatory proceeding or hearing in accordance with the procedures governing such proceeding or hearing;

(5) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to an actual or potential party or his attorney for the purpose of negotiation or discussion on such matters as settlement of the case or matter, plea bargaining, or informal discovery proceedings;

(6) A record relating to a case or matter that has been referred for investigation may be disseminated to the referring agency to notify such agency of the status of the case or matter or of any decision or determination that has been made or to assist in eliciting additional information;

(7) A record relating to a person held pending arraignment, trial or sentence, or after conviction, may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign prison, probation, parole, bail or pardon authority, or to any agency or individual concerned with the custody, maintenance, transportation or release of such a person;

(8) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a foreign country pursuant to an international treaty or convention entered into and ratified by the United States;

(9) A record may be disseminated to a federal, state, local, or foreign law enforcement agency to assist in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency;

(10) A record may be disseminated to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; and

(11) A record may be assessed by volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program, as is necessary to enable them to perform their function;

(12) Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available for systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;

(13) Release of information to Members of Congress. Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests for information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record; and

(14) Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and to the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to NARA and GSA in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The information in the various indexes is maintained on index cards, log books, out cards, etc. The criminal files themselves are maintained in criminal file folders (USA-S1 and USA-33). The synopsis information is maintained on a Criminal Docket Card (USA-T7) and Appellate Proceedings (USA-9X-199).

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved primarily by the name of a person, complaint number, court docket number, FBI number, Metropolitan Police Department identification number and District of Columbia Department of Corrections number.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is both unclassified and classified and is safeguarded and protected by being maintained in filerooms which are manned during all times that they are open and at other times are locked. These rooms are located in the Superior Court for the District of Columbia, Buildings B and G which are guarded by the federal protective service twenty four hours a day with roving patrols during non-working hours. Files which are not in the filerooms but which are checked out to attorneys are maintained in locked offices after working hours.

Retention and disposal:

The files are retained and disposed of in accordance with Title 8, U.S. Attorney's Manual, pages 70–77.

System manager(s) and address:

Administtrative Officer; U.S. Attorney's Office; Superior Court Operations, 555 4th Street. NW., Washington, DC 20001.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the latter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the general subject matter of the document or its file number. The requester will also provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager listed above.

Contesting record procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for contest is received. Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include but are not limited to investigative reports of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, forensic reports, statements of witnesses and parties, as well as verbatim transcripts of grand jury proceedings and court proceedings, memoranda and reports from the court and agencies thereof and work product of Assistant United States Attorney and legal assistants working on particular cases.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), (g), and (h) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k) (1) and (2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 533 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

(f) A record relating to a case or matter that has been referred by an agency for investigation prosecution or enforcement, or that involves a case or matter within the jurisdiction of an agency, may be disseminated to such agency to notify the agency of the status of the case or matter of any decision or determination that has been made, or to make such other inquiries and reports as are necessary during the processing of the case or matter;

(g) A record relating to a person held in custody pending or during arraignment, trial, sentence, or extradition proceedings, or after conviction or after extradition proceedings, may be disseminated to a Federal, state, local, or foreign prison, probation, parole, or pardon authority, or to any other agency or individual concerned with the maintenance, transportation, or release of such a person;

(h) A record relating to a case or matter may be disseminated to a foreign country pursuant to an international treaty or convention entered into and ratified by the United States or to an executive agreement;

(i) A record may be disseminated to a Federal, state, local, foreign, or international law enforcement agency to assist in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigation leads to such agency;

(j) A record may be disseminated to a Federal agency, in response to its request in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter;

(k) A record may be disseminated to the public, news media, trade associations, or organized groups, when the purpose of the dissemination is educational or information, such as descriptions of crime trends or distinctive or unique modus operandi, provided that the record does not contain any information identifiable to a specific individual;

(l) A record may be disseminated to a foreign country, through the United States Department of State or directly to the representative of such country, to the extent necessary to assist such country in apprehending and/or returning a fugitive to a jurisdiction which seeks his return.

(m) A record that contains classified national security information and material may be disseminated to persons who are engaged in historical research projects, or who have previously occupied policy making positions to which they were appointed by the President, in accordance with the provisions codified in 28 CFR 17.60; and

(n) A record may be accessed by volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program, as is necessary to enable them to perform their function.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration: A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

All information, except that specified in this paragraph, is recorded on basic paper/cardboard material, and stored within manila file folders, within metal file cabinets, electric file/card retrievers or safes. Some material is recorded and stored on magnetic tape, card or other data processing type storage matter for reproduction later into conventional formats.

Retrievability:

Information is retrieved by the name of the person, case number or complaint number.

Safeguards:

Information in the system is both confidential and nonconfidential and located in file cabinets in the United States Attorney offices. Some materials are located in locked file drawers and safes, and others in unlocked file drawers. Offices are locked during nonworking hours and are secured by either Federal Protective Service, United States Postal Service, or private building guards.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained and disposed of in accordance with Department of Justice retention plans.

System manager(s) and address:

System Manager for the system in each office is the Administrative Officer/Assistant, for the U.S. Attorney for each district. (See attached Appendix.)

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager for the judicial district in which the diversion application or approval was made. (See attached Appendix.)

Record access procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to access. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for access is received. A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing, with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the name of the individual involved, his birth date and place, or any other identifying number or information which may be of assistance in locating the record and the name of the case or matter involved, if known. The requester shall also provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager. (See attached Appendix.)

Contesting record procedures:

The major part of the information maintained in this system is exempt from this requirement under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and/or (k)(2). To the extent that this system is not subject to exemption, it is subject to contest. A determination as to exemption shall be made at the time a request for contest is received. Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager (see attached Appendix) stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this system include, but are not limited to investigative reports of Federal, state and local law enforcement agencies; client agencies of the Department of Justice; other non-Department of Justice investigative agencies; forensic reports; statements of witnesses and parties; verbatim transcripts of Grand Jury and court proceedings; data; memoranda and reports from the Court and agencies thereof; and the work product of Assistant United States Attorneys, Department of Justice attorneys and staff, and legal assistants working on particular cases.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), (g) and (h) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k) (1) and (2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Persons indebted to the United States who have allowed their debts to become delinquent and whose delinquent debts have been assigned by the Department's Justice Management Division (JMD) to a U.S. Attorney (USA) or contract private counsel for settlement or enforced collection through litigation.

Categories of records in the system:

This system of records contains records relating to the negotiation, compromise, settlement, and litigation of indebtedness owed the United States. Records consist of a case file and automated support data.

The case file includes such documents as the Claims Collection Litigation Report; Certificate of Indebtedness; Satisfaction of Judgment or Certificate of Discharge; Court and related legal documents such as consent judgments, orders, briefs, pleadings and settlement agreements; status reports, and correspondence, and any other documentation developed during the negotiation, compromise, settlement and/or litigation of the indebtedness.

The automated data base contains data extracted from the case file and any data generated or developed to support the administrative operations of the debt collection program. Information may include personal data, e.g., name, social security number, date of birth, and locator information; claim information, e.g., type of claim such as benefit overpayment, loan default, bankruptcy, etc.; payment demand information, compromise offered, etc.; account information, e.g., debtor payments including principal, penalties, interests, and balances, etc.; information regarding debtor's employment, ability to pay, property liens, etc.; value of claim, name of source agency which provided the loan or benefit; information on the status and disposition of cases at various intervals of time; and any other information related to the negotiation, compromise, settlement, or litigation of indebtedness owed the United States, or to the administrative management of the debt collection program.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The Federal Debt Recovery Act of 1986, 31 U.S.C. 3718(b).

Purpose(s):

The Federal Debt Recovery Act authorizes the Attorney General to contract with private counsel to assist the USAs in the collection of consumer and commercial debts owed the United States on a pilot project basis. Accordingly, the Department is participating in a pilot program in ten judicial districts and has established this system of records to implement the program. This system of records is maintained under contract on behalf of the Department by selected private counsel in the ten judicial districts who, along with the Department's USAs, maintain records and furnish legal services in the negotiation, settlement, and litigation of indebtedness owed the United States. A separate system of records entitled "Debt Collection Management System, JUSTICE/JMD-006" has been established to cover records maintained by JMD to provide automated litigation support to and administrative management of the program.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

In the course of its collection and enforcement activities, the Department will release client Federal agency case files and any related records or information created by the Department to contract private counsel to negotiate, settle, and litigate indebtedness owed the United States.

In the course of its collection and enforcement activities, or during the course of a trial or hearing or preparation for a trial or hearing, the Department through contract private counsel in the selected judicial districts, or through its own USAs in those districts, may disclose records or information from this system as follows:

(a) In any case in which there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law, civil or regulatory in nature—to the appropriate Federal, State, local or foreign agency charged with the responsibility of investigating, defending or pursuing such violation, civil claim or remedy, or charged with enforcing, defending or implementing such law.

(b) To a Federal, State, local, or foreign agency or to an individual or organization, if there is reason to believe that such agency, individual, or organization possesses information relating to the debt, the debtor's ability to pay, or relating to any other matter which is relevant and necessary to the settlement, effective litigation and enforced collection of the debt, or relating to the civil action trial or hearing, and the disclosure is reasonably necessary to elicit such information or to obtain the cooperation of a witness or an agency.

(c) To an actual or potential party, or to his or her attorney, for the purpose of negotiation or discussion on such matters as settlement of the case or matter, or informal discovery proceedings.

(d) To client agencies who have referred debt collection cases to the Department for settlement or litigation and enforced collection to notify such agencies of the status of the case or of any decision or determination that has been made, or to make such other inquiries and reports as are necessary during the processing of the case.

(e) To a Federal agency in response to its request and in connection with hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of the required security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information relates to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

(f) To volunteer student workers and students working under a college work-study program as is necessary to enable them to perform their duties.

(g) To employees or to contract personnel to access the records for Privacy Act training purposes.

(h) In a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Department or contract private counsel is authorized to appear when any of the following is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Department or contract private counsel to be arguably relevant to the litigation: (1) The Department, or any subdivision thereof, or contract private counsel, or (2) any employee of the Department or contract private counsel in his or her official capacity or (3) any employee of the Department or contract private counsel in his or her individual capacity where the Department has agreed to represent the employee, or (4) the United States, where the Department or contract private counsel determines that the litigation is likely to affect the Department or any of its subdivisions.

(i) In a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the Department or contract private counsel is authorized to appear, when the United States, or any agency or subdivision thereof, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the Department or contract private counsel to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

(j) To (1) a Federal agency which employs the individual to enable the employing agency to offset the individual's salary; (2) a Federal, State, local or foreign agency, an organization, including a consumer reporting agency, or individual to elicit information to assist the Department in the settlement or effective litigation and enforced collection of the overdue debt; and (3) the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to enable that agency to offset the individual's tax refund. Records provided to the IRS may be used in a computer matching program to identify individuals who are entitled to refunds against which such offset for overdue debts would be appropriate.

(k) To the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(l) To a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

(m) To the National Archives and Records Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Notice of Disclosure Under Subsection (b)(12) of the Privacy Act: Records relating to individuals who owe a past-due debt to the United States may be disseminated to consumer reporting agencies to encourage payment of the past-due debt.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Case files are stored in locked rooms; automated data is stored on magnetic tape.

Retrievability:

Data is retrieved by name of debtor.

Safeguards:

Access to records is restricted to those Department and contract employees who must have access to perform their settlement or litigation and enforced collection activities, and/or administrative responsibilities. Case files are maintained separately in locked rooms during non-duty hours. Access to automated data requires the use of the proper password and user identification code. Access by contract private counsel is restricted to those cases assigned.

Retention and disposal:

Case files will be destroyed and automated information will be erased ten years after close of case. (Pending approval of the National Archives and Records Administration.)

System manager(s) and address:

System Manager is the Administrative Officer/Assistant for the U.S. Attorney in each of the ten judicial districts named under "System Locations."

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager of the judicial district in which collection efforts have been initiated. (See "System Locations.")

Record access procedures:

Address requests for access to the System Manager of the judicial district in which collection efforts have been initiated. (See "System Locations.") Clearly mark the envelope "Privacy Access Request." Include in the request the debtor's name, date of birth, address, and any other identifying information which may be of assistance in locating the record, e.g., name of the case or Federal agency to whom the debtor is indebted. In addition, include notarized signature of the debtor as well as the name and address of the individual to receive the information if other than the debtor.

Contesting record procedures:

Address requests to the System Manager of the judicial district in which collection efforts have been initiated. (See "System Locations.") State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

The individuals covered by the system; client agencies of the Department to whom the individual is indebted; an attorney or other representative for the debtor and/or payor; any Federal, State, local, foreign, private organization or individual who may have information relating to the debt, the debtor's ability to pay or any other information relevant and necessary to assist in settlement or effective litigation and enforced collection of the debt.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

UNITED STATES MARSHALL SERVICE

JUSTICE/USM-001

System name:

U.S. Marshals Service Badge & Credentials File.

System location:

Property Management Division, U.S. Marshals Service; 600 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22202-4210.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

U.S. Marshals Service (USMS) Personnel.

Categories of records in the system:

Personnel data system established to control issuance of badges and credentials to USMS personnel which contains photographs of all employees and hand receipts showing the employee's name, title, duty location, badge and credential numbers, and date of issuance.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301 and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

This file serves as a record of issuance of credentials. Information from this file may be disclosed (a) to various law enforcement agencies, e.g., FBI, Secret Service, states, county and Municipal police. (b) in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the USMS is authorized to appear when any of the following is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the USMS to be arguably relevant to the litigation: The USMS or any of its subdivisions; any USMS employee in his or her official capacity, or in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice agrees to represent the employee; or the United States where the USMS determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions. (c) to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. (d) to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record. (e) to the National Archives and Records Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are kept in standard file folders.

Retrievability:

Indexed by name of individual and numerical order of badges and credentials.

Safeguards:

Access restricted to personnel of the Property Management Division. Records are maintained in metal filing cabinets which are locked during non-duty hours.

Retention and disposal:

Records are kept for duration of employee's tenure in the Service.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Property Management Division, United States Marshals Service, U.S. Department of Justice, 600 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22202–4210.

Notification procedure:

Same as System Manager.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing with the envelope and the letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request." It should clearly indicate name of requester, the nature of the record sought and approximate dates covered by the record. The requester shall also Provide the required verification of identity (28 CFR 16.41(d)) and provide a return address for transmitting the information. Access requests will be directed to the System Manager listed above, Attention: FOI/PA Officer.

JUSTICE/USMS-010

System name:

Judicial Facility Security Index System.

System location:

Court Security Division, U.S. Marshals Service, (USMS), 600 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22202-4210.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals employed, or offered employment as contract court security officers (CSO's) by companies contracting with the USMS to provide judicial area security in Federal courthouses.

Categories of records in the system:

An alphabetical index contains the name, date of birth and social security number of the contracting security firm (employer), completion dates and cost data for limited background investigation and orientation, district of employment, dates contract performance started and ended, posts and hours of duty and the status of employment, i.e., active or inactive. For inactive CSO's; the index contains the reason for inaction, e.g. CSO resigned; applicant rejected based on the preliminary records check; CSO removed base of Office of Personnel Management (OPM) background investigation; etc. In addition to providing abbreviated data, the index assists in locating records on the court security officer related to the initial screening process for eligibility, e.g., application and preliminary checks for arrest records, which are filed under the contract number and name of the contracting security firm (employer). The index also assists in locating files containing OPM reports on the limited background investigation and internal suitability memoranda which are segregated by the categories "active" and "inactive."

Authority for maintenance of the system:

28 U.S.C. 509, 510, and 569; 5 U.S.C. 301; 44 U.S.C. 3101 and 28 CFR 0.111 (c) through (f).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Contracting personnel and court security program officers within the USMS use this system to make security/suitability determinations in the hiring of contract court security officers, to monitor orientation completed, to track costs related to background investigations and attendance at Government-sponsored orientation, to monitor orientation completed, and to monitor contractor performance. Records may be disclosed as follows: Individual cost data may be disclosed to the contractor (employer) in connection with billing and recovering reimbursable costs. In addition, records or information also may be disclosed as follows:

(a) To an appropriate Federal, State or local law enforcement agency to the extent necessary to obtain information on arrests, or to the extent relevant to an actual or potential, criminal or civil investigation, litigation or enforcement proceedings of that agency.

(b) in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the USMS is authorized to appear when any of the following is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the USMS to be arguably relevant to the litigation: The USMS or any of its subdivisions; any USMS employee in his or her official capacity or in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice agrees to represent the employee; or the United States where the USMS determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions.

(c) To the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(d) To congressional members or staff on behalf of constituents.

(e) To the National Archives and Records Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

An index record is stored on magnetic disks and original paper records are kept in file folders.

Retrievability:

Records are retrieved by name of the contract court security officer.

Safeguards:

Records are stored in locked metal filing cabinets during off-duty hours. Access to computerized records is controlled by restricted code to personnel on a need-to-know basis. Entry to USMS Headquarters is restricted by 24-hour guard service to employees with official and electronic identification.

Retention and disposal:

Records are maintained indefinitely until a detailed records retention plan and disposal schedule is developed by the NARA and the USMS.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Court Security Division, U.S. Marshals Service, 600 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, Virginia.

Notification procedure:

Direct all inquiries to the system manager identified above. Clearly mark the letter and envelope "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request."

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access in writing and clearly mark letter and envelope "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request." Clearly indicate name of the requester, nature of the record sought, approximate dates of the record, and provide the required verification of identity (28 CFR 16.41(d)). Direct all requests to the system manager identified above. Attention: FOI/PA Officer, and provide a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Direct all requests to contest or amend information to the system manager listed above. State clearly and concisely the information being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought. Clearly mark the letter and envelope "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request."

Record source categories:

Information contained in this system is collected from the individual, USMS orientation records, other law enforcement agencies, OPM, and from the contractor (employer).

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c)(3) and (d) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

JUSTICE/USM–012

System name:

U.S. Marshals Service Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) Files.

System location:

Office of Legal Counsel, U.S. Marshals Service, 600 Army Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22202–4210.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals who request disclosure of U.S. Marshals Service (USMS) records pursuant to the Freedom of Informations Act (FOIA); individuals who request access to or correction of records maintained in USMS systems of records pursuant to the Privacy Act (PA); and individuals whose FOIA or PA requests have been referred to the USMS by another Department of Justice component or another agency.

Categories of records in the system:

Alphabetical and chronological indices are maintained to aid in the orderly processing of requests and to compile statistical data for annual reports. Indices include such data items as the name and address of the requester; the type of requests; dates on which the request was received, acknowledged and answered; type or final responses; and exemptions used to deny access to records, when applicable. Identifying data, i.e., date and place of birth and social security number, is maintained on PA requesters to verify their identity and ensure proper disclosure. Files contain a record of the FOIA/PA request, along with the response, copies of documents which have been requested, and internal memoranda or other records related to the initial processing of such request, subsequent appeals and/or litigation.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301 and 44 U.S.C. 3101 to implement the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 and 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

A record maintained in this system may be disseminated as a routine use:

(a) To any Department of Justice component for consideration in connection with an FOIA or PA request, appeal, or civil suit pursuant to the Acts,

(b) To a Federal, State or local agency which furnished the record to permit that agency to make a decision as to access or correction, or to consult with that agency to enable the USMS to determine the propriety access or correction.

(c) In a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the USMS is authorized to appear when any of the following is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the USMS to be arguably relevant to the litigation: The USMS or any of its subdivisions, any USMS employee in his or her official capacity or in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice agrees to represent the employee; or the United States where the USMS determines that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions. In addition, records or information which is relevant to the subject matter involved in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding may be disclosed in response to a request for discovery or for appearance of a witness.

(d) To the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(e) To congressional members or staff on behalf of constituents.

(f) To the National Archives and Records Administration and to the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Index cards are stored in standard card file boxes. Requests files are stored in standard cabinets. Duplicate copies of paper records are maintained on magnetic discs.

Retrievability:

Records are retrieved by name of requester.

Safeguards:

Access to computerized records is restricted to Office of Legal Counsel personnel. In addition, request files are stored in locked metal filing cabinets within the Office of Legal Counsel, USMS headquarters, during off-duty hours. Access to USMS headquarters is controlled by 24-hour guard service.

Retention and disposal:

Records are destroyed 6 years after final response or appeal determination by the Department of Justice. Office of Information and Privacy; or 3 years after final adjudication by the courts.

System manager(s) and address:

General Counsel, Office of Legal Counsels, U.S. Marshals Service, 600 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22202-4210.

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the system manager identified above. Attention: FOIA/PA Officer. Clearly mark the letter and envelope "Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act Request."

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access in writing and clearly mark letter and envelope "Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Request." Clearly indicate name of the requester, nature of the record sought, approximate dates of the record, and provide the required verification of identity (28 CFR 16.41(d)). Direct all requests to the system manager identified above. Attention FOI/PA Officer, and provide a return address for transmitting the information.

Contesting record procedures:

Direct all requests to contest or amend information to the system manager listed above. State clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information sought. Clearly mark the letter and envelope "Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act Request."

Record source categories:

The sources of information contained in this system are the individuals making requests, the systems of records searched in the process of responding to requests and other agencies who have referred to the USMS those requests for access to or correction of USMS records.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted certain categories of records in this system from subsections (c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3); (e)(4) (G) and (H); (e)(5); (e)(8); (f) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(2) and (k)(5). The system is exempted pursuant to subsections (j)(2) and (k)(2) only to the extent that the records there reflect criminal and civil law enforcement and investigative information. The system is exempted pursuant to subsection (k)(5) only to the extent necessary to protect confidential sources. Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.

UNITED STATES TRUSTEES

JUSTICE/UST-001

System name:

Bankruptcy Case Files and Associated Records.

System location:

The Executive Office for United States Trustees and various offices of the United States Trustees depending upon the judicial district where a case is pending or was administered. (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals involved in bankruptcy proceedings (under Chapters 7, 11 and 13 of 11 U.S.C.) subsequent to September 30, 1979, including but not limited to debtors, creditors, bankruptcy trustees, agents representing debtors, creditors, and trustees.

Categories of records in the system:

(a) Petitions/orders for relief, (b) schedules of assets and liabilities of bankrupts, (c) lists of creditors, (d) statements of debtors' financial affairs, (e) docket cards (UST-001, 002, 003, and any alterations thereof), (f) alphabetical cross-reference index cards, (g) general correspondence regarding cases, (h) miscellaneous investigative records, (i) copies of certain petitions, pleadings or other papers filed with the court, including UST recommendations to court for appointment of trustee or examiner in Chapter 11, recommendations for dismissal or conversion, recommendations as to dischargeability, (j) appraisal reports, (k) names of approved despositories and amounts of funds deposited therein, (l) names of sureties and amounts of trustees' bonds, (m) tape or other recordings of creditors meetings called pursuant to Section 341 of Title 11, U.S.C., for the purpose of examination of debtors by creditors, trustee and others, (n) plans filed under Chapter 11 or 13, (o) lists of persons serving as counsel, trustee, or other functionaries in bankruptcy cases, including compensation earned or sought by each, (p) lists of attorneys representing creditors in bankruptcy cases.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

These systems are established and maintained pursuant to 26 U.S.C. 586 and 11 U.S.C., especially Chapter 15 thereof.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The records are used by personnel of the Executive Office and the United States Trustee field offices to determine the existence of a case, to ascertain the status of actions with respect to a case, and to ensure that timely action is taken as appropriate, and to determine the involvement by agents or other representatives of parties in such cases.

As provided in 11 U.S.C. 107, a paper filed in a case and the dockets of the bankruptcy court are public records and open to examination except when the court acts to protect an entity with respect to a trade secret or confidential research, development, or commercial information; or to protect a person with respect to scandalous or defamatory matter contained in a paper filed in a case under title 11. If the court enters such a protective order, that portion of the record is only available upon the consent of the entity, so protected.

In addition, except when the court has moved to protect an entity, the records will be disseminated as a routine use of such records as follows: (1) A record, or any facts derived therefrom, may be disseminated in a proceeding before a court, an adjudicative body or any proceeding relevant to the administration of a case or any proceeding relevant to the administration of a case filed under title 11 of the United States Code in which the United States Trustees are authorized to appear, when (i) the United States Trustees, or (ii) any employee of the United States Trustees in his or her official capacity, or (iii) any employee of the United States Trustees in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (iv) the United States, where the United States Trustees determine that the litigation is likely to affect it or any of its subdivisions, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the United States Trustees to be arguably relevant to the litigation; (2) a record, or any facts derived therefrom, may be disseminated in a proceeding before a court, an adjudicative body or any proceeding relevant to the administration of a case filed under title 11 of the United States Code in which the United States Trustee is authorized to appear, when the United States, or any agency or subdivision thereof, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the United States Trustees to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Release of information to the news media: Information permitted to be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 may be made available from systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 et seq., may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of Information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from the system of records may be disclosed to the NARA and GSA for records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. Secs. 2904 and 2906.

Release of information to law enforcement or regulatory agencies: Information obtained by the U.S. Trustees will be transmitted to appropriate state, local, Federal or other law enforcement or regulatory agencies whenever a U.S. Trustee or the Director, Executive Office for U.S. Trustees or his designee believes that such transmittal in public interest except to the extent that such transmittal would conflict with any immunity granted by a court of competent jurisdiction in accordance with the provisions of Title 11, U.S.C.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

All information, except that specified below in this paragraph is recorded on basic paper/cardboard material and maintained within metal file boxes, file cabinets, electric file/card retrievers or safes. Certain information from the documents, forms, lists and reports described under "categories of records in the system" will be entered into an automated information system and stored on magnetic disks for reproduction in report form at various times. This includes the case number, debtor's names, case status, type of case, assets of estate, dates of reports filed, trustee bonds, debtor's attorney's name and fees, calendar of meetings and hearings, creditor's committee status, plan and schedule due dates, and trustee/examiner names and dates appointed.

Retrievability:

Banks, is maintained alphabetically. (Case files maintained in the Executive Office are assigned sequential file numbers and are cross referenced alphabetically by name of the debtor.) Automated information is retrieved by case number or report number.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is unclassified. It is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Departmental rules and procedures governing the handling of office records and computerized information. During duty hours access to this system is monitored and controlled by U.S. Trustee office personnel. During nonduty hours offices are locked.

Retention and disposal:

Maintenance and diposition schedules are being developed within the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees. There is presently no authority to destroy any information within this system except those documents which are duplicates of records for which the bankruptcy courts maintain the official record copies.

System manager(s) and address:

System manager for the system in each office is the U.S. Trustee and in the Executive Office, the Chief, Management and Budget Section. (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager for the Judicial district in which the case is pending, or was administered. (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Record access procedures:

A request for access to record from this system shall ordinarily be made in person at the U.S. Trustee office in which the case is filed.

Contesting record procedures:

Individual desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager (see appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE-UST-999), stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment to the information.

Record source categories:

Sources of information contained in this record are generally limited to debtors, creditors, trustees, examiners, attorneys, and other agents participating in the administration of a case, judges of the bankruptcy courts and employees of the U.S. Trustee offices.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/UST-002

System name:

Panel Trustee Application File.

System location:

The Executive Office for United States Trustees and various offices of the United States Trustees depending upon the judicial district where the trustee has made application to the panel. (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All applicants for membership on the private panels of trustees eligible to serve as trustees in Chapter 7 bankruptcy cases.

Categories of records in the system:

Panel Trustee Application File (UST-002), may also include resumes, letters of recommendation, notes reflecting oral checking of references, school transcripts, and other supporting information provided by applicants or developed by the U.S. Trustee.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

The systems are established and maintained pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 588(a).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records are used by the individual U.S. Trustee office in which they are maintained. Their sole purpose is for determining the qualifications and eligibility of persons applying to serve as trustees in Chapter 7 bankruptcy cases. The records are reviewed by the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees.

Release of information to members of congress

Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on bahalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA):

A record from the system of records may be disclosed to the NARA and GSA for records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

These records are filed in paper folders in metal filing cabinets.

Retrievability:

Folders are filed alphabetically by the applicant's name.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is unclassified. It is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Departmental rules and procedures governing the handling of official records. During duty hours access to this system is monitored and controlled by U.S. Trustee office personnel. During nonduty hours offices are locked.

Retention and disposal:

Maintenance and disposition schedules are being developed within the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees. There is presently no authority to destroy any information within this system.

System manager(s) and address:

System Manager for the System in each office, is the U.S. Trustee and in the Executive Office, the Deputy Director, (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE-UST-999.)

Notification procedure:

Address inquires to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing with the envelope and letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request".

Contesting record procedures:

Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Information contained in the system is provided by the applicant the applicant's references, and interested third parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/UST-003

System name:

U.S. Trustee Timekeeping System.

System location:

The Executive Office for United States Trustees and various offices of the United States Trustees depending upon where an employee has been assigned for duty. (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Nonclerical employees of the U.S. Trustees' offices.

Categories of records in the system:

The system includes employees' names and a record of their work time by program activity.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

This system is established and maintained pursuant to 11 U.S.C., and 28 U.S.C. 552.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

This system consists of a record of the work time, by program activity, of nonclerical employees of the U.S. Trustee pilot program. The system is used by the EOUST to analyze workload as a basis for requesting and allocating personnel and other resources. This information is compiled in each of the 13 field offices and forwarded to EOUST for analysis.

Release of information to Members of Congress: Information contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice, not otherwise required to be released pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552, may be made available to a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record.

Release of Information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA): A record from the system of records may be disclosed to the NARA and GSA for records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Records are kept on forms UST-4a, UST-4b, UST-4c and UST-4d, which are filed in metal cabinets.

Retrievability:

Information is maintained alphabetically by the name of the employee. In EOUST, duplicate records are maintained and organized by district.

Safeguards:

Information contained in the system is unclassified. It is safeguarded and protected in accordance with Departmental rules and procedures governing the handling of official records. During duty hours access to this system is monitored and controlled by U.S. Trustee office personnel. During nonduty hours offices are locked.

Retention and disposal:

Maintenance and disposition schedules are being developed within the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees. There is presently no authority to destroy any document within this system.

System manager(s) and address:

System Manager for the system in each office, is the U.S. Trustee and in the Executive Office, the Deputy Director. (See appendix of addresses identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Notification procedure:

Address inquiries to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:

A request for access to a record from this system shall be made in writing with the envelope and letter clearly marked "Privacy Access Request".

Contesting record procedures:

Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their request to the System Manager stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it, and the proposed amendment(s) to the information.

Record source categories:

Nonclerical employees of the U.S. Trustee's offices.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

None.

JUSTICE/UST-004

System name:

United States Trustee Program Case Referral System, JUSTICE/UST-004.

System location:

Executive Office for United States Trustees (EOUST), United States Department of Justice, Room 812, 320 First Street, NW., Washington, DC 20530. Records may also be located in the various field offices. (See Appendix identified as JUSTICE/UST-999.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

This system encompasses entities and individuals involved in the bankruptcy process who are suspected of having engaged in criminal conduct or of having violated other Federal laws, and whose activities have been reported by the U.S. Trustees or EOUST to a U.S. Attorney pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3057, or to other law enforcement authorities for investigation.

Categories of records in the system:

Records consist of any information about a case filed under Title 11 of the U.S. Code which is the subject of, or is associated with, a referral to law enforcement authorities. Records will consist of any information pertaining to the subject of the referral who may be the debtor himself, or any other individual associated with the bankruptcy case who is suspected of having engaged in criminal conduct or having violated other Federal laws. The information may include the subject's name, address, date of birth, or social security number; a chronological account of the incident(s); the source of the information; names and addresses of witnesses; the law enforcement agency to whom the referral is made; and the status or final disposition of the referral. The system may also contain information about the bankruptcy case with which the subject of the referral is associated. Such information may include the debtor's name, address, social security number; case number and case chapter; the trustee's name, address and phone number; the judge assigned to the case; and such other case data as may be filed in the records of the court or of the U.S. Trustee.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

28 U.S.C. 586, 18 U.S.C. 3057.

Purpose(s):

The purposes of this system are to assist the U.S. Trustees: (1) In supervising the administration of cases and trustees in cases filed under Chapters 7, 11 and 13 of Title 11, U.S. Code, as codified by Title I of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 (11 U.S.C. 101, et seq.); (2) in carrying out their congressional mandate "to serve as bankruptcy watch-dogs to prevent fraud, dishonesty, and overreaching in the bankruptcy arena" (H.R. Rep. No. 595, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. 88 (1978)); and (3) in complying with 18 U.S.C. 3057 which directs trustees to report for investigation any instance where there are reasonable grounds for believing that there has been a violation of Federal laws relating to insolvent debtors or reorganization plans. The U.S. Trustees and EOUST will inform the appropriate law enforcement authorities when fraud or other violations of Federal law are suspected or discovered in a bankruptcy case and will maintain records thereof described under "Categories of Records in the System." The data will be used for program-wide evaluation purposes, for statistical purposes, and to track the number, type, and outcome of cases referred for investigation.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

These records may be disclosed to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2 unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy or would impede an ongoing law enforcement proceeding.

These records may be disclosed to a Member of Congress or staff acting on the Member's behalf when the Member or staff requests the information on behalf of, and at the request of, the individual to whom the records pertain.

These records may be disclosed to members of the judicial branch of the Federal Government where disclosure appears relevant to the authorized function of the recipient judicial office or court system.

These records may be disclosed to any civil or criminal law enforcement authorities, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, for investigation of suspected violations of Federal or State laws. Records may also be disclosed to these law enforcement authorities to assist in ongoing investigations. These records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and the General Services Administration (GSA) in records management inspections conducted under the authority of Title 44 of the U.S. Code.

These records may be disclosed to a trustee in a case filed under Chapter 7, 11 or 13 of Title 11, U.S. Code, when the U.S. Trustee determines that the release of information is necessary to enable the trustee to properly administer the case and to perform the duties and responsibilities of a case trustee set forth in Title 11 and in 18 U.S.C. 3057.

These records may be disclosed, except when the bankruptcy court has moved to protect an entity as provided in 11 U.S.C. 107, in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body or any proceeding relevant to the administration of a case filed under Title 11 in which the U.S. Trustee is authorized to appear when (a) the U.S. Trustee, or (b) any employee of the U.S. Trustee in his or her official capacity, or (c) any employee of the U.S. Trustee in his or her individual capacity, where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee, or (d) the United States, or any agency or subdivision thereof, is a party to litigation or has an interest in litigation and such records are determined by the U.S. Trustee to be arguably relevant to the litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

All records are stored in paper folders in cabinets. All records are also stored on computer disks.

Retrievability:

Computerized records will be retrievable by using any one or various combinations of the assigned case referral number, the judicial district or U.S. Trustee's field office from which the referral is generated, the date of the referral, the debtor's name, the case chapter, the name, social security or employer identification number and date of birth of the individual who is the subject of the referral, the subject's relationship to the debtor, the general nature of the charges and/or the status of the referral. Records stored in paper folders will be filed chronologically by the case referral number.

Safeguards:

Paper folders are stored in a file cabinet which is located inside a room with a bolt lock. The computer disks are located in the same room. Only those persons with a need to know have access to the records.

Retention and disposal:

A detailed records retention plan and disposal schedule is being developed by NARA and EOUST.

System manager(s) and address:

Deputy Director for Legal Services, Executive Office for United States Trustees, United States Department of Justice, Room 812, 320 First Street NW., Washington, DC 20530.

Notification procedure:

Address all inquiries to the system manager. These records will be exempted from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2) and (3) (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8); (f) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2).

Record access procedures:

Make all requests for access to records from this system in writing to the system manager and clearly mark both the letter and the envelope "Privacy Act Request." Provide the full name and notarized signature of the individual who is the subject of the request, and a return address.

Contesting record procedures:

Make all requests to correct a record in writing to the system manager. The request must identify the particular record in question, state the correction sought and set forth the justification for correcting or contesting it. These procedures are in accordance with Department regulations (28 CFR 16.50) Federal Register, March 29, 1984, page 12258.

Record source categories:

The records will contain information obtained by or furnished to the U.S. Trustee or EOUST (1) from Federal or State court records; (2) from debtors or debtors' principals, agents or representatives; and (3) from informants and interested third parties.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Subpart D—Protection of Privacy and Access to Individual Records Under the Privacy Act of 1974

§ 16.40 General provisions.

(a) Purpose and scope. This subpart contains the regulations of the Department of Justice implementing the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a. The regulations apply to all records which are contained in systems of records maintained by the Department of Justice and which are retrieved by an individual's name or personal identifier. These regulations set forth the procedures by which an individual may seek access under the Privacy Act to records pertaining to him, may request correction of such records, or may seek an accounting of disclosures of such records by the Department. These regulations are applicable to each component of the Department.

(b) Transfer of law enforcement records. The head of a component, or his designee, is authorized to make written requests under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(7) for transfer of records maintained by other agencies which are necessary to carry out an authorized law enforcement activity of the component.

(c) Definitions. As used in this subpart, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Agency" has the meaning given in 5 U.S.C. 551(l) and 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(1).

(2) "Component" means each separate bureau, office, board, division, commission, service, or administration of the Department of Justice.

(3) "Record" means any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual which is maintained by any component within a system of records and which contains the individual's name, identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a fingerprint, voiceprint, or photograph.

(4) "Request for access" means a request made pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1).

(5) "Request for correction" means a request made pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(2).

(6) "Request for an accounting" means a request made pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3).

(7) "Requester" means an individual who makes either a request for access, a request for correction, or a request for an accounting.

(8) "System of records" means a group of any records under the control of any component from which information is retrieved by the name of an individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to that individual.

§ 16.41 Requests for access to records.

(a) Procedure for making requests for access to records. An individual may request access to a record about him by appearing in person or by writing to the component that maintains the record. (Appendix I to this part lists the components of the Department of Justice and their addresses. The "Notice of Records Systems" published by the National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, describes the systems of records maintained by all federal agencies, including the Department and its components.) A requester in need of guidance in defining his request may write to the FOIA/PA Section, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th Street and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530. A request should be addressed to the component that maintains the requested record. Both the envelope and the request itself should be marked: "Privacy Act Request." Requests for certain historical records of the Department maintained in National Archives and Records Administration must be directed to the General Services Administration in accordance with its regulations.

(b) Description of records sought. A request for access to records must describe the records sought in sufficient detail to enable Department personnel to locate the system of records containing the record with a reasonable amount of effort. Whenever possible, a request for access should describe the nature of the record sought, the date of the record or the period in which the record was compiled, and the name or identifying number of the system of records in which the requester believes the record is kept. The Notices the Department publishes in the Federal Register describing its components' systems of records may require, in appropriate instances, that requests for access to records describe the records sought with even greater specificity.

(c) Agreement to pay fees. The filing of a request for access to a record under this subpart shall be deemed to constitute an agreement to pay all applicable fees charged under § 16.47 up to $25.00. The component responsible for responding to the request shall confirm this agreement in its letter of acknowledgment to the requester. When filing a request, a requester may specify a willingness to pay a greater amount, if applicable.

(d) Verification of identity. Any individual who submits a request for access to records must verify his identity in one of the following ways, unless the notice published in the Federal Register describing the relevant system of records provides otherwise:

(1) Any requester making a request in writing must state in his request his full name, current address, and date and place of birth. In addition, a requester must provide with his request an example of his signature, which shall be notarized. Sample forms used for such notarized statement of identity may be obtained from the FOIA/PA Section, Justice Management Division, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th Street and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530. In order to facilitate the identification and location of the requested records, a requester may also, at his option, include in his request his Social Security number.

(2) Any requester submitting a request in person may provide to the component a form of official photographic identification, such as a passport or an identification badge. If a requester is unable to produce a form of photographic identification, he may provide to the component two or more acceptable forms of identification (such as a driver's license or credit card) bearing his name and address.

(e) Verification of guardianship. The parent or guardian of a minor (or the guardian of a person judicially determined to be incompetent) who submits a request for access to the records of the minor or incompetent must establish:

(1) His own identity and the identity of he subject of the record, as required in paragraph (d) of this section,

(2) That the is the parent or guardian of the subject of the record, which may be proved by providing a copy of the subject's birth certificate showing parentage or by providing a court order establishing the guardianship, and

(3) That he seeks to act on behalf of the subject of the record.

§ 16.42 Responses by components to requests for access to records.

(a) In general. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the component that: (1) First receives a request for access to a record, and (2) has possession of the requested record is the component ordinarily responsible for responding to the request.

(b) Authority to grant or deny requests. The head of a component, or his designee, is authorized to grant or deny any request for access to a record of that component.

(c) Initial action by the receiving component. When a component receives a request for access to a record in its possession, the component shall promptly determine whether another component, or another Government agency, is better able to determine whether the record is exempt, to any extent, from access. If the receiving component determines that it is the component or agency best able to determine whether the record is exempt, to any extent, from access, then the receiving component shall respond to the request. If the receiving component determines that it is not the component or agency best able to determine whether or not the record is exempt from access, the receiving component shall respond to the request, after consulting with the component or agency best able to determine whether or not the record is exempt from access. Under ordinary circumstances, the component or agency that generated or originated a requested record shall be presumed to be the component or agency best able to determine whether or not the record is exempt from access. However, nothing in this section shall prohibit a component that generated or originated a requested record from consulting with another component or agency, if the component that generated or originated the requested record determines that the other component or agency has an interest in the requested record or the information contained therein.

(d) Law enforcement information. Whenever a request for access is made for a record containing information which relates to an investigation of a possible violation of criminal law or to a criminal law enforcement proceeding and which was generated or originated by another component or agency, the receiving component shall consult with that other component or agency, as appropriate.

(e) Classified information. Whenever a request for access is made for a record containing information which has been classified, or which may be eligible for classification, by another component or agency under the provision of Executive Order 12356 or any other Executive order concerning the classification of records, the receiving component shall refer the responsibility for responding to the request to the component or agency that classified the information or should consider the information for classification. Whenever a record contains information that has been derivatively classified by a component because it contains information classified by another component or agency, the component shall refer the responsibility for responding to the request to the component or agency that classified the underlying information; however, such referral shall extend only to the information classified by the other component or agency.

(f) Agreements regarding consultations. No provision of this section shall preclude formal or informal agreements between components, or between a component and another agency, to eliminate the need for consultations concerning requests or classes of requests.

(g) Processing of requests for access not properly addressed. A request for access that is not properly addressed as specified in § 16.41(a) of this subpart shall be forwarded to the FOIA/PA Section, Justice Management Division, which shall forward the request to the appropriate component or components for processing. A request not addressed to the appropriate component will be deemed not to have been received by the Department until the FOIA/PA Section has forwarded the request to the appropriate component and that component has received the request, or until the request would have been so forwarded and received with the exercise of reasonable diligence by Department personnel. A component receiving an improperly addressed request from the FOIA/PA Section shall notify the requester of the date on which it received the request.

(h) Date for determining responsive records. In determining records responsive to a request for access, a component ordinarily will include only those records within the component's possession and control as of the date of its receipt of the request.

§ 16.43 Form and content of component responses.

(a) Form of notice granting request for access. After a component has made a determination to grant a request for access in whole or in part, the component shall so notify the requester in writing. The notice shall describe the manner in which access to the record will be granted and shall inform the requester of any fees to be charged in accordance with § 16.47 of this subpart.

(b) Form of notice denying request for access. A component denying a request for access in whole or in part shall so notify the requester in writing. The notice shall be signed by the head of the responsible component, or his designee, and shall include:

(1) The name and title or position of the person responsible for the denial;

(2) A brief statement of the reason or reasons for the denial, including the Privacy Act exemption or exemptions which the component has relied upon in denying the request and a brief explanation of the manner in which the exemption or exemptions apply to each record withheld; and

(3) A statement that the denial may be appealed under § 16.48(a) of this subpart, and a description of the requirements of that subsection.

(c) Record cannot be located or has been destroyed. If a requested record cannot be located from the information supplied, or is known or believed to have been destroyed or otherwise disposed of, the component shall so notify the requester in writing.

(d) Medical records. When an individual requests medical records pertaining to himself which are not otherwise exempt from individual access, the component may advise the individual that the records will be provided only to a physician, designated by the individual, who requests the records and establishes his identity in writing. The designated physician shall determine which records should be provided to the individual and which records should not be disclosed to the individual because of possible harm to the individual or another person.

§ 16.44 Classified information.

In processing a request for access to a record containing information that is classified or classifiable under Executive Order 12356 or any other Executive order concerning the classification of records, a component shall review the information to determine whether it warrants classification. Information which does not warrant classification shall not be withheld from a requester on the basis of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). The Office of Information and Privacy shall, upon receipt of any appeal involving classified or classifiable information, take appropriate action to ensure compliance with Part 17 of this chapter.

§ 16.45 Records in exempt systems of records.

(a) Law enforcement records exempted under subsection (k)(2). Before denying a request by an individual for access to a law enforcement record which has been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), the component must review the requested record to determine whether information in the record has been used or is being used to deny the individual any right, privilege, or benefit for which he is eligible or to which he would otherwise be entitled under federal law. If so, the component shall notify the requester of the existence of the record and disclose such information to the requester, except to the extent that the information would identify a confidential source. In cases where disclosure of information in a law enforcement record could reasonably be expected to identify a confidential source, the record shall not be disclosed to the requester unless the component is able to delete from such information all material which would identify the confidential source.

(b) Employee background investigations. When a requester requests access to a record pertaining to a background investigation and the record has been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5), the record shall not be disclosed to the requester unless the component is able to delete from such record all information which would identify a confidential source.

§ 16.46 Access to records.

(a) Manner of access. A component that has made a determination to grant a request for access shall grant the requester access to the requested record either by: (1) Providing the requester with a copy of the record or (2) making the record available for inspection by the requester at a reasonable time and place. The component shall in either case charge the requester applicable fees in accordance with the provisions of § 16.47 of this subpart. If a component provides access to a record by making the record available for inspection by the requester, the manner of such inspection shall not unreasonably disrupt the operations of the component.

(b) Accompanying person. A requester appearing in person to review his records may be accompanied by another individual of his own choosing. Both the requester and the accompanying person shall be required to sign a form stating that the Department of Justice is authorized to disclose the record in the presence of both individuals.

§ 16.47 Fees for access to records.

(a) When charged. A component shall charge fees pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 9701 and 5 U.S.C. 552a(f)(5) for the copying of records to afford access to individuals unless the component, in its discretion, waives or reduces the fees for good cause shown. A component shall charge fees only at the rate of $0.10 per page. For materials other than paper copies, the component may charge the direct costs of reproduction, but only if the requester has been notified of such costs before they are incurred. Fees shall not be charged where they would amount, in the aggregate, for one request or for a series of related requests, to less than $3.00. However, a component may, in its discretion, increase the amount of this minimum fee.

(b) Notice of estimated fees in excess of $25. When a component determines or estimates that the fees to be charged under this section may amount to more than $25, the component shall notify the requester as soon as practicable of the actual or estimated amount of the fee, unless the requester has indicated in advance his willingness to pay a fee as high as that anticipated. (If only a portion of the fee can be estimated readily, the component shall advise the requester that the estimated fee may be only a portion of the total fee.) Where the estimated fee exceeds $25 and a component has so notified the requester, the component will be deemed not to have received the request for access to records until the requester has agreed to pay the anticipated fee. A notice to a requester pursuant to this paragraph shall offer him the opportunity to confer with Department personnel with the object of reformulating his request to meet his needs at a lower cost.

(c) Form of payment. Requesters must pay fees by check or money order made payable to the Treasury of the United States.

(d) Advance deposits. (1) Where the estimated fee chargeable under this section exceeds $25, a component may require a requester to make an advance deposit of 25 percent of the estimated fee or an advance payment of $25, whichever is greater.

(2) Where a requester has previously failed to pay a fee charged under this part, the requester must pay the component or the Department the full amount owed and make an advance deposit of the full amount of any estimated fee before a component shall be required to process a new or pending request for access from that requester.

§ 16.48 Appeals from denials of access.

(b) Action on appeals by the Office of Information and Privacy. Unless the Attorney General otherwise directs, the Director, Office of Information and Privacy, under the supervision of the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Policy, shall act on behalf of the Attorney General on all appeals under this section, except that:

(1) In the case of a denial of a request for access by the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Policy, the Attorney General or his designee shall act on the appeal, and

(2) A denial of a request for access by the Attorney General shall constitute the final action of the Department on that request.

(c) Form of action on appeal. The disposition of an appeal shall be in writing. A decision affirming in whole or in part the denial of a request for access shall include a brief statement of the reason or reasons for the affirmance, including each Privacy Act exemption relied upon and its relation to each record withheld, and a statement that judicial review of the denial is available in the U.S. District Court for the judicial district in which the requester resides or has his principal place of business, the judicial district in which the requested records are located, or the District of Columbia. If the denial of a request for access is reversed on appeal, the requester shall be so notified and the request shall be processed promptly in accordance with the decision on appeal.

§ 16.49 Preservation of records.

Each component shall preserve all correspondence relating to the requests it receives under this subpart, and all records processed pursuant to such requests, until such time as the destruction of such correspondence and records is authorized pursuant to title 44 of the U.S. Code. Under no circumstances shall records be destroyed while they are the subject of a pending request for access, appeal, or lawsuit under the Act.

§ 16.50 Requests for correction of records.

(a) How made. Unless a record is exempted from correction and amendment, an individual may submit a request for correction of a record pertaining to him. A request for correction must be made in writing and must be addressed to the component that maintains the record. (Appendix I to this part lists the components of the Department and their addresses.) The request must identify the particular record in question, state the correction sought, and set forth the justification for the correction. Both the envelope and the request for correction itself must be clearly marked: "Privacy Act Correction Request." If a requester believes that the same record appears in more than one system of records, he should address his request for correction to each component that controls a system of records which contains the record.

(b) Initial determination. Within 10 working days of receiving a request for correction, a component shall notify the requester whether his request will be granted or denied, in whole or in part. If the component grants the request for correction in whole or in part, it shall advise the requester of his right to obtain a copy of the corrected record, in releasable form, upon request. If the component denies the request for correction in whole or in part, it shall notify the requester in writing of the denial. The notice of denial shall state the reason or reasons for the denial and advise the requester of his right to appeal.

(c) Appeals. When a request for correction is denied in whole or in part, the requester may appeal the denial to the Attorney General within 30 days of his receipt of the notice denying his request. An appeal to the Attorney General shall be made in writing, shall set forth the specific item of information sought to be corrected, and shall include any documentation said to justify the correction. An appeal shall be addressed to the Office of Information and Privacy, U.S. Department of Justice, 10th Street and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530, unless the appeal is from a denial by the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Policy, in which case the appeal shall be addressed to the Attorney General, at the same address. Both the envelope and the letter of appeal itself must be clearly marked: "Privacy Act Correction Appeal."

(d) Determination on appeal. The Director, Office of Information and Privacy, under the supervision of the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Policy, or the Attorney General in appropriate cases, shall decide all appeals from denials of requests to correct records. All such appeals shall be decided within 30 working days of receipt of the appeal, unless there is good cause to extend this period. If the denial of a request is affirmed on appeal, the requester shall be so notified in writing and advised of: (1) The reason or reasons the denial has been affirmed, (2) the requester's right to file a Statement of Disagreement, as provided in paragraph (e) of this section, and (3) the requester's right to obtain judicial review of the denial in the U.S. District Court for the judicial district in which the requester resides or has his principal place of business, the judicial district in which the record is located, or the District of Columbia. If the denial is reversed on appeal, the requester shall be so notified and the request for correction shall be remanded to the component that denied the request for processing in accordance with the decision on appeal.

(e) Statements of disagreement. A requester whose appeal under this section is denied shall have the right to file a Statement of Disagreement with the Office of Information and Privacy, 10th Street and Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20530, within 30 days of receiving notice of denial of his appeal. Statements of Disagreement may not exceed one typed page per fact disputed. Statements exceeding this limit shall be returned to the requester for condensation. Upon receipt of a Statement of Disagreement under this section, the Director, Office of Information and Privacy, shall have the statement included in the system of records in which the disputed record is maintained and shall have the disputed record marked so as to indicate (1) that a Statement of Disagreement has been filed, and (2) where in the system of records the Statement may be found.

§ 16.51 Records not subject to correction.

The following records are not subject to correction or amendment as provided in § 16.50 of this subpart:

(a) Transcripts of testimony given under oath or written statements made under oath;

(b) Transcripts of grand jury proceedings, judicial proceedings, or quasi-judicial proceedings which constitute the official record of such proceedings;

(c) Presentence reports which are the property of the courts, but are maintained by a component in a system of records; and

(d) Records duly exempted from correction pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) or 552a(k) by notice published in the Federal Register.

§ 16.52 Request for accounting of record disclosures.

(a) An individual may request a component that maintains a record pertaining to him to provide him with an accounting of those other agencies to which the component has disclosed the record, and the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure. A request for an accounting must be made in writing and must identify the particular record for which the accounting is requested. The request also must be addressed to the component that maintains the particular record, and both the envelope and the request itself must clearly be marked: "Privacy Act Accounting Request." (Appendix I to this part lists the components of the Department and their addresses.)

(b) Components shall not be required to provide an accounting to an individual to the extent that the accounting relates to:

(1) Records for which no accounting must be kept pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(1),

(2) Disclosures of records to law enforcement agencies for lawful law enforcement activities, pursuant to written requests from such law enforcement agencies specifying records sought and the law enforcement activities for which the records are sought, under 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (b)(7), or

(3) Records for which an accounting need not be disclosed pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) or (k).

(c) A denial of a request for an accounting may be appealed to the Attorney General in the same manner as a denial of a request for access, with both the envelope and the letter of appeal itself clearly marked: "Privacy Act Accounting Appeal."

§ 16.53 Notice of subpoenas and emergency disclosures.

(a) Subpoenas. When records pertaining to an individual are subpoenaed by a grand jury, court, or quasi-judicial authority, the official served with the subpoena shall be responsible for ensuring that written notice of its service is forwarded to the individual. Notice shall be provided within 10 working days of the service of the subpoena or, in the case of a grand jury subpoena, within 10 working days of its becoming a matter of public record. Notice shall be mailed to the last known address of the individual and shall contain the following information: The date the subpoena is returnable, the court or quasi-judicial authority to which it is returnable, the name and number of the case or proceeding, and the nature of the records sought. Notice of the service of a subpoena is not required if the system of records has been exempted from the notice requirement of 5 U.S.C. 522a(e)(8), pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j), by a Notice of Exemption published in the Federal Register.

§ 16.54 Security of systems of records.

(a) The Assistant Attorney General for Administration, Justice Management Division, shall be responsible for issuing regulations governing the security of systems of records. To the extent that such regulations govern the security of automated systems of records, the regulations shall be consistent with the guidelines developed by the National Bureau of Standards.

(b) Each component shall establish administrative and physical controls to prevent unauthorized access to its systems of records, to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of records, and to prevent the physical damage or destruction of records. The stringency of such controls shall reflect the sensitivity of the records the controls protect. At a minimum, however, each component's administrative and physical controls shall ensure that:

(1) Records are protected from public view,

(2) The area in which records are kept is supervised during business hours to prevent unauthorized persons from having access to the records, and

(3) Records are inaccessible to unauthorized persons outside of business hours.

(c) Each component shall establish rules restricting access to records to only those individuals within the Department who must have access to such records in order to perform their duties. Each component also shall adopt procedures to prevent the accidental disclosure of records or the accidental granting of access to records.

§ 16.55 Contracting record systems.

(a) No component of the Department shall contract for the operation of a record system by or on behalf of the Department without the express approval of the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, or the Assistant Attorney General for Administration.

(b) Any contract which is approved shall contain the standard contract requirements promulgated by the General Services Administration to ensure compliance with the requirements imposed by the Privacy Act. The contracting component shall have responsibility for ensuring that the contracter complies with the contract requirements relating to privacy.

§ 16.56 Use and collection of social security numbers.

(a) Each system manager of a system of records which utilizes Social Security numbers as a method of identification without statutory authorization, or authorization by regulation adopted prior to January 1, 1975, shall take steps to revise the system to avoid future collection and use of the Social Security numbers.

(b) The head of each component shall take such measures as are necessary to ensure that employees authorized to collect information from individuals are advised that individuals may not be required to furnish Social Security numbers without statutory or regulatory authorization and that individuals who are requested to provide Social Security numbers voluntarily must be advised that furnishing the number is not required and that no penalty or denial of benefits will flow from the refusal to provide it.

§ 16.57 Employee standards of conduct.

(a) Each component shall inform its employees of the provisions of the Privacy Act, including the Act's civil liability and criminal penalty provisions. Each component also shall notify its employees that they have a duty to:

(1) Protect the security of records,

(2) Ensure the accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness of records,

(3) Avoid the unauthorized disclosure, either verbal or written, of records, and

(4) Ensure that the component maintains no system of records without public notice.

(b) Except to the extent that the Privacy Act permits such activities, an employee of the Department of Justice shall:

(1) Not collect information of a personal nature from individuals unless the employee is authorized to collect such information to perform a function or discharge a responsibility of the Department;

(2) Collect from individuals only that information which is necessary to the performance of the functions or to the discharge of the responsibilities of the Department;

(3) Collect information about an individual directly from that individual, whenever practicable;

(4) Inform each individual from whom information is collected of:

(i) The legal authority that authorizes the Department to collect such information,

(ii) The principal purposes for which the Department intends to use the information,

(iii) The routine uses the Department may make of the information, and

(iv) The practical and legal effects upon the individual of not furnishing the information;

(5) Maintain all records which are used by the agency in making any determination about any individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as to ensure fairness to the individual in the determination;

(6) Except as to disclosures to an agency or pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(2), make reasonable efforts, prior to disseminating any record about an individual, to ensure that such records are accurate, relevant, timely, and complete;

(7) Maintain no record concerning an individual's religious or political beliefs or activities, or his membership in associations or organizations, unless:

(i) The individual has volunteered such information for his own benefit,

(ii) A statute expressly authorizes the Department to collect, maintain, use, or disseminate the information, or

(iii) The individual's beliefs, activities, or membership are pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement or correctional activity;

(8) Notify the head of the component of the existence or development of any system of records that has not been disclosed to the public;

(9) When required by the Act, maintain an accounting in the prescribed form of all disclosures of records by the Department to agencies or individual's whether verbally or in writing;

(10) Disclose no record to anyone, except a component, for any use, unless authorized by the Act;

(11) Maintain and use records with care to prevent the inadvertent disclosure of a record to anyone; and

(12) Notify the head of the component of any record that contains information that the Act or the foregoing provisions of this paragraph do not permit the Department to maintain.

(c) Not less than once each year, the head of each component shall review the systems of records maintained by that component to ensure that the component is in compliance with the provisions of the Privacy Act.

§ 16.58 Other rights and services.

Nothing in this subpart shall be construed to entitle any person, as of right, to any service or to the disclosure of any record to which such person is not entitled under 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Appendix A to Subpart D—Delegation of Authority

1. By virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 16.45 of Title 28 of the Code of Federal Regulations, the authority to deny requests under the Privacy Act of 1974 is delegated to the occupant of the position of Chief, Freedom of Information-Privacy Acts Section, Records Management Division, Federal Bureau of Investigation. This same authority is delegated to the occupant of the position of Special Agent in Charge of each of the field offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for records in their custody and control.

2. This directive is effective June 9, 1981.

[46 FR 36140, July 14, 1981, as amended at 49 FR 11625, Mar. 27, 1984]

Appendix B to Subpart D—Delegation of Authority

(a) By virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 16.45(a) of Title 28 of the Code of Federal Regulations, I hereby delegate authority to the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia to:

(1) Respond initially to requests;

(2) Grant and deny access to records;

(3) Communicate directly with the Office of Information and Privacy concerning administrative appeals; and

(4) Prepare affidavits, litigation reports, and other necessary documents in preperation for civil litigation in suits pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1)(B).

(b) This authority is limited to those records which are in the systems of records under the custody and control of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia. The authority delegated herein may be redelegated.

(c) This directive is effective immediately.

Subpart E—Exemption of Records Systems Under the Privacy Act

Source: Order 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, unless otherwise noted.

§ 16.70 Exemption of the Office of the Attorney General System—limited access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g):

(1) General Files System of the Office of the Attorney General (JUSTICE/OAG–001).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because making available to a record subject the accounting of disclosures from records concerning him/her would reveal investigative interest on the part of the Department of Justice as well as the recipient agency. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries or apprehension by law enforcement personnel.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(3) From subsection (d) because the records contained in this system relate to official Federal investigations. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e) (1) and (5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations, information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigation. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information that may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigative process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness and completeness of all information obtained.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a law enforcement investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations of duties.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to comply with the requirements of this subsection during the course of an investigation could impede the information gathering process, thus hampering the investigation.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(8) From subsection (g) because this system is exempt from the access and amendment provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

[AAG/A Order No. 32-85, 51 FR 751, Jan. 8, 1986]

§ 16.71 Exemption of the Office of the Deputy Attorney General System—limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1) and (e)(1):

(1) Appointed Assistant United States Attorneys Personnel System (JUSTICE/DAG–002).

(2) Assistant United States Attorneys Applicant Records System (JUSTICE/DAG–003).

(3) Presidential Appointee Candidate Records System (JUSTICE/DAG–006).

(4) Presidential Appointee Records System (JUSTICE/DAG–007).

(5) Special Candidates for Presidential Appointments Records System (JUSTICE/DAG–008).

(6) Miscellaneous Attorney Personnel Records System (JUSTICE/DAG–011).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (d)(1) because many persons are contacted who, without an assurance of anonymity, refuse to provide information concerning a candidate for a Presidential appointee, Assistant U.S. Attorney, or Department attorney position. Access could reveal the identify of the source of the information and constitute a breach of the promise of confidentiality on the part of the Department of Justice. Such breaches ultimately would restrict the free flow of information vital to a determination of a candidate's qualifications and suitability.

(2) From subsection (e)(1) because in the collection of information for investigative and evaluative purposes, it is impossible to determine in advance what exact information may be of assistance in determining the qualifications and suitability of a candidate. Information which may appear irrelevant, when combined with other seemingly irrelevant information, can on occasion provide a composite picture of a candidate for a position which assists in determining whether that candidate should be nominated for appointment.

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4); (d); (3)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g):

(1) General Files System of the Office of the Deputy Attorney General (JUSTICE/DAG–013).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because making available to a record subject the accounting of disclosures from records concerning him/her would reveal investigative interest on the part of the Department of Justice as well as the recipient agency. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries or apprehension by law enforcement personnel.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(3) From subsection (d) because the records contained in this system relate to official Federal investigations. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e) (1) and (5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigation. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information that may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigative process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness and completeness of all information obtained.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a law enforcement investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations or duties.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to comply with the requirements of this subsection during the course of an investigation could impede the information gathering process, thus hampering the investigation.

(7) For subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(8) From subsection (g) because this system of records is exempt from the access and amendment provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

[AAG/A Order No. 33–85, 51 FR 753, Jan. 8, 1986]

§ 16.72 Exemption of Office of the Associate Attorney General System—limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g):

(1) General Files System of the Office of the Associate Attorney General (JUSTICE/AAG–001).

(2) Drug Enforcement Task Force Evaluation and Reporting System of the Office of the Associate Attorney General (JUSTICE/AAG–002).

The exemptions for the General Files System apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5). The exemptions for the Task Force System apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2).

(b) Exemption from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because making available to a record subject the accounting of disclosures from records concerning him/her would reveal investigative interest on the part of the Department of Justice as well as the recipient agency. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries or apprehension by law enforcement personnel.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because these systems are exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(3) From subsection (d) because the records contained in these systems relate to official Federal investigations. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants, or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e) (1) and (5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations, information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigation. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information that may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigative process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness, and completeness of all information obtained.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a law enforcement investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations of duties.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to comply with the requirements of this subsection during the course of an investigation could impede the information gathering process, thus hampering the investigation.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because these systems are exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(8) From subsection (g) because these systems are exempt from the access and amendment provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

[AAG/A Order No. 32–85, 51 FR 751, Jan. 8, 1986]

§ 16.73 Exemption of Office of Legal Policy System—limited access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C 552a (d)(1), (2), (3) and (4); (e)(1) and (2), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5); and (g):

(1) Freedom of Information and Privacy Appeals Index (JUSTICE/OLP-001).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(2) and (k)(5).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsections (d)(1), (2), (3), and (4) to the extent that information in this record system relates to official Federal investigations and matters of law enforcement. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(2) From subsections (e)(1) and (5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations, information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigation. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information that may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigative process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness, and completeness of all information obtained.

(3) From subsection (e)(2) because in a law enforcement investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations or duties.

(4) From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(5) From subsection (g) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1) and (e)(1):

(1) United States Judges Records System (JUSTICE/OLP–002).

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (d)(1) because many persons are contracted who, without an assurance of anonymity, refuse to provide information concerning a candidate for a judgeship. Access could reveal the identity of the source of the information and constitute a breach of the promised confidentiality on the part of the Department. Such breaches ultimately would restrict the free flow of information vital to the determination of a candidate's qualifications and suitability.

(2) From subsection (e)(1) because in the collection of information for investigative and evaluative purposes, it is impossible to determine advance what exact information may be of assistance in determining the qualifications and suitability of a candidate. Information which may seem irrelevant, when combined with other seemingly irrelevant information, can on occasion provide a composite picture of a candidate which assists in determining whether that candidate should be nominated for appointment.

(e) The following system of records is exempt from U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H) (e)(5); and (g):

(1) General Files System of the Office of Legal Policy (JUSTICE/OLP–003).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

(f) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because making available to a record subject the accounting of disclosures from records concerning him/her would reveal investigative interest on the part of the Department as well as the recipient agency. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries or apprehension by law enforcement personnel.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(3) From subsection (d) because the records contained in this system relate to official Federal investigations. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants, or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. Amendment of records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e) (1) and (5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations, information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigation. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information since it may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigation process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness and completeness of all information obtained.

(5) From subsections (e)(2) because in a law enforcement investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations and duties.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to comply with the requirements of this subsection during the course of an investigation could impede the information gathering process, thus hampering the investigation.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(8) From subsection (g) because this system is exempt from the access and amendment provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(g) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (g):

(1) Declassification Review System (JUSTICE/OLP–004). These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

(h) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1)From subsection (c)(3) because making available to a record subject the accounting of disclosures from records concerning him/her would reveal investigative interest on the part of the Department of Justice as well as the recipient agency. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries or apprehension by law enforcement personnel.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because the system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

(3) From subsection (d) to the extent that information in this record system relates to official Federal investigations and matters of law enforcement and/or is properly classified pursuant to Executive Order 12356. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential sources or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation, or jeopardise national security or foreign policy interests. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsection (e)(1) and (5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations, information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigaation. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information which may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigative process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness, and completeness of all information obtained.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a law enforcement investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations or duties.

(6)From subsection (e)(3) because to comply with the requirements of this subsection during the course of an investigation could impede the information gathering process, thus hampering the investigation.

(7) From subsection (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (g) because this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act.

[AAG/A Order No. 34—85, 51 FR 754, Jan. 8, 1986. Redesignated by Order No. 6–86, 51 FR 15476, Apr. 24, 1986 and further redesignated and amended by AAG/A Order No. 19–86, 51 FR 39373, Oct. 28, 1986]

§ 16.74 Exemption of Office of Intelligence Policy and Review Systems—Limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(8), (f) and (g):

(1) Policy and Operational Records System (JUSTICE/OIPR–001);

(2) Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act Records System (JUSTICE/OIPR–002);

(3) Litigation Records System (JUSTICE/OIPR–003); and

(4) Domestic Security/Terrorism Investigations Records System (JUSTICE/OIPR–004).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in those systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because release of the disclosure accounting would put the target of a surveillance or investigation on notice of the investigation or surveillance and would thereby seriously hinder authorized United States intelligence activities.

(2) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (f) and (g) because these provisions contemplate individual access to records and such access would compromise ongoing surveillances or investigations and reveal the sources and methods of an investigation.

(3) From subsection (e)(2) because, although this office does not conduct investigations, the collection efforts of agencies that supply information to this office would be thwarted if the agency were required to collect information with the subject's knowledge.

(4) From subsections (e)(3) and (e)(8) because disclosure and notice would provide the subject with substantial information which could impede or compromise an investigation. For example, an investigatory subject could, once made aware that an investigation was ongoing, alter his manner of engaging in intelligence or terrorist activities in order to avoid detection.

[AAG/A Order No. 19-86, 51 FR 39374, Oct. 28, 1986]

§ 16.76 Exemption of Justice Management Division.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) Controlled Substances Act Nonpublic Records (JUSTICE/JMD–002).

This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(b) Exemption from subsection (d) is justified for the following reasons:

(1) Pub. L. 91–513 (Controlled Substances Act), Sec. 404(b) states that the nonpublic record "shall be retained by the Department of Justice solely for the purpose of use by the courts in determining whether or not, in subsequent proceedings, such person qualifies under this subsection."

(2) Information in this system consists of arrest records, including those of co-defendants. The records include reports of informants and investigations. Therefore, access could disclose investigative techniques, reveal the identity of confidential sources, and invade the privacy of third parties.

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) Security Clearance Information System (SCIS) (JUSTICE/JMD–008)—Limited access.

This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S. C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(5).

(d) Exemption from subsection (d) is justified for the following reason:

(1) Access to records in the system would reveal the identity(ies) of the source(s) of information collected in the course of a background investigation. Such knowledge might be harmful to the source who provided the information as well as violate the explicit or implicit promise of confidentiality made to the source during the investigation. Access may also reveal information relating to actual or potential criminal investigations.

(e) Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974, the Justice Management Division will grant access to nonexempt material in SCIS records which are maintained by the Security Programs Staff. Disclosure will be governed by the Department's Privacy Regulations, but will be limited to the extent that the identity of confidential sources will not be compromised; subjects of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal violation will not be alerted to the investigation; the physical safety of witnesses, informants and law enforcement personnel will not be endangered; the privacy of third parties will not be violated; and that the disclosure would not otherwise impede effective law enforcement. Whenever possible, information of the above nature will be deleted from the requested documents and the balance made available. The controlling principle behind this limited access is to allow disclosures except those indicated above. The decisions to release information from this system will be made on a case-by-case basis."

(f) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records System (JUSTICE/JMD–019).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(g) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because that portion of the Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records System that consists of investigatory materials compiled for law enforcement purposes is being exempted from access and contest; the provision for disclosure of accounting is not applicable.

(2) From subsection (d) because of the need to safeguard the identity of confidential informants and avoid interference with ongoing investigations or law enforcement activities by preventing premature disclosure of information relating to those efforts.

(h) Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974, the Justice Management Division will grant access to non-exempt material in FOIA/PA records. Exemptions will apply only to the extent that other correspondence or internal memoranda retained with the request file contain investigatory material for law enforcement purposes.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 688–77, 42 FR 9999, Feb. 18, 1977; Order No. 899–80, 45 FR 43703, June 30, 1980; AAG/A Order No. 6–86, 51 FR 15476, Apr. 24, 1986]

§ 16.77 Exemption of United States Trustee Program System—limited access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8); (f) and (g):

(1) United States Trustee Program Case Referral System, JUSTICE/UST–004.

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting would permit the subject of an investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries or apprehension by law enforcement personnel.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) since an exemption being claimed for subsection (d) makes this subsection inapplicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because access to the records contained in this system might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants, or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e)(1) and (e)(5) because in the course of law enforcement investigations, information may occasionally be obtained or introduced the accuracy of which is unclear or which is not strictly relevant or necessary to a specific investigation. In the interest of effective law enforcement, it is appropriate to retain all information that may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity. Moreover, it would impede the specific investigative process if it were necessary to assure the relevance, accuracy, timeliness, and completeness of all information obtained.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a criminal investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it would compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because this system of records is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsections (j) and (k).

(8) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirement of this subsection could present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that this could interfere with the U.S. Attorney's ability to issue subpoenas.

(9) From subsections (f) and (g) because this system has been exempted from the access provisions of subsection (d).

[AAG/A Order No. 1–87, 52 FR 3631, Feb. 5, 1987]

§ 16.78 Exemption of the Special Counsel for Immigration-Related, Unfair Employment Practices Systems.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (d).

(1) Central Index File and Associated Records, JUSTICE/OSC–001.

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting would permit the subject of an investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation. This would permit record subjects to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses, or flee the area to avoid inquiries.

(2) From subsection (d) because access to the records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants, or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation.

[AAG/Order No. 10–88, 53 FR 7734, Mar. 10, 1988]

§ 16.79 Exemption of Pardon Attorney Systems.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) Executive Clemency Files (JUSTICE/OPA–001).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j).

(b) Exemption from subsection (d) is justified for the following reasons:

(1) Executive Clemency Files contain investigatory and evaluative reports relating to applicants for Executive clemency. The FOI/PA Request File contains copies of documents from the Executive Clemency Files which have not been released either in whole or in part pursuant to certain provisions pf the FOI/PA. Release of such information to the subject would jeopardize the integrity of the investigative process, invade the right of candid and confidential communications among officials concerned with recommending clemency decisions to the President, and disclose the identity of persons who furnished information to the Government under an express or implied promise that their identities would be held in confidence.

(2) The purpose of the creation and maintenance of these files is to enable the Pardon Attorney to prepare for the President's ultimate decisions on matters which are within the President's exclusive jurisdiction by reason of Article II, Section 2, Clause 1 of the Constitution, which commits pardons to the exclusive discretion of the President

[AAG/A Order No., 53 FR 51542, Dec. 22, 1988]

§ 16.80 Exemption of Office of Professional Responsibility System—limited access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (8), (f) and (g):

(1) Office of Professional Responsibility Record Index (JUSTICE/OPR–001).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1), (k)(2), and (k)(5).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because release of the disclosure accounting would enable the subject of an investigation to gain information concerning the existence, nature and scope of the investigation and seriously hamper law enforcement efforts.

(2) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (f) and (g) because these provisions concern individual access to records and such access might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants and constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third persons who provide information in connection with a particular investigation.

(3) From subsections (e)(1) and (5) because the collection of information during an investigation necessarily involves material pertaining to other persons or events which is appropriate in a thorough investigation, even though portions thereof are not ultimately connected to the person or event subject to the final action or recommendation of the Office of Professional Responsibility.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting the information from the subject would thwart the investigation by placing the subject on notice of the investigation.

(5) From subsections (e)(3) and (e)(8) because disclosure and notice would provide the subject with substantial information which could impede or compromise the investigation. For example, an investigatory subject occupying a supervisory position could, once made aware that a misconduct investigation was ongoing, put undue pressure on subordinates so as to preclude their cooperation with investigators.

[Order No. 58–81, 46 FR 3509, Jan. 15, 1981]

§ 16.81 Exemption of United States Attorneys Systems—Limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), and (g):

(1) Citizen Complaint Files (JUSTICE/USA–003).

(2) Civil Case Files (JUSTICE/USA–005).

(3) Consumer Complaints (JUSTICE/USA–006).

(4) Criminal Case Files (JUSTICE/USA–007).

(5) Kline-District of Columbia and Maryland-Stock and Land Fraud Interrelationship Filing System (JUSTICE/USA–009).

(6) Major Crimes Division Investigative Files (JUSTICE/USA–010).

(7) Prosecutor's Management Information System (PROMIS) (JUSTICE/USA–011).

(8) United States Attorney, District of Columbia Superior Court Division, Criminal Files (JUSTICE/USA–013).

(9) Pre-trial Diversion Program Files (JUSTICE/USA–014).

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting, for disclosures pursuant to the routine uses published for these systems, would permit the subject of a criminal investigation and/or civil case or matter under investigation, litigation, regulatory or administrative review or action, to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation, case or matter and present a serious impediment to law enforcement or civil legal activities.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d), this subsection will not be applicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of criminal investigation and/or civil investigation, matter or case of the existence of that investigation, provide the subject of the investigation with information that might enable him to avoid detection, apprehension or legal obligations, and present a serious impediment to law enforcement and other civil remedies.

(4) From subsection (e)(1) because in the course of criminal investigations and/or civil investigations, cases or matters, the United States Attorneys often obtain information concerning the violation of laws or civil obligations other than those relating to an active case or matter. In the interests of effective law enforcement and civil litigation, it is necessary that the United States Attorneys retain this information since it can aid in establishing patterns of activity and provide valuable leads for other agencies and future cases that may be brought within the United States Attorneys' offices.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a criminal investigation the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be placed on notice of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension or legal obligations and duties.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources of information and endanger the life and physical safety of confidential informants.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because these systems of records are exempt from individual access pursuant to subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(8) From subsection (e)(5) because in the collection of information for law enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light and the accuracy of such information can only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions of subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of trained investigators and intelligence analysts to exercise their judgment in reporting on investigations and impede the development of intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(9) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirements of subsection (e)(8) could present a serious impediment to law enforcement as this could interfere with the United States Attorneys' ability to issue subpoenas and could reveal investigative techniques and procedures.

(10) From subsection (f) because these systems of records have been exempted from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(11) From subsection (g) because these systems of records are compiled for law enforcement purposes and have been exempted from the access provisions of subsections (d) and (f).

(c) Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974, the Executive Office for United States Attorneys will grant access to nonexempt material in records which are maintained by the United States Attorneys. Disclosure will be governed by the Department's Privacy Regulations, but will be limited to the extent that the identity of confidential sources will not be compromised; subjects of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal, civil or regulatory violation will not be alerted to the investigation; the physical safety of witnesses, informants and law enforcement personnel will not be endangered, the privacy of third parties will not be violated; and that the disclosure would not otherwise impede effective law enforcement. Whenever possible, information of the above nature will be deleted from the requested documents and the balance made available. The controlling principle behind this limited access is to allow disclosures except those indicated above. The decisions to release information from these systems will be made on a case-by-case basis.

(d) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), and (g):

(1) Freedom of Information Act/ Privacy Act Files (JUSTICE/USA–008)

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(e) Because this system contains Department of Justice civil and criminal law enforcement, investigatory records, exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting would permit the subject of a criminal investigation and/or civil case or matter under investigation, in litigation, or under regulatory or administrative review or action to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation, case or matter, and present a serious impediment to law enforcement or civil legal activities.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records), rendering this subsection inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(3) From subsection (d) because access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of a criminal or civil investigation, matter or case of the existence of such, and provide the subject with information that might enable him to avoid detection, apprehension or legal obligations, and present a serious impediment to law enforcement and other civil remedies. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because to collect information to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual of a criminal investigation or prosecution would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be placed on notice of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection, apprehension, or legal obligations and duties.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to provide individuals supplying information with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources of information, and endanger the life and physical safety of confidential informants.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because this system of records is exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d) and the rules provisions of subsection (f).

(8) From subsection (e)(5) because in the collection of information for law enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light and the accuracy of such information can only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions of subsection (e)(5) would inhibit the ability of trained investigator and intelligence analysts to exercise their judgment in reporting on investigations and impede the development of intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(9) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirements of subsection (e)(8) could present a serious impediment to law enforcement as this could interfere with the United States Attorneys' ability to issue subpoenas and could reveal investigative techniques and procedures.

(10) From subsection (f) because this system has been exempted from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

(11) From subsection (g) because the records in this system are generally compiled for law enforcement purposes and are exempt from the access provisions of subsections (d) and (f), rendering subsection (g) inapplicable.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 716–77, 42 FR 23506, May 9, 1977; Order No. 738–77, 42 FR 38177, July 27, 1977; AAG/A Order No. 6–86, 51 FR 15475, Apr. 24, 1986]

§§ 16.82 [Reserved]

§ 16.83 Exemption of the Executive Office for Immigration Review System—Limited Access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) The Executive Office for Immigration Review's Records and Management Information System (JUSTICE/EOIR–001). This exemption applies only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1) and (2).

(b) Exemption from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (d) because access to information which has been properly classified pursuant to an Executive Order could have an adverse effect on the national security. In addition, from subsection (d) because unauthorized access to certain investigatory material could compromise ongoing or potential investigations; reveal the identity of confidential informants; or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties.

[AAG/A Order No. 18–86, 51 FR 32305, Sept. 11, 1986]

§ 16.84 Exemption of Board of Immigration Appeals System.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) (2), (3) and (4):

(1) Decisions of the Board of Immigration Appeals (JUSTICE/BIA-001).

This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsections (d) (2), (3) and (4) because the decisions reflected constitute official records of opinions rendered in quasi-judicial proceedings. Administrative due process could not be achieved by the ex parte "correction" of such opinions by the subject of the opinion.

§ 16.85 Exemption of Parole Commission System—Limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8), (f) and (g):

(1) Docket Scheduling and Control System (JUSTICE/PRC–001).

(2) Inmate and Supervision Files System (JUSTICE/PRC–003).

(3) Labor and Pension Case, Legal File, and General Correspondence System (JUSTICE/PRC–004).

(4) Statistical, Educational and Developmental System (JUSTICE/PRC–006).

(5) Workload Record, Decision Result, and Annual Report System (JUSTICE/PRC–007).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemptions pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because revealing disclosure of accountings to inmates and persons on supervision could compromise legitimate law enforcement activities and Parole Commission responsibilities.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because the exemption from subsection (d) will make notification of disputes inapplicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because this is essential to protect internal processes by which Commission personnel are able to formulate decisions and policies with regard to federal prisoners and persons under supervision, to prevent disclosures of information to federal inmates or persons on supervision that would jeopardize legitimate correctional interests of security, custody, supervision, or rehabilitation, to permit receipt of relevant information from other federal agencies, state and local law enforcement agencies, and federal and state probation and judicial offices, to allow private citizens to express freely their opinions for or against parole, to allow relevant criminal history type information of codefendants to be kept in files, to allow medical, psychiatric and sociological material to be available to professional staff, and to allow a candid process of fact selection, opinion formulation, evaluation and recommendation to be continued by professional staff. The legal files contain case development material and, in addition to other reasons, should be exempt under the attorney-client privilege. Each labor or pension applicant has had served upon him the material in his file which he did not prepare and may see his own file at any time.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because primary collection of information directly from federal inmates or persons on supervision about criminal sentence, criminal records, institutional performance, readiness for release from custody, or need to be returned to custody is highly impractical and inappropriate.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because application of this provision to the operations and collection of information by the Commission, which is primarily from sources other than the individual, is inappropriate.

(6) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because exemption from the access provisions of (d) makes publication of agency procedures under (d) inapplicable.

(7) From subsection (e)(8) because the nature of the Commission's activities renders notice of compliance with compulsory legal process impractical.

(8) From subsection (f) because exemption from the provisions of subsection (d) will render compliance with provisions of this subsection inapplicable.

(9) From subsection (g) because exemption from the provisions of subsection (d) will render the provisions on suits to enforce (d) inapplicable.

(c) Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974 the U.S. Parole Commission will initiate a procedure whereby present and former prisoners and parolees may obtain copies of material in files relating to them that are maintained by the U.S. Parole Commission. Disclosure of the contents will be affected by providing copies of documents to requesters through the mails. Disclosure will be made to the same extent as would be made under the substantive exemptions of the Parole Commission and Reorganization Act of 1976 (18 U.S.C. 4208) and Rule 32 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. The procedure relating to disclosure of documents may be changed generally in the interest of improving the Commission's system of disclosure or when required by pending or future decisions and directions of the Department of Justice.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by AAG/A Order 14–78, 43 FR 45993, Oct. 5, 1978; Order No. 899–80, 45 FR 43703, June 30, 1980; AAG/A Order No. 6–86, 51 FR 15477, Apr. 24, 1986]

§§ 16.86–16.87 [Reserved]

§ 16.88 Exemption of Antitrust Division Systems—Limited Access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (f):

(1) Antitrust Caseload Evaluation System (ACES)—Monthly Report (JUSTICE/ATR–006).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(2).

(b) Exemption from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because information in this system is maintained in aid of ongoing antitrust enforcement investigations and proceedings. The release of the accounting of disclosures made under subsection (b) of the Act would permit the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal or civil violation to determine whether he is the subject of an investigation. Disclosure of the accounting would therefore present a serious impediment to antitrust law enforcement efforts.

(2) From subsection (d) because access to the information retrievable from this system and compiled for law enforcement purposes could result in the premature disclosure of the identity of the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal or civil violation and information concerning the nature of that investigation. This information could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. This would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement since the subject could hinder or prevent the successful completion of the investigation. Further, confidential business and financial information, the identities of confidential sources of information, third party privacy information, and statutorily confidential information such as grand jury information must be protected from disclosure.

(3) From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f) because this system is exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f):

(1) Freedom of Information/Privacy—Requester/Subject Index File (JUSTICE/ATR–008).

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(2).

(d) Because this system contains Department of Justice civil and criminal law enforcement, investigatory records, exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the accounting of disclosures made under subsection (b) of the Act would permit the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal or civil violation to determine whether he is the subject of an investigation. Disclosure of accounting would therefore present a serious impediment to antitrust law enforcement efforts.

(2) From subsection (d) because access to information in this system could result in the premature disclosure of the identity of the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal or civil violation and information concerning the nature of the investigation. This information could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. This would present a serious impendiment to effective law enforcement since the subject could hinder or prevent the successful completion of the investigation. Further, confidential business and financial information, the identities of confidential sources of information, third party privacy information, and statutorily confidential information such as grand jury information must be protected from disclosure.

(3) From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f) because this system is exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

[AAG/A Order No.2–86, 51 FR 884, Jan. 9, 1986]

§ 16.89 Exemption of Civil Division Systems—limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5), (e)(8), and (g); in addition, the following systems of records are exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(1) and (k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G) and (H):

(1) Civil Division Case File System, JUSTICE/CIV–001.

(2) Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts File System, JUSTICE/CIV–005.

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(b) Only that information which relates to the investigation, prosecution, or defense of actual or potential criminal or civil litigation, or which has been properly classified in the interest of national defense and foreign policy is exempted for the reasons set forth from the following subsections:

(1) Subsection (c)(3). To provide the subject of a criminal or civil matter or case under investigation with an accounting of disclosures of records concerning him or her would inform that individual (and others to whom the subject might disclose the records) of the existence, nature, or scope of that investigation and thereby seriously impede law enforcement efforts by permitting the record subject and others to avoid criminal penalties and civil remedies.

(2) Subsections (c)(4), (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (g). These provisions are inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(3) Subsection (d). To the extent that information contained in these systems has been properly classified, relates to the investigation and/or prosecution of grand jury, civil fraud, and other law enforcement matters, disclosure could compromise matters which should be kept secret in the interest of national security or foreign policy; compromise confidential investigations or proceedings; hamper sensitive civil or criminal investigations; impede affirmative enforcement actions based upon alleged violations of regulations or of civil or criminal laws; reveal the identity of confidential sources; and result in unwarranted invasions of the privacy of others. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) Subsection (e)(1). In the course of criminal or civil investigations, cases, or matters, the Civil Division may obtain information concerning the actual or potential violation of laws which are not strictly within its statutory authority. In the interest of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain such information since it may establish patterns of criminal activity or avoidance of other civil obligations and provide leads for Federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(5) Subsection (e)(2). To collect information from the subject of a criminal investigation or prosecution would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject (and others to whom the subject might be in contact) would be informed of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

(6) Subsection (e)(3). To comply with this requirement during the course of a criminal investigation or prosecution could jeopardize the investigation by disclosing the existence of a confidential investigation, revealing the identity of witnesses or confidential informants, or impeding the information gathering process.

(7) Subsection (e)(5). In compiling information for criminal law enforcement purposes, the accuracy, completeness, timeliness and relevancy of the information obtained cannot always be immediately determined. As new details of an investigation come to light, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance and the accuracy of such information can often only be determined in a court of law. Compliance with this requirement would therefore restrict the ability of government attorneys in exercising their judgment in developing information necessary for effective law enforcement.

(8) Subsection (e)(8). To serve notice would give persons sufficient warning to evade law enforcement efforts.

(c) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e)(1) and (e)(5); in addition, this system is also exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d), and (e)(1).

Consumer Inquiry/Investigatory System, JUSTICE/CIV–006.

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system of records is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2).

(d) Only that information compiled for criminal or civil law enforcement purposes is exempted for the reasons set forth from the following subsections:

(1) Subsections (c)(3). This system occasionally contains investigatory material based on complaints of actual or alleged criminal or civil violations. To provide the subject of a criminal or civil matter or case under investigation with an accounting of disclosures of records concerning him/her would inform that individual of the existence, nature, or scope of that investigation, and thereby seriously impede law enforcement efforts by permitting the record subject and other persons to whom he might disclose the records to avoid criminal penalties and civil remedies.

(2) Subsections (c)(4). This subsection is inapplicable to the extent that an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d).

(3) Subsection (d). Disclosure of information relating to the investigation of complaints of alleged violation of criminal or civil law could interfere with the investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources, and result in an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of others. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) Subsection (e)(1). In the course of criminal or civil investigations, cases, or matters, the Civil Division may obtain information concerning the actual or potential violation of laws which are not strictly within its statutory authority. In the interest of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain such information since it may establish patterns of criminal activity or avoidance of other civil obligations and provide leads for Federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(5) Subsection (e)(5). In compiling information for criminal law enforcement purposes, the accuracy, completeness, timeliness and relevancy of the information obtained cannot always be immediately determined. As new details of an investigation come to light, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance and the accuracy of such information can often only be determined in a court of law. Compliance with this requirement would therefore restrict the ability of government attorneys in exercising their judgment in developing information necessary for effective law enforcement.

(e) The following system of records is exempt pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2) from subsection (d):

Congressional and Citizen Correspondence File, JUSTICE/CIV–007.

This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2).

(f) Only that portion of the Congressional and Citizen Correspondence File maintained by the Communications Office which consists of criminal or civil investigatory information is exempted for the reasons set forth from the following subsection:

(1) Subsection (d). Disclosure of investigatory information would jeopardize the integrity of the investigative process, disclose the identity of individuals who furnished information to the government under an express or implied promise that their identities would be held in confidence, and result in an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of others. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

§ 16.90 Exemption of Civil Rights Division Systems.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) Files on Employment Civil Rights Matters Referred by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (JUSTICE/CRT–007).

This exemption applies to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (d) because this system contains investigatory material compiled by the Equal Opportunity Commission pursuant to its authority under 42 U.S.C. 2000e–8. 42 U.S.C. 2000e–8(e) and 44 U.S.C. 3508 make it unlawful to make public in any manner whatsoever any information obtained by the Commission pursuant to the authority.

(c) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3) and (d):

(1)Central Civil Rights Division Index File and Associated Records (JUSTICE/CRT–001).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(2).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting for disclosure pursuant to the routine uses published for this system may enable the subject of an investigation to gain valuable information concerning the nature and scope of the investigation and seriously hamper law enforcement efforts.

(2) From subsection (d) because freely permitting access to records in this system would compromise ongoing investigations and reveal investigatory techniques. In addition, these records may be subject to protective orders entered by federal courts to protect their confidentiality. Many of the records contained in these systems are copies of documents which are the property of state agencies and where obtained under express or implied promises to strictly protect their confidentiality.

(3) From subsectiion (g) because exemption from the provision of subsection (d) will render the provisions on suits to enforce (d) inapplicable.

(e)The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), and (g):

(1)Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records (JUSTICE/CRT–010).

These exemp–tions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(2).

(f) Because this system contains Department of Justice civil and criminal law enforcement, investigatory records, exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting enable the subject of an investigation to gain valuable information concerning the nature and scope of the investigation and seriously hamper law enforcement efforts.

(2) From subsection (d) because access to records in this system would compromise ongoing investigations and reveal investigative techniques. In addition, certain iof these records may be subject to protective orders entered by Federal courts to protect their confidentiality, and many are copies of documents which are the property of State agencies and were obtained under express or implied promises to strictly protect their confidentiality. This system also contains investigatory material complied by the Equal Opportunity Commission pursuant to its authority under 42 U.S.C.2000e–8. Provisions of 42 U.S.C. 2000e–5(b), 42 U.S.C. 2000e–8(e), and 44 U.S.C. 3508 make it unlawful to make public in any manner whatsoever any information obtained by the Commission pursuant to the authority. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(3) From subsection (g) because exemption from subsection (d) will render the provisions on suits to enforce subsection (d) inapplicable.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 688–77, 42 FR 10000, Feb. 18, 1977; Order No. 8–82, 47 FR 44256, Oct. 7, 1982; Order No. 6–86, 51 FR 15477, Apr. 24, 1986]

§ 16.91 Exemption of Criminal Division Systems—Limited access, as indicated.

(a) The following systems of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), (e) (5) and (8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a; in addition, the following systems of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(1) and (k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1) Central Criminal Division, Index File and Associated Records System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–001)—Limited Access.

(2) General Crimes Section, Criminal Division, Central Index File and Associated Records System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–004)—Limited Access.

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in those systems are subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(b) The systems of records listed under paragraphs (b)(1) and (b)(2) of this section are exempted, for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2). (c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this subsection is inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(3). (d). Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal, civil, or regulatory violation of the existence of that investigation, or the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his activities, of the identity of witnesses and informants, or would provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. These factors would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because they could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(4). (e)(1). The notices of these systems of records published in the Federal Register set forth the basic statutory or related authority for maintenance of this system. However, in the course of criminal or other law enforcement investigations, cases, and matters, the Criminal Division or its components will occasionally obtain information concerning actual or potential violations of law that are not strictly within its statutory or other authority or may compile information in the course of an investigation which may not be relevant to a specific prosecution. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain such information in these systems of records since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and can provide valuable leads for federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(5). (e)(2). In a criminal investigation or prosecution, the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

(6). (e)(3). The requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(7). (e)(4) (G) and (H). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) (Agency Rules) and (d) (Access to Records) of the Act these subsections are inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsections (f) and (d).

(8). (e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in these systems have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in these systems, exemption from this provision is necessary in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of criminal and other law enforcement information. Such exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

(11). (f). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him dealing with an actual or potential criminal, civil, or regulatory investigation or prosecution must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation or prosecution pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules require pursuant to subsection (f)(2) through (5) are inapplicable to these systems of records to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(12). (g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsections (d) and (f).

(13). In addition, exemption is claimed for these systems of records from compliance with the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1): Subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f) to the extent that the records contained in these systems are specifically authorized to be kept secret in the interests of national defense and foreign policy.

(c) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsection (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I), (e)(5) and (8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a: Criminal Division Witness Security File System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–002). These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(d) The systems of record listed under paragraph (c) of this section is exempted, for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2). (c)(4) Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this section is inapplicable.

(3). (d) Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal violation, which may include those protected under the Witness Security Program, of the existence of that investigation, of the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his activities, of the identity of witnesses and informants, or would provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. These factors would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because they could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony. In addition, access to the records in these systems to an individual protected under the Witness Security Program could jeopardize the effectiveness and security of the Program by revealing the methods and techniques utilized in relocating witnesses and could therefore jeopardize the ability to obtain, and to protect the confidentiality of, information compiled for purposes of a criminal investigation.

(4). Exemption is claimed from subsection (e)(1) for the reasons stated in subsection (b)(4) of this section.

(6). (e)(3) The requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise or reveal the identity of witnesses and informants protected under the Witness Security Program.

(7). (e)(4) (G) and (H). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) (Agency Rules) and (d) (Access to Records) of the Act these subsections are inapplicable.

(8). (e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in these systems have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in the system, exemption from this provision is necessary in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of criminal law, enforcement information and of witnesses and informants protected under the Witness Security Program.

(9). Exemption is claimed from subsections (e)(5) and (e)(8) for the reasons stated in subsection (b)(9) and (b)(10) of this section.

(10). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records contained in these systems pertaining to him would inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal violation, which may include those protected under the Witness Security Program, of the existence of that investigation, of the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his activities, of the identity of witnesses and informants, or would provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. These factors would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because they could prevent the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation pending or future, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony. In addition, notices as to the existence of records contained in these systems to an individual protected under the Witness Security Program could jeopardize the effectiveness and security of the Program by revealing the methods and techniques utilized in relocating witnesses and could therefore jeopardize the ability to obtain, and to protect the confidentiality of, information compiled for purposes of a criminal investigation.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable.

(11). (g) Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections.

(e) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a: Organized Crime and Racketeering Section, Intelligence and Special Services Unit, Information Request System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–014). These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(f) The system of records listed under paragraph (e) of this section is exempted for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2). (c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this section is inapplicable.

(3). (d). Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal violation of the existence of that investigation. This would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because it could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(4). Exemption is claimed from subsections (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) for the reasons stated in subsections (b)(7) and (b)(8) of this section.

(5). (f). These systems may be accessed by the name of the person who is the subject of the file and who may also be the subject of a criminal investigation. Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him, which may deal with an actual or potential criminal investigation or prosecution, must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of the investigation or prosecution pending or future. In addition mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable.

(6). (g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) of the Act this section is inapolicable and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections.

(g) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

File of Names Checked to Determine If Those Individuals Have Been the Subject of an Electronic Surveillance System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–003).

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(h) The system of records listed under paragraph (g) of this section is exempted, for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1). (c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this section is inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(2). (d). The records contained in this system of records generally consist of information filed with the court in response to the request and made available to the requestor. To the extent that these records have been so filed, no exemption is sought from the provisions of this subsection. Occasionally, the records contain pertinent logs of intercepted communications and other investigative reports not filed with the court. These records must be exempted because access to such records could inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal violation of the existence of that investigation and of the nature of the information and evidence obtained by the government. This would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because it could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(3). Exemption is claimed from subsections (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) for the reasons stated in subsections (b)(7) and (b)(8) of this section.

(4). (f). The records contained in this system of records generally consist of information filed with the court and made available to the requestor. To the extent that these records have been so filed, no exemption is sought from the provisions of this subsection. Occasionally, the records contain pertinent logs of intercepted communications and other investigative reports not filed with the court. These records must be exempted from a requirement of notification as to their existence because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of a criminal investigation or prosecution pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the existence of such logs or investigative reports could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted for subsection (d).

(6). (g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsections (d) and (f).

(i) The following systems of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2), and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), (e) (5) and (8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1) Information File on Individuals and Commercial Entities Known or Suspected of Being Involved in Fraudulent Activities System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–006).

(2) The Stocks and Bonds Intelligence Control Card File System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–021).

(3) Tax Disclosure Index File and Associated Records (JUSTICE/CRM–025).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(j) The systems of records listed in paragraphs (i)(1), (i)(2), and (i)(3) of this section are exempted, for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2)(c)(4) Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the act (access to records), this section is inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(3)(d) Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal violation of the existence of that investigation, of the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his activities, of the identity of witnesses and informants, or would provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. These factors would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because they could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(4) Exemption is claimed from subsections (e) (1), (2), and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), (e)(5) and (e)(8) for the reasons stated in subsections (b)(4), (b)(5), (b)(6), (b)(7), (b)(8), (b)(9), and (b)(10) of this section.

(5)(f) Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him dealing with an actual or potential criminal investigation or prosecution must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation or prosecution pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony. Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the act (access to records), the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable to these systems of records.

(6)(g) Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (access to records) and (f) (Agency rules), this section is inapplicable and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections.

(k) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), (e) (5) and (8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a; in addition, the following systems of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) from subsections (c) (3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

Organized Crime and Racketeering Section, Criminal Division, General Index File and Associated Records System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–012).

best copy available

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(1).

(l) The system of records listed under paragraph (m) of this section is exempted, for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1). Exemption is claimed from subsections (c) (3) and (4) and (d) for the reasons stated in subsections (j)(1), (j)(2) and (j)(3) of this section.

(2). (e)(1). The notice for this system of records published in the Federal Register sets forth the basic statutory or related authority for maintenance of this system. However, in the course of criminal investigations, cases, and matters, the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section will occasionally obtain information concerning actual or potential violations of law that are not strictly within its statutory or other authority, or may compile information in the course of an investigation which may not be relevant to a specific prosecution. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain such information in this system of records since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and can provide valuable leads for federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(3). Exemption is claimed from subsections (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), (e) (5) and (8), (f) and (g) for the reasons stated in subsections (b)(5), (b)(6), (b)(7), (b)(8), (b)(9), (b)(10), (b)(11) and (b)(12) of this section.

(4). In addition, exemption is claimed for this system of records from compliance with the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1): Subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f) to the extent that the records contained in this system are specifically authorized to be kept secret in the interests of national defense and foreign policy.

(m) The following system of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), (e)(8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a: Requests to the Attorney General For Approval of Applications to Federal Judges for Electronic Interceptions System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM–019). These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Note: Paragraph (m) was redesignated as paragraph (k) at 44 FR 54046, Sept. 18, 1979.

(n) The system of records listed in paragraph (m) of this section is exempted for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2). (c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this section is inapplicable.

(3). (d). Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an electronic interception of the existence of such surveillance including information as to whether he is the subject of a criminal investigation by means other than those provided for by statute. This could interfere with the successful conduct and/or completion of a criminal investigation and therefore present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(4). (e)(2). In the context of an electronic interception, the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and this would therefore destroy the efficacy of the interception.

(5). (e)(3). The requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential electronic interception or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(6). (e)(4) (G) and (H). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) (Agency Rules) and (d) (Access to Records) of the Act these subsections are inapplicable.

(7). Exemption is claimed from subsections (e)(4)(I) and (e)(8) for the reasons stated in subsections (b)(8) and (b)(10) of this section.

(8). (f). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him dealing with an electronic interception other than pursuant to statute must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the fact of an electronic interception could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f)(2) through (5) are inapplicable to these systems of records to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(9). (g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d) and (f).

(o) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e) (4) (G), (H), and (I), (e)(8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a; in addition the following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

Witness Immunity Records System of Records (JUSTICE/CRM-022).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(p) The system of records listed under paragraph (q) of this section is exempted, for the reasons set forth, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1). (c)(3). Release of the accounting of disclosures made pursuant to subsection (b) of the Act, including those permitted under the routine uses published for this system of records, (a) as to a witness for whom immunity has been proposed, would inform the individual of the existence of the proposed immunity prematurely, thus creating a serious impediment to effective law enforcement in that the witness could flee, destroy evidence, or fabricate testimony; and (b) as to a witness to whom immunity has been granted, or for whom it has been denied, would reveal the nature and scope of the activities, if any, of the witness known to the government, which would also create a serious impediment to effective law enforcement.

(2). (c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this section is inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(3). (d). Access to the records contained in this system (a) as to a witness for whom immunity has been proposed, would inform the individual of the existence of the proposed immunity prematurely, thus presenting a serious impediment to effective law enforcement in that the witness could flee, destroy evidence, or fabricate testimony; and (b) as to a witness to whom immunity has been granted, or for whom it has been denied, would reveal the nature and scope of the activities, if any, of the witness known to the government, which would also create a serious impediment to effective law enforcement.

(4). (e)(2). In a witness immunity request matter, the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the immunity request and often the subject of the underlying investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

(5). Exemption is claimed from subsections (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I), and (e)(8) for the reasons stated in subsections (b)(6), (b)(7), (b)(8) and (b)(10) of this section.

(6). (f). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him (a) as to a witness for whom immunity has been proposed, would inform the individual of the existence of the proposed immunity prematurely, thus presenting a serious impediment to effective law enforcement in that the witness could flee, destroy evidence, or fabricate testimony; and (b) as to a witness to whom immunity has been granted, or for whom it has been denied, would reveal the nature and scope of the activity, if any, of the witness known to the government, which would also create a serious impediment to effective law enforcement.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f)(2) through (5) are inapplicable to this system of records to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(7). (g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that this system of records is exempted for subsections (d) and (f).

(8). In addition, exemption is claimed for this system of records from compliance with the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1): Subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f) to the extent that the records contained in this system are specifically authorized to be kept secret in the interests of national defense and foreign policy.

(q) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), (e) (5) and (8), (f), and (g):

(1) Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records (JUSTICE/CRM–024)

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

Note: Paragraph (q) was redesignated as paragraph (o) at 44 FR 54046,Sept. 18, 1979.

(r) Because this system contains Department of Justice civil and criminal law enforcement, investigatory records, it is exempted for the reasons set forth from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2)(c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records), this subsection is inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(3)(d). Access to records contained in this system would enable the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal or civil case or regulatory violation to determine whether he or she is the subject of investigation, to obtain valuable information concerning the nature and scope of the investigation, and information or evidence obtained as to his/her activities, to identify witnesses and informants, or to avoid detection or apprehension. Such results could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony, and thereby present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4)(e)(1). In the course of criminal or other law enforcement investigations, cases, and matters, the Criminal Division will occasionally obtain information concerning actual or potential violations of law that are not strictly within its statutory or other authority, or it may compile information in the course of an investigation which may not be relevant to a specific prosecution. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain such information since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and can provide valuable leads for Federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(5)(e)(2). To collect information to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual of a criminal investigation or prosecution would present a serious impediment to law enforcement. The nature of criminal and other investigative activities is such that vital information about an individual can only be obtained from other persons who are familiar with such individual and his/her activities. In such investigations it is not feasible to rely upon information furnished by the individual concerning his own activities.

(6) (e)(3). To provide individuals supplying information with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(7)(e)(4) (G) and (H). These subsections are inapplicable to the extent that this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) and the rules provisions of subsection (f).

(8)(e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in this system have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in this system, exemption from this provision is necessary to protect the confidentiality of the sources of criminal and other law enforcement information. Such exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

(10)(e)(8). The individual notice requirements of subsection (e)(8) could present a serious impediment to law enforcement as this could interfere with the ability to issue warrants or subpoenas and could reveal investigative techniques, procedures, or evidence.

(11)(f). This subsection is inapplicable to the extent that this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(12)(g). Because some of the records in this system contain information which was compiled for law enforcement purposes and have been exempted from the access provisions of subsection (d), subsection (g) is inapplicable.

(s) The following system of records is exempted from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d). Office of Special Investigations Displaced Persons Listings (JUSTICE/CRM-027).

This exemption applies to the extent that the records in this system are subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C.552a(k)(2).

(t) Exemption from subsection (d) is justified for the following reasons:

(1) Access to records contained in this system could inform the subject of the identity of witnesses or informants. The release of such information could present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement by endangering the physical safety of witnesses or informants; by leading to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony; or by otherwise preventing the successful completion of an investigation.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 659–76, 41 FR 32423, Aug. 3, 1976; AAG/A Order No. 11–78, 43 FR 38386, Aug. 28, 1978; AAG/A Order No. 30–79, 44 FR 54046, Sep. 18, 1979; AAG/A Order No. 7–86, Apr. 24, 1986; AAG/A Order No. 6–86, Apr. 24, 1986]

§ 16.92 Exemption of Land and Natural Resources Division System—Limited access, as indicated.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (d):

(1) Docket Card System (JUSTICE/LDN–003).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because that portion of the Docket Card System relating to enforcement of criminal provisions of the Refuse Act of 1899 (33 U.S.C. 407), Section 10 of the River and Harbor Act of 1899 (33 U.S.C. 403), Section 5 of the Outer Continental Shelf Act (43 U.S.C. 1151 et seq.), the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 1857 et seq.) and the Noise Control Act of 1972 (42 U.S.C. 4901), is being exempted from access and contest; the provisions for disclosure of accounting is not applicable.

(2) From subsection (d) because of the need to safeguard the identity of confidential informants and to facilitate the enforcement of the criminal provisions of the above statutes.

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3) and (d):

(1) Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records System. (Justice/LDN–005).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c) (3) because that portion of the Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records System that consists of investigatory materials compiled for law enforcement purposes is being exempted from access and contest; the provision for disclosure of accounting is not applicable.

(2) From subsection (d) because of the need to safeguard the identity of confidential informants and avoid interference with ongoing investigations or law enforcement activities by preventing premature disclosure of information relating to those efforts.

[Order No. 688–77, 42 FR 10000, Feb. 18, 1977]

§ 16.93 Exemption of Tax Division Systems—Limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (c)(4), (d)(1), (d)(2), (d)(3), (d)(4), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1) Tax Division Central Classification Cards, Index Docket Cards, and Associated Records—Criminal Tax Cases (JUSTICE/TAX–001)—Limited Access.

(2) Tax Division Special Projects Files (JUSTICE/TAX–005)—Limited Access.

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(b) The systems of records listed under paragraphs (a)(1) and (a)(2) of this section are exempted for the reasons set forth below, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2)(c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this subsection is inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(3) (d)(1); (d)(2); (d)(3); (d)(4). Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an actual or potential criminal tax investigation of the existence of that investigation, of the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his or her activities, and of the identity of witnesses or informants. Such access would, accordingly, provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection, apprehension and prosecution. This result, therefore, would constitute a serious impediment to effective law enforcement not only because it would prevent the successful completion of the investigation but also because it could endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(4)(e)(1). The notices for these systems of records published in the Federal Register, set forth the basic statutory or related authority for maintenance of these systems. However, in the course of criminal tax and related law enforcement investigations, cases, and matters, the Tax Division will occasionally obtain information concerning actual or potential violations of law that may not be technically within its statutory or other authority or may compile information in the course of an investigation which may not be relevant to a specific prosecution. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain some or all of such information in these systems of records since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and can provide valuable leads for Federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(5)(e)(2). In a criminal tax investigation or prosecution, the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, influence witnesses improperly, destroy evidence, or fabricate testimony.

(6)(e)(3). The requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(7)(e)(4) (G) and (H). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) (Agency Rules) and (d) (Access to Records) of the Act these subsections are inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (f) and (d).

(8)(e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in the systems have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in these systems, exemption from this provision is necessary in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of criminal tax and related law enforcement information. Such exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

(9)(e)(5). In the collection of information for criminal tax enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light. Furthermore, the accuracy of such information can often only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions of subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of government attorneys in exercising their judgment in reporting on information and investigations and impede the development of criminal tax information and related data necessary for effective law enforcement.

(11)(f). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him dealing with an actual or potential criminal tax, civil tax, or regulatory investigation or prosecution must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion or an investigation or prosecution pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable to these systems of records to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(12)(g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsections (d) and (f).

(c) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d)(1), (d)(2), (d)(3), (d)(4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G, (e)(4)(H, (e)(4)(I) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1) Tax Division Central Classification Cards, Index Docket Cards, and Associated Records—Civil Tax Cases (JUSTICE/TAX-002)—Limited Access.

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(d) The system of records listed under paragraph (c)(1) is exempted for the reasons set forth below, from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2) (d)(1); (d)(2); (d)(3); (d)(4). Access to the records contained in this system would inform the subject of an actual or potential civil tax investigation of the existence of that investigation, of the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his or her activities and of the identity of witnesses or informants. Such access would, accordingly, provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection. This result, therefore, would constitute a serious impediment to effective law enforcement not only because it would prevent the successful completion of the investigation but also because it could endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(4)(e)(4) (G) and (H). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) (Agency Rules) and (d) (Access to Records) of the Act these subsections are inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (f) and (d).

(5)(e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in this system have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in this system, exemption from this provision is necessary in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of civil tax and related law enforcement information. Such exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

(6)(f). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to existence of records pertaining to the individual dealing with an actual or potential criminal tax, civil tax, or regulatory investigation or presecution must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation or case, pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable to this system of records to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(e) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4), (C), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I), (e) (5) and (8), (f), and (g).

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(2).

(f) Because this system contains Department of Justice civil and criminal law enforcement, investigatory records, it is exempted for the reasons set forth from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(1)(c)(3). The release of the disclosure accounting would present a serious impediment to law enforcement by permitting the subject of a investigation of an actual or potential criminal, civil, or regulatory violation to determine whether he is the subject of investigation, or to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation and the information obtained, or to identify witnesses and informants.

(2)(c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records), this subsection is inapplicable to the extent that this system of records is exempted from subsection (d).

(3)(d). Access to records contained in this system would inform the subject of an actual or potential criminal tax investigation of the existence of that investigation, of the nature and scope of the investigation, of the information and evidence obtained as to his or her activities, and of the identity of witnesses or informants. Such access would, accordingly, provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection, apprehension, and prosecution. This result, therefore, would constitute a serious impediment to effective law enforcement not only because it would prevent the successful completion of the investigation but also because it could endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, of the fabrication of testimony. Amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement proceedings and imposes an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(5)(e)(2). To collect information to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual of a criminal investigation or prosecution would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, improperly influence witnesses, destroy evidence, or fabricate testimony.

(6)(e)(3). To provide individuals supplying information with a form which includes the information required by subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement, i.e., it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(7)(e)(4) (G) and (H). These subsections are inapplicable to the extent that this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) and the rules provisions of subsection (f).

(8)(e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in this system have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e) (4) (I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in this system, exemption from this provision is necessary to protect the confidentiality of the sources of criminal tax and related law enforcement information. Such exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

(9)(e)(5). In the collection of information for criminal tax enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light. Furthermore, the accuracy of such information can often only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions of subsection (e)(5) would inhibit the ability of government attorneys in exercising their judgement in reporting on information and investigations and impede the development of criminal tax information and related data necessary for effective law enforcement.

(10)(e)(8). The individual notice requirements of subsection (e)(8) could present a serious impediment to law enforcement as this could interfere with the ability to issue warrants or subpoenas and could reveal investigative techniques, procedures, or evidence.

(11)(f). This subsection is inapplicable to the extent that this system is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(12)(g). Because the records in this system are generally compiled for law enforcement purposes and are exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d), subsection (g) is inapplicable.

[Order No. 742-77, 42 FR 40906, Aug. 12, 1977, as amended by AAG/A Order No. 6-86, 51 FR 15475, Apr. 24, 1986]

§§ 16.94–16.95 [Reserved]

§ 16.96 Exemption of Federal Bureau of Investigation Systems—Limited access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (2), and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(8), (f) and (g).

(1) Central Records System (CRS) (JUSTICE/FBI-002). These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(j) and (k). Where compliance would not appear to interfere with or adversely affect the overall law enforcement process, the applicable exemption may be waived by the FBI.

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because making available to a record subject the accounting of disclosures from records concerning him/her would reveal investigative interest by not only the FBI, but also by the recipient agency. This would permit the record subject to take appropriate measures to impede the investigation, e.g., destroy evidence, intimidate potential witnesses or flee the area to avoid the thrust of the investigation.

(2)(i) From subsections (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (f) and (g) because these provisions concern individual access to investigative records, compliance with which could compromise sensitive information classified in the interest of national security, interfere with the overall law enforcement process by revealing a pending sensitive investigation, possibly identify a confidential source or disclose information which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of another individual's personal privacy, reveal a sensitive investigative technique, or constitute a potential danger to the health or safety to law enforcement personnel.

(ii) Also, individual access to non-criminal investigative records, e.g., civil investigations and administrative inquiries, as described in subsection (k) of the Privacy Act, could also compromise classified information related to national security, interfere with a pending investigation or internal inquiry, constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy, reveal a confidential source or sensitive investigative technique, or pose a potential threat to law enforcement personnel. In addition, disclosure of information collected pursuant to an employment suitability or similar inquiry could reveal the identity of a source who provided information under an express promise of confidentiality, or could compromise the objectivity or fairness of a testing or examination process.

(iii) In addition, from paragraph (d)(2) because to require the FBI to amend information thought to be incorrect, irrelevant or untimely, because of the nature of the information collected and the essential length of time it is maintained, would create an impossible administrative and investigative burden by forcing the agency to continuously retrograde its investigations attempting to resolve questions of accuracy, etc.

(3) From subsection (e)(1) because:

(i) It is not possible in all instances to determine relevency or necessity of specific information in the early stages of a criminal or other investigation.

(ii) Relevancy and necessity are questions of judgement and timing; what appears relevant and necessary when collected ultimately may be deemed unnecessary. It is only after the information is assessed that its relevency and necessity in a specific investigative activity can be established.

(iii) In any investigation the FBI might obtain information concerning violations of law not under its jurisdiction, but in the interest of effective law enforcement, dissemination will be made to the agency charged with enforcing such law.

(iv) In interviewing individuals or obtaining other forms of evidence during an investigation, information could be obtained, the nature of which would leave in doubt its relevency and necessity. Such information, however, could be relevent to another investigation or to an investigative activity under the jurisdiction of another agency.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because the nature of criminal and other investigative activities is such that vital information about an individual can only be obtained from other persons who are familiar with such individual and his/her activities. In such investigations it is not feasible to rely upon information furnished by the individual concerning his own activities.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because disclosure would provide the subject with substantial information which could impede or compromise the investigation. The individual could seriously interfere with undercover investigative activities and could take appropriate steps to evade the investigation or flee a specific area.

(6) From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirements of this provision could seriously interfere with a law enforcement activity by alerting the subject of a criminal or other investigation of existing investigative interest.

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), (g) and (m):

(1) Electronic Surveillance (Elsur) Indices (JUSTICE/FBI–006).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting disclosures would place the subject of an investigation on notice that he is under investigation and provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation, resulting in a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (g) because these provisions concern an individual's access to records which concern him and such access to records in this system would compromise ongoing investigations, reveal investigatory techniques and confidential informants, and invade the privacy of private citizens who provide information in connection with a particular investigation.

(3) From subsection (e)(1) because these indices must be maintained in order to provide the information as described in the "routine uses" of this particular system.

(4) From subsections (e) (2) and (3) because compliance is not feasible given the subject matter of the indices.

(5) From subsection (e)(5) because this provision is not applicable to the indices in view of the "routine uses" of the indices. For example, it is impossible to predict when it will be necessary to utilize information in the system and, accordingly it is not possible to determine when the records are timely.

(6) From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirement could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures and the existence of confidential investigations.

(7) From subsection (m) for the reasons stated in subsection (b)(7) of this section.

(e) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f), and (g):

(1) Identification Division Records System (JUSTICE/FBI–009).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j).

(f) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) for the reasons stated in subsection (d)(1) of this section.

(2) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (f) and (g) because these provisions concern an individual's access to records which concern him. Such access is directed at allowing the subject of a record to correct inaccuracies in it. Although an alternate system of access has been provided in 28 CFR 16.30 to 34 and 28 CFR 20.34, the vast majority of records in this system concern local arrests which it would be inappropriate for the FBI to undertake to correct.

(3) From subsection (e)(1) because it is impossible to state with any degree of certainty that all information on these records is relevant to accomplish a purpose of the FBI, even though acquisition of the records from state and local law enforcement agencies is based on a statutory requirement. In view of the number of records in the system it is impossible to review them for relevancy.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because the records in the system are necessarily furnished by criminal justice agencies due to their very nature.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because compliance is not feasible due to the nature of the records.

(6) From subsection (e)(5) because the vast majority of these records come from local criminal justice agencies and it is administratively impossible to ensure that the records comply with this provision. Submitting agencies are, however, urged on a continuing basis to ensure that their records are accurate and include all dispositions.

(7) From subsection (e)(8) because the FBI has no logical manner to ascertain whether process has been made public and compliance with this provision would in any case, provide an impediment to law enforcement by interfering with the ability to issue warrants or subpoenas and by revealing investigative techniques, procedures or evidence.

(g) The following system or records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(8), (f), and (g): National Crime Information Center (NCIC) (JUSTICE/FBI–001). This exemption applies only to the extent that information in the system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(3).

(h) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) for the reasons stated in subsection (d)(1) of this section.

(2) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (g) for the reasons stated in subsection (d)(2) of this section. When records are properly subject to access by the individual, an alternate means of access is provided in subsection (i) of this section.

(3) From subsection (e)(1) because information contained in this system is primarily from state and local records, and it is for the official use of agencies outside the Federal Government in accordance with 28 U.S.C. 534.

(4) From subsections (e) (2) and (3) because it is not feasible to comply with these provisions given the nature of this system.

(5) From subsection (e)(8) for the reasons stated in subsection (d)(6) of this section.

(i) Access to computerized criminal history records in the National Crime Information Center is available to the individual who is the subject of the record pursuant to procedures and requirements specified in the Notice of Systems of Records compiled by the National Archives and Records Administration and published under the designation:

National Crime Information Center (NCIC) (JUSTICE/FBI–001)).

Information on access is also published in the Appendix to Part 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations in relation to 28 CFR 20.34.

(j) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (f) and (g):

(1)National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime (NCAVC) (JUSTICE/FBI–015). These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(2).

(k)Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1)From subsection (c)(3) because providing the accounting of disclosures to the subject could prematurely reveal investigative interest by the FBI and other law enforcement agencies, thereby providing the individual an opportunity to impede an active investigation, destroy or alter evidence, and possibly render harm to violent crime victims and/or witnesses.

(2)From subsection (d), (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f) because disclosure to the subject could interfere with enforcement proceedings of a criminal justice agency, reveal the identity of a confidential source, result in an unwarranted invasion of another's privacy, reveal the details of a sensitive investigative technique, or endanger the life and safety of law enforcement personnel, potential violent crime victims, and witnesses. Disclosure also could prevent the future apprehension of a violent or exceptionally dangerous criminal fugitive should he or she modify his or her method of operation in order to evade law enforcement. Also, specifically from subsection (d)(2), which permits an individual to request amendment of a record, because the nature of the information in the system is such that an individual criminal offender would frequently demand amendment of derogatory information, forcing the FBI to continuously retrograde its criminal investigations in an attempt to resolve questions of accuracy, etc.

(3) From subsection (g) because the system is exempt from the access and amendment provisions of subsection (d).

(4) From subsection (e)(1) because it is not always possible to establish relevance and necessity of the information at the time it is obtained or developed. Information, the relevance and necessity of which may not be readily apparent, frequently can prove to be of investigative value at a later date and time.

National Crime Information Center (NCIC) (JUSTICE/FBI–001).

information on access is also published in the Appendix to Part 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations in relation to 28 CFR 20.34.

§ 16.97 Exemption of Bureau of Prisons Systems—Limited access.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (H), (e)(8), (f) and (g):

(1) Custodial and Security Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–001).

(2) Industrial Inmate Employment Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–003).

(3) Inmate Administrative Remedy Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–004).

(4) Inmate Central Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–005).

(5) Inmate Commissary Accounts Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–006).

(6) Inmate Physical and Mental Health Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–007).

(7) Inmate Safety and Accident Compensation Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–008).

(8) Federal Tort Claims Act Record System (JUSTICE/BOP–009).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because inmates will not be permitted to gain access or to contest contents of these record systems under the provisions of subsection (d) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. Revealing disclosure accountings can compromise legitimate law enforcement activities and Bureau of Prisons responsibilities.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because exemption from provisions of subsection (d) will make notification of formal disputes inapplicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because exemption from this subsection is essential to protect internal processes by which Bureau personnel are able to formulate decisions and policies with regard to federal prisoners, to prevent disclosure of information to federal inmates that would jeopardize legitimate correctional interests of security, custody, or rehabilitation, and to permit receipt of relevant information from other federal agencies, state and local law enforcement agencies, and federal and state probation and judicial offices.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because primary collection of information directly from federal inmates about criminal sentences or criminal records is highly impractical and inappropriate.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because in view of the Bureau of Prisons' responsibilities, application of this provision to its operations and collection of information is inappropriate.

(6) From subsection (e)(4)(H) because exemption from provisions of subsection (d) will make publication of agency procedures under this subsection inapplicable.

(7) From subsection (e)(8) because the nature of Bureau of Prisons law enforcement activities renders notice of compliance with compulsory legal process impractical.

(8) From subsection (f) because exemption from provisions of subsection (d) will render compliance with provisions of this subsection inapplicable.

(9) From subsection (g) because exemption from provisions of subsection (d) will render provisions of this subsection inapplicable.

(c) Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93–579) the Bureau of Prisons will initiate a procedure whereby federal inmates in custody may gain access and review their individual prison files maintained at the institution of incarceration. Access to these files will be limited only to the extent that the disclosure of records to the inmate would jeopardize internal decision-making or policy determinations essential to the effective operation of the Bureau of Prisons; to the extent that disclosure of the records to the inmate would jeopardize privacy rights of others, or a legitimate correctional interest of security, custody, or rehabilitation; and to the extent information is furnished with a legitimate expectation of confidentiality. The Bureau of Prisons will continue to provide access to former inmates under existing regulations as is consistent with the interests listed above. Under present Bureau of Prisons regulations, inmates in federal institutions may file administrative complaints on any subject under the control of the Bureau. This would include complaints pertaining to information contained in these systems of records.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 6–86, 51 FR 15479, Apr. 24, 1986]

§ 16.98 Exemption of Drug Enforcement Administration Systems.

(a) The following systems of records are exempt for 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f):

(1)Automated Records and Consummated Orders System/Diversion Analysis and Detection System (ARCOS/DADS) (JUSTICE/DEA-003).

(2)Controlled Substances Act Registration Records (JUSTICE/DEA-005).

(3)Registration Status/Investigatory Records (JUSTICE/DEA-012)

These exemptions apply only to the extent that informaton in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the revealing of the disclosure accounting pursuant to the routine uses published for these systems would enable the subject of an investigation to gain valuable information concerning the nature and scope of the investigation and seriously hamper the regulatory functions of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

(2) From subsection (d) because access to records contained in these systems might provide the subject of an investigation information that could enable him to avoid compliance with the Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 (Pub. L. 91–513).

(3) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because these systems or records are exempt from individual access pursuant to subsection (k) of the Act.

(4) From subsection (f) because these systems are exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(c)The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C.552a(c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (8), (f), (g) and (h):

(1)Air Intelligence Program (JUSTICE/DEA-001).

(2)Investigative Reporting and Filing System (JUSTICE/DEA-008).

(3)Planning and Inspection Divisions Records (JUSTICE/DEA-010).

(4)Operations Files (JUSTICE/DEA-011).

(5)Security Files (JUSTICE/DEA-013).

(6)System to Retrieve Information from Drug Evidence (STRIDE/Ballistics)(JUSTICE/DEA-014).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemptions pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting for disclosure pursuant to the routine uses published for these systems would permit the subject of a criminal investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation and present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d), this subsection will not be applicable.

(3)From subsection (d) because access to records contained in these systems would interfere with the overall law enforcement process by revealing a pending sensitive investigation, e.g., it may alert a subject to the existence of an investigation and thereby provide information to the subject which might enable him to avoid detection or apprehension, or it may alert collateral suspects yet unprosecuted in closed cases. Likewise, access to these records could present a serious impediment to law enforcement efforts by simply revealing a sensitive investigative technique. Finally, access to these records may possibly identify a confidential source, or disclose information which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of another individual's privacy or create a potential danger to the health and safety of law enforcement personnel.

(4) From subsection (e)(1) because in the course of criminal investigations, the Drug Enforcement Administration often detects violation of non-drug related laws. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary that DEA retain all information obtained in criminal investigations because it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and assist other law enforcement agencies that are charged with enforcing other segments of criminal law.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because information collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual of a criminal investigation would provide the subject with valuable information which might preclude detection or apprehension of the subject individual.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources of information and endanger the life or physical safety of confidential informants.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because these systems of records are exempt from individual access pursuant to subsection (j) of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(8) From subsection (e)(5) because in the collection of information for law enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light and the accuracy of such information can only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions imposed by subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of trained investigators and intelligence analysts to exercise their judgment in reporting on investigations and impede the development of criminal intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(9) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirements could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by interfering with the Drug Enforcement Administration's ability to issue administrative techniques and procedures.

(10) From subsection (f) because these systems have been exempted from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(11) From subsections (g) and (h) because these systems are compiled for law enforcement purposes and have been exempted from the access provisions of subsections (d) and (f).

(e)The following systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1) and (e)(1).

(1)Grants of Confidentiality Files (GCF)(JUSTICE/DEA-017).

(2)DEA Applicants Investigations (JUSTICE/DEA-018).

These exemption apply only to the extent that information in these systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(f) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (d)(1) because many persons are contacted who, without an assurance of anonymity, refuse to provide information concerning an applicant for a grant of confidentiality with DEA. Permitting access to the information supplied by persons after a promise of confidentiality has been given could reveal the identity of the source of the information and constitute a breach of the promised confidentiality on the part of the Drug Enforcement Administration. Such breaches ultimately would restrict the free flow of information vital to a determination of an applicant's qualifications for a grant.

(2) From (e)(1) because in the collection of information for investigative and evaluative purposes, it is impossible to determine in advance what exact information may be of assistance in determining the qualifications and suitability of a candidate. Information which may appear irrelevant, when combined with other apparently irrelevant information can on occasion, provide a composite picture of an applicant which assists in determining whether a grant of confidentiality is warranted.

(g)The following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) from subsections (c)(3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (8), (f), (g), and (h) of

5 U.S.C. 552a; in addition, the following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

Freedom of Information/Privacy Act Records (JUSTICE/DEA-006).

This system of records listed in paragraph (g) of this section is exempted because the records contained in the system contain Drug Enforcement Administration law enforcement and investigative information. Individual access to these records might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal confidential informants or constitute unwarranted invasions of the personal privacy of third parties who are involved in a certain investigation. These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemptions pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k).

(h)Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1)From (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting for disclosure pursuant to the routine uses published for this system would permit the subject of a criminal investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation and present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2)From subsection (c)(4) because an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) and this subsection will therefore not be applicable.

(3)From subsection (d) because access to records contained in this system would alert a subject to the existence of an investigation and thereby provide information to the subject which might enable him to avoid detection or apprehension, and present serious impediment to law enforcement.

(4)From subsection (e)(1) because in the course of criminal investigations the Drug Enforcement Administration often detects violation of non-drug related laws. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary that DEA retain all information obtained in criminal investigations because it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and assist other law enforcement agencies that are charged with enforcing other segments of criminal law.

(5)From subsection (e)(2) because the nature of criminal and other investigative activities is such that vital information about an individual can only be obtained from other persons who are familiar with such individual and his/her activities. In such investigations it is not feasible to rely upon information furnished by the individual concerning his own activities.

(6)From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources of information, and endanger the life or pysical safety of confidential informants.

(7)From subsection (e)(4)(G) and (H) because this system of records is exempt from the individual ccess provisions of subsection (d).

(8)From subsection (e)(5) because in the collection of information for law enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light and the accuracy of such information can only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions imposed by subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of trained investigators and intelligence analysts to exercise their judgment in reporting on investigations and impede the development of criminal intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(9)From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirements could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by interfering with the Drug Enforcement Administration's ability to issue administrative techniques and procedures.

(10)From subsection (f) because this system has been exempted from the individual access provision of subsection (d).

(11)From subsection (g) because the records in this system are generally compiled for law enforcement purposes and are exempt from the access provisions of subsections (d) and (f), rendering subsection (g) inapplicable.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 688–77, 42 FR 10001, Feb. 18, 1977; AAG/G Order No. 68–81, 46 FR 32866, June 25,1981; AAG/A Order No. 13-84, 49 FR 29595, July 23, 1984]

§ 16.99 Exemption of Immigration and Naturalization Service System—Limited access.

(a) The following systems of records of the Immigration and Naturalization Service are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e) (5) and (8), (f) and (g):

(1) The Immigration and Naturalization Service Alien File (A-File) and Central Index System (CIS), JUSTICE/INS-001-A.

(2)The Immigration and Naturalization Service Index System, JUSTICE/INS-001 which consists of the following subsystems:

(i) Agency Information Control Record Index.

(ii) Alien Enemy Index.

(iii) Congressional Mail Unit Index.

(iv) Air Detail Office Index.

(v) Anti-smuggling Index (general).

(vi) Anti-smuggling Information Centers Systems for Canadian and Mexican Borders.

(vii) Border Patrol Sectors General Index System.

(viii) Contact Index.

(ix) Criminal, Immoral, Narcotic, Racketeer and Subversive Indexes.

(x) Enforcement Correspondence Control Index System.

(xi) Document Vendors and Alterers Index.

(xii) Informant Index.

(xiii) Suspect Third Party Index.

(xiv) Examination Correspondence Control Index.

(xv) Extention Training Enrollee Index.

(xv) Intelligence Index.

(xvii) Naturalization and Citizenship Indexes.

(xviii) Personnel Investigations Unit Indexes.

(xix) Service Look-Out Subsystem.

(xx) White House and Attorney General Correspondence Control Index.

(xxi) Fraudulent Document Center Index.

(xxii) Emergency Reassignment Index.

(xxiii) Alien Documentation, Identification, and Telecommunication (ADIT) System.

These exemptions apply to the extent that information in these subsystems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting for disclosure pursuant to the routine uses published for these subsystems would permit the subject of a criminal or civil investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation and present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d), this subsection will not be applicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because access to the records contained in these subsystems would inform the subject of a criminal or civil investigation of the existence of that investigation, provide the subject of the investigation with information that might enable him to avoid detection or apprehension, and present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(4) From subsection (e)(1) because in the course of criminal or civil investigations, the Immigration and Naturalization Service often obtains information concerning the violation of laws other than those relating to violations over which INS has investigative jurisdiction. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary that INS retain this information since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and provide valuable leads for those law enforcement agencies that are charged with enforcing other segments of the criminal law.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because in a criminal or civil investigation, the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be placed on notice of the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources of information and endanger the life or physical safety of confidential informants.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because these subsystems of records are exempt from individual access pursuant to subsection (j) of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(8) From subsection (e)(5) because in the collection of information for law enforcement purposes it is impossible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light and the accuracy of such information can only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions of subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of trained investigators and intelligence analysts to exercise their judgment in reporting on investigations and impede the development of criminal intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(9) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirements of subsection (e)(8) could present a serious impediment to law enforcement as this could interfere with the Immigration and Naturalization Service's ability to issue administrative subpoenas and could reveal investigative techniques and procedures.

(10) From subsection (g) because these subsystems of records are compiled for law enforcement purposes and have been exempted from the access provisions of subsections (d) and (f).

(11) In addition, these subsystems of records are exempt from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) and (H) to the extent that they are subject to exemption pursuant to 5 USC 552a(k)(1). To permit access to records classified pursuant to Executive Order would violate the Executive Order protecting classified information.

(c) The Border Patrol Academy Index Subsystem is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f).

This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this subsystem is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k).

(d) Exemptions for the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons.

(1) From subsection (d) because exemption is claimed only for those testing and examination materials used to determine an individual's qualifications for retention and promotion in the Immigration and Naturalization Service. This is necessary to protect the integrity of testing materials and to insure fair and uniform examinations.

(2) From subsection (f) because the subsystem of records has been exempted from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(e) The Orphan Petitioner Index and Files (Justice/INS–007) system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d). This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

(f) Exemption from paragraph (d) of this section is claimed solely because of the possibility of receipt of classified information during the course of INS investigation of prospective adoptive parents.

Although it would be rare, prospective adoptive parents may originally be from foreign countries (for example) and information received on them from their native countries may require classification under Executive Order 12356 which safeguards national security information. If such information is relevant to the INS determination with respect to adoption, the information would be kept in the file and would be classified accordingly. Therefore, access could not be granted to the record subject under the Privacy Act without violating Executive Order 12356.

[Order 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by Order No. 688–77, 42 FR 10001, Feb. 18, 1977; AAG/Order No. 6-84, 49 FR 20812, May 17, 1984; Order No. 25–88, 53 FR 41161, Oct. 20, 1988]

§ 16.100 Exemption of Office of Justice Programs—Limited access.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d):

(1) The Civil Rights Investigative System (JUSTICE/OJP–008). This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(b) Exemption from subsection (d) is claimed since access to information in the Civil Rights Investigative System prior to final administrative resolution will deter conciliation and compliance efforts. Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974, decisions to release information from the system will be made on a case-by-case basis and information will be made available where it does not compromise the complaint and compliance process. In addition, where explicit promises of confidentiality must be made to a source during an investigation, disclosure will be limited to the extent that the identity of such confidential sources will not be compromised.

[Order No. 645–76,41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by AAG/A Order 5–78, 43 FR 36439, Aug. 17, 1978; AAG/A Order No. 43-80, 45 FR 6780, Jan. 30, 1980; Order No. 6-86, 51 FR 15479, Apr. 24, 1986]

§ 16.101 Exemption of U.S. Marshals Service Systems—Limited access, as indicated.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8), and (f) and (g):

(1) Warrant Information System (JUSTICE/USM–007).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of disclosure accounting for disclosure made pursuant to subsection (b) of the Act, including those permitted under routine uses published for this system of records would permit a person to determine whether he is the subject of a criminal investigation, and to determine whether a warrant has been issued against him, and therefore present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act, this section is inapplicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because access to records would inform a person for whom a federal warrant has been issued of the nature and scope of information obtained as to his activities, of the identity of informants, and afford the person sufficient information to enable the subject to avoid apprehension. These factors would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that they would thwart the warrant process and endanger lives of informants etc.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would present a serious impediment to lawenforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the warrant and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because the requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirement of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal identity of confidential informants.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) and (d) of the Act, these subsections are inapplicable.

(8) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirement of this subsection would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it would give persons sufficient warning to avoid warrants, subpoena, etc.

(10) From subsection (g) since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) and (f) this section is inapplicable and is exempted for the reasons set forth for these subsections.

(c) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8), (f)(2) and (g):

(1) Witness Security System (JUSTICE/USM-008).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(d) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of the disclosure accounting for disclosures made pursuant to subsection (b) of the Act including those permitted under routine uses published for this system of records would hamper the effective functioning of the Witness Security Program which by its very nature requires strict confidentiality vis-a-vis the records.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(3) From subsection (d) because the United States Marshals Service Witness Security Program aids efforts of law enforcement officials to prevent, control or reduce crime. Access to records would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement through revelation of confidential sources and through disclosure of operating procedures of the program, and through increased exposure of the program to the public.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because in the Witness Security Program the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent possible from the subject individual would constitute an impediment to the program, which is sometimes dependent on sources other than the subject witness for verification of information pertaining to the witness.

(5)From subsection (e)(3) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(6) of this section.

(6)From subsection (e)(4)(G) and (H) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(7) of this section

(7)From subsection (e)(8) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(8) of this section.

(8) From subsection (f)(2) since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act the rules required pursuant to subsection (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable to this system of records.

(9) From subsection (g) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(10) of this section.

(e) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (f) and (g) and may be additionally exempt from subsection (e)(8):

(1) Internal Investigations System (JUSTICE/USM-002)—Limited access.

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) or (j)(2).

(f)Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) where the release of the disclosure accounting for disclosures made pursuant to subsection (b) of the Act would reveal a source who furnished information to the Government in confidence.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(3) From subsection (d) because access to information in this system which was obtained from a confidential source impede the effective investigation into employee conduct for purposes of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal employment in that it would inhibit furnishing of information by sources which desire to remain confidential.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to compromise the investigation and avoid detection or apprehension.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(6) of this section.

(6) From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(7) of this section.

(7) From subsection (e)(8) because the individual notice requirement of this subsection would present a serious impediment to law enforcement in that the subject of the investigation would be alerted as to the existence of the investigation and therefore be able to compromise the investigation and avoid detection, subpoena, etc.

(9) From subsection (g) for the reason stated in paragraph (b)(10) of this section.

(g) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f) and (g):

(1) U.S. Marshals Service Threat Analysis Information System (JUSTICE/USM-009).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(h) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because to release the disclosure accounting would permit a person to determine whether he or she has been identified as a specific threat to USMS protectees and to determine the need for countermeasures to USMS protective activities and thereby present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because it is inapplicable since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d).

(3) From subsection (d) because to permit access to records would inform a person of the nature and scope of information obtained as to his or her threat-related activities and of the identity of confidential sources, and afford the person sufficient information to develop countermeasures to thwart protective arrangements and endanger lives of USMS protectees, informants, etc. To permit amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement and impose an impossible administrative burden requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e) (1) and (5) because the collection of investigatory information used to assess the existence, extent and likelihood of a threat situation necessarily includes material from which it is impossible to identify and segregate information which may not be important to the conduct of a thorough assessment. It is often impossible to determine in advance if all information collected is accurate, relevent, timely and complete but, in the interests of developing effective protective measures, it is necessary that the U.S. Marshals Service retain this information in order to establish patterns of activity to aid in accurately assessing threat situations. The restrictions of subsections (e) (1) and (5) would impede the protective responsibilities of the Service and could result in death or serious injury to Marshals Service protectees.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because to collect information from the subject individual would serve notice that he or she is identified as a specific threat to USMS protectees and would enable the subject individual to develop countermeasures to protective activities and thereby present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to inform individuals as required by this subsection would enable the subject individual to develop countermeasures to USMS protective arrangements or identify confidential sources and thereby present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because they are inapplicable since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) and (f) of the Act.

(8) From subsection (e)(8) because to serve notice would give persons sufficient warning to develop countermeasures to protective arrangements and thereby present a serious impediment to law enforcement through compromise of protective procedures, etc.

(9) From subsection (f) because this system of records is exempt from the provisions of subsection (d).

(10) From subsection (g) because it is inapplicable since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) and (f).

(i) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (d):

(1) Judicial Facility Security Index System (JUSTICE/USM-010)

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is exempt pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(j) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) only to the extent that release of the disclosure accounting would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(2) From subsection (d) only to the extent that access to information would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(k) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f) and (g):

(1) U.S. Marshals Service Freedom of Information/Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) Files (JUSTICE/USM-012).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(2) and (k)(5).

(l) Because this system contains Department of Justice civil and criminal law enforcement, investigatory records, exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because to release the disclosure accounting would permit the subject of an investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the existence and nature of the investigation and present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because that portion of this system which consists of investigatory records compiled for law enforcement purposes is being exempted from the provisions of subsection (d), rendering this provision not applicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because to permit access to investigatory records would reveal the identity of confidential sources and impede ongoing investigative or law enforcement activities by the premature disclosure of information related to those efforts. To permit amendment of the records would interfere with ongoing criminal law enforcement and impose an impossible administrative burden by requiring criminal investigations to be continuously reinvestigated.

(4) From subsections (e) (1) and (5) because it is often impossible to determine in advance if investigatory records contained in this system are accurate, relevant, timely and complete but, in the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain this information to aid in establishing patterns of activity and provide leads in criminal investigations.

(5) From subsection (e)(2) because to collect information from the subject individual would serve notice that he or she is the subject of criminal investigative or law enforcement activity and thereby present a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(6) From subsection (e)(3) because to inform individuals as required by this subsection would enable the subject individual to identify confidential sources, reveal the existence of an investigation, and compromise law enforcement efforts.

(7) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because they are inapplicable since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) and (f) for investigatory records contained in this system.

(8) From subsection (e)(8) because to serve notice would give persons sufficient warning to evade law enforcement efforts.

(9) From subsection (f) because investigatory records contained in this system are exempt from the provisions of subsection (d).

(10) From subsection (g) because it is inapplicable since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) and (f).

(m) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (e)(8), (f) and (g):

(1) U.S. Marshals Service Administrative Proceedings, Claims and Civil Litigation Files (JUSTICE/USM–013).

These exemptions apply only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) or (k)(5).

(n) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because to release the disclosure accounting for disclosures pursuant to the routine uses published for this system would permit the subject of a criminal or civil case or matter under investigation, or a case or matter in litigation, or under regulatory or administrative review or action, to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation, case or matter, and present a serious impediment to law enforcement or civil legal activities, or reveal a confidential source.

(2) From subsection (c)(4) because the exemption claimed for subsection (d) will make this section inapplicable.

(3) From subsection (d) because to permit access to records contained in this system would provide information concerning litigation strategy, or case development, and/or reveal the nature of the criminal or civil case or matter under investigation or administrative review, or in litigation, and present a serious impediment to law enforcement or civil legal activities, or reveal a confidential source.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because effective legal representation, defense, or claim adjudication necessitates collecting information from all individuals having knowledge of the criminal or civil case or matter. To collect information primarily from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement or civil legal activities.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because to inform the individuals as required by this subsection would permit the subject of a criminal or civil matter under investigation or administrative review to compromise that investigation or administrative review and thereby impede law enforcement efforts or civil legal activities.

(6) From subsections (e)(4) (G) and (H) because these provisions are inapplicable since this system is exempt from subsections (d) and (f) of the Act.

(7) From subsection (e)(8) because to serve notice would give persons sufficient warning to compromise a criminal or civil investigation or administrative review and thereby impede law enforcement of civil legal activities.

(8) From subsection (f) because this system of records is exempt from the provisions of subsection (d).

(9) From subsection (g) because it is inapplicable since an exemption is claimed for subsections (d) and (f).

(o) Consistent with the legislative purpose of the Privacy Act of 1974, the United States Marshals Service will grant access to nonexempt material in records which are maintained by the Service. Disclosure will be governed by the Department's Privacy Regulations, but will be limited to the extent that the identity of confidential sources will not be compromised; subjects of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal, civil or regulatory violation will not be alerted to the investigation; the physical safety of witnesses, informants and law enforcement personnel will not be endangered; the privacy of third parties will not be violated; and that the disclosure would not otherwise impede effective law enforcement. Whenever possible, information of the above nature will be deleted from the requested documents and the balance made available. The controlling principle behind this limited access is to allow disclosures except those indicated above. The decisions to release information from this system will be made on a case-by-case basis. The decision to release information from these systems will be made on a case—by—case basis.

[Order No. 645–76, 41 FR 12640, Mar. 26, 1976, as amended by AAG/A Order No. 8–83, 48 FR 19024, Apr. 27, 1983; AAG/A 10–86, 51 FR 20275, Jun. 4, 1986; Order No. 11–86, 51 FR 20277, Jun. 4, 1986]

§ 16.102 Exemption of Drug Enforcement Administration and Immigration and Naturalization Service Joint System of Records.

(a) The following system of records is exempted pursuant to provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) from subsections (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), (e)(5) and (8), (f), (g), and (h) of 5 U.S.C. 552a; in addition the following system of records is exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 (k)(1) and (k)(2) from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(1) Automated Intelligence Record System (Pathfinder), JUSTICE/DEA–INS–111. These exemptions apply to the extent that information in those systems is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(1) and (k)(2).

(b) The system of records listed under paragraph (a) of this section is exempted, for the reasons set forth from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a:

(2)(c)(4). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) this subsection is inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(3)(d). Access to the records contained in these systems would inform the subject of an investigation of an actual or potential criminal, civil, or regulatory violation of the existence of that investigation, or the nature and scope of the information and evidence obtained as to his activities, of the identity of witnesses and informants, or would provide information that could enable the subject to avoid detection or apprehension. These factors would present a serious impediment to effective law enforcement because they could prevent the successful completion of the investigation, endanger the physical safety of witnesses or informants, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of evidence, or the fabrication of testimony.

(4)(e)(1). The notices of these systems of records published in the Federal Register set forth the basic statutory or related authority for maintenance of this system. However, in the course of criminal or other law enforcement investigations, cases, and matters, the Immigration and Naturalization Service or the Drug Enforcement Administration will occasionally obtain information concerning actual or potential violations of law that are not strictly within its statutory or other authority or may compile information in the course of an investigation which may not be relevant to a specific prosecution. In the interests of effective law enforcement, it is necessary to retain such information in these systems of records since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and can provide valuable leads for federal and other law enforcement agencies.

(5)(e)(2). In a criminal investigation or prosecution, the requirement that information be collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual would present a serious impediment to law enforcement because the subject of the investigation or prosecution would be placed on notice as to the existence of the investigation and would therefore be able to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

(6)(e)(3). The requirement that individuals supplying information be provided with a form stating the requirements of subsection (e)(3) would constitute a serious impediment to law enforcement in that it could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation or reveal the identity of witnesses or confidential informants.

(7)(e)(4) (G) and (H). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (f) (Agency Rules) and (d) (Access to Records) of the Act these subsections are inapplicable to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsections (f) and (d).

(8)(e)(4)(I). The categories of sources of the records in these systems have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms in the belief that this is all that subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Act requires. In the event, however, that this subsection should be interpreted to require more detail as to the identity of sources of the records in these systems, exemption from this provision is necessary in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of criminal and other law enforcement information. Such exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

(11)(f). Procedures for notice to an individual pursuant to subsection (f)(1) as to the existence of records pertaining to him dealing with an actual or potential criminal, civil, or regulatory investigation or prosecution must be exempted because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation or prosecution pending or future. In addition, mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.

Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) of the Act (Access to Records) the rules required pursuant to subsections (f) (2) through (5) are inapplicable to these systems of records to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsection (d).

(12)(g). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsections (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsections (d) and (f).

(13)(h). Since an exemption is being claimed for subsection (d) (Access to Records) and (f) (Agency Rules) this section is inapplicable, and is exempted for the reasons set forth for those subsections, to the extent that these systems of records are exempted from subsections (d) and (f).

(14) In addition, exemption is claimed for these systems of records from compliance with the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1): Subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f) to the extent that the records contained in these systems are specifically authorized to be kept secret in the interests of national defense and foreign policy.

[Order No. 742–77, 42 FR 40907, Aug. 12, 1977]

§16.80 Exemption of the INTERPOL–United States National Central Bureau (INTERPOL–USNCB) System.

(a) The following system of records is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e)(1), (2), and (3), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (e)(5) and (8), (f) and (g):

(1) The INTERPOL–United States National Central Bureau (INTERPOL–USNCB) (Department of Justice) INTERPOL–USNCB Records System (JUSTICE/INTERPOL–001).This exemption applies only to the extent that information in this system is subject to exemption pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), (k)(2) and (k)(5).

(b) Exemptions from the particular subsections are justified for the following reasons:

(1) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting disclosures would place the subject of an investigation on notice that he is under investigation and provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation, thus resulting in a serious impediment to law enforcement.

(2) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4)(G) and (H), (f) and (g) because these provisions concern individual access to records and such access might compromise ongoing investigations, reveal investigatory techniques and confidential informants, and invade the privacy of private citizens who provide information in connection with a particular investigation.

(3) From subsection (e)(1) because information received in the course of an international criminal investigation may involve a violation of state or local law, and it is beneficial to maintain this information to provide investigative leads to state and local law enforcement agencies.

(4) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information from the subject of criminal investigations would thwart the investigation by placing the subject on notice.

(5) From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a statement of the intended use of the requested information could compromise the existence of a confidential investigation, and may inhibit cooperation.

(6) From subsection (e)(5) because the vast majority of these records come from local criminal justice agencies and it is administratively impossible to ensure that the records comply with this provision. Submitting agencies are, however, urged on a continuing basis to ensure that their records are accurate and include all dispositions.

(7) From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirements of the provision could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and the existence of confidential investigations.

§ 103.20 Purpose and scope.

(a) Sections 103.20 through 103.36 comprise the regulations of the Service implementing the Privacy Act of 1974, Pub. L. 93–597. The regulations apply to all records contained in systems of records maintained by the Service which are identifiable by individual name or identifier and which are retrieved by individual name or identifier, except those personnel records governed by Civil Service Commission regulations. The regulations set forth the procedures by which individuals may seek access to records pertaining to themselves and request correction of those records. The regulations also set forth the requirements applicable to Service employees maintaining, collecting, using or disseminating such records.

(b) The Associate Commissioner, Management, shall provide that the provisions of §§ 103.20 through 103.36 of this part and 28 CFR 16.40 through 16.56, and any revisions thereof, shall be brought to the attention of and made available to:

(1) Each employee at the time of issuance of the regulations and at the time of any amendment; and

(2) Each new employee at the time of employment.

(c) The Associate Commissioner, Information Systems, shall be responsible for ensuring that employees of the Service are trained in the obligations imposed by the Privacy Act of 1974(5 U.S.C. 552a) and by these regulations.

[40 FR 44481, Sept. 16, 1975, as amended at 48 FR 49652, Oct. 27, 1983]

§ 103.21 Access by individuals to records maintained about them.

(a) Access to available records. An individual seeking access to records about himself in a system of records, which have not been exempted from access pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974, shall present his request in person or in writing to the manager of the particular system of records to which he seeks access. Systems managers are identified in the "Notice of Systems of Records" published by the National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration. Access to records in multiple systems of records shall be addressed to the Office of the Associate Commissioner, Management, which shall assist the requester in identifying his request more precisely and shall be responsible for forwarding the request to the appropriate system managers. The use of Form G–657, Privacy Act Information Request, is recommended for rapid identification and to insure expeditious handling.

(b) Verification of identity. The following standards are applicable to any individual who requests records concerning himself, unless other provisions for identity verification are specified in the published notice pertaining to the particular system of records.

(1) An individual seeking access to records about himself in person shall establish his identity by the presentation of a single document bearing a photograph (such as a passport, alien registration receipt card or identification badge) or by the presentation of two items of identification which do not bear a photograph but do bear both a name and address (such as a driver's license, or credit card).

(2) An individual seeking access to records about himself by mail shall establish his identity by a signature, address, date of birth, place of birth, alien or employee identification number, if any, and one other identifier such as a photocopy of an identifying document.

(3) An individual seeking access to records about himself by mail or in person who cannot provide the necessary documentation of identification may provide a notarized statement swearing or affirming to his identity and to the fact that he understands the penalties for false statements pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 1001. Form G–652, affidavit of Identity, may be obtained on request from the office of the system manager of a system of records at a system location listed in the "Notice of Systems of Records" published in the Federal Register.

(c) Verification of guardianship. The parent or guardian of a child or of a person judicially determined to be incompetent and seeking to act on behalf of such child or incompetent, shall, in addition to establishing his own identity, establish the identity of the child or other person he represents as required in paragraph (b) of this section, and establish his own parentage or guardianship of the subject of the record by furnishing either a copy of a birth certificate showing parentage or a court order establishing the guardianship.

(d) Accompanying persons. An individual seeking to review records pertaining to himself may be accompanied by another individual of his own choosing. Both the individual seeking access and the individual accompanying him shall be required to sign the required form indicating that the Service is authorized to discuss the contents of the subject record in the presence of both individuals.

(e) Specification of records sought. Requests for access to records, either in person or by mail, shall describe the nature of the records sought, the approximate dates covered by the record, the system in which it is thought to be included as described in the "Notice of Systems of Records" published in the Federal Register, and the identity of the individual or office of the Service having custody of the system of records. In addition, the published "Notice of Systems of Records" for individual systems may include further requirements of specification, where necessary, to retrieve the individual record from the system.

[40 FR 44481, Sept. 26, 1975; 40 FR 46092, Oct. 6, 1975, as amended at 42 FR 33025, June 29, 1977; 48 FR 49653, Oct. 27, 1983]

§ 103.22 Records exempt in whole or in part.

(a) When an individual requests records about himself which have been exempted from individual access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) or (k)(3) or (k)(4) or which have been compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding either in a court or before an administrative tribunal, the Service will neither confirm nor deny the existence of the record but shall advise the individual only that there is no record which is available to him pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974.

(b) Individual requests for access to records which have been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) shall be processed as follows:

(1) A requests for information classified by the Service under to Executive Order 12356 on National Security Information require the Service to review the information to determine whether it continues to warrant classification under the criteria of the Executive Order. Information which no longer warrants classification shall be declassified and made available to the individual, if not otherwise exempt. If the information continues to warrant classification, the individual shall be advised that the information sought is classified; that it has been reviewed and continues to warrant classification; and that it has been exempted from access under to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). Information which has been exempted under to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and which is also classified shall be reviewed as required by this paragraph but the response to the individual shall be in the form prescribed by paragraph (a) of this section.

(2) Requests for information which has been exempted from disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) shall be responded to in the manner provided in paragraph (a) of this section unless a review of the information indicates that the information has been used or is being used to deny the individual any right, privilege or benefit for which he is eligible or to which he would otherwise be entitled under Federal law. In that event, the individual shall be advised of the existence of the record and shall be provided the information except to the extent it would identify a confidential source. If and only if information identifying a confidential source can be deleted or the pertinent parts of the record summarized in a manner which protects the identity of the confidential source, the document with deletions made or the summary shall be furnished to the requester.

(3) Information compiled as part of an employee background investigation which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) shall be made available to an individual upon request except to the extent that it identifies a confidential source. If and only if information identifying a confidential source can be deleted or the pertinent parts of the record summarized in a manner which protects the identity of the confidential source, the document with deletions made or the summary shall be furnished to the requester.

(4) Testing or examination material which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) shall not be made available to an individual if disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process but shall be made available if no such compromise possibility exists.

(5) The Service records which are exempted and the reasons for the exemptions are enumerated in 28 CFR 16.99.

[40 FR 44481, Sept. 26, 1975, as amended at 48 FR 49653, Oct. 27, 1983]

§ 103.23 Special access procedures.

(a) Records of other agencies. When information sought from a system of records of the Service includes information:

(1) That has been classified pursuant to Executive Order 11652, the request shall be referred to the appropriate classifying authority pursuant to 28 CFR 17.61 and the individual requesting the record shall be so advised unless the record is also exempt from disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) or (k);

(2) That has been furnished by another component of the Department of Justice, the request shall be referred to the component originating the information for a decision as to access or correction;

(3) That has been furnished by another agency, the Service shall consult the other agency before granting access or making a correction and may refer the request to the other agency if referral will provide more expeditious access or correction, but the requester shall be notified of the referral.

(b) Medical records. When an individual requests medical records concerning himself, which are not otherwise exempt from disclosure, the system manager shall, if deemed necessary, advise the individual that records will be provided only to a physician designated in writing by the individual. Upon receipt of the designation, the system manager will permit the physician to review the records or to receive copies of the records by mail, upon proper verification of identity. The determination of which records should be made available directly to the individual and which records should not be disclosed because of possible harm to the individual shall be made by the physician.

[40 FR 44481, Sept. 26, 1975, as amended by 48 FR 49653, Oct. 27, 1983]

§ 103.24 Requests for accounting of record disclosure.

At the time of his request for access or correction or at any other time, an individual may request an accounting of disclosures made of his record outside the Department of Justice. Requests for accounting shall be directed to the appropriate system manager listed in the "Notice of Systems of Records". Any available accounting, whether kept in accordance with the requirements of the Privacy Act or under procedures established prior to September 27, 1975, shall be made available to the individual except that an accounting need not be made available if it relates to: (a) A disclosure with respect to which no accounting need be kept (see § 103.30(c) of this part); (b) A disclosure made to a law enforcement agency pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(7); (c) An accounting which has been exempted from disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) or (k).

§ 103.25 Notice of access decisions; time limits.

(a) Responsibility for notice. The system manager of the system from which information is sought or his delegate has responsibility for determining whether access to records is available under the Privacy Act and for notifying the individual of that determination in accordance with these regulations. If access is denied because of an exemption, the responsible person shall notify the individual that he may appeal that determination to the Deputy Attorney General within thirty working days of the receipt of the determination.

(b) Time limits for access determinations. The time limits provided by 28 CFR 16.45 shall be applicable to requests for access to information pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974.

§ 103.26 Fees for copies of records.

The fees charged by the Service under the Privacy Act shall be those specified in 28 CFR 16.46. Remittances shall be made in accordance with § 103.7(a) of this part.

§ 103.27 Appeals from denials of access.

An individual who has been denied access by the Service to the records concerning him may appeal that decision in the manner prescribed in 28 CFR 16.47.

§ 103.28 Requests for correction of records.

(a) How made. Unless a record is exempted from correction, an individual may request amendment or correction of a record concerning him by addressing his request to the system manager of the system in which the record is maintained either in person or by mail, his identity to be established as provided in § 103.21 of this part. The request must indicate the particular record involved, the nature of the correction sought, and the justification for the correction or amendment. Requests made by mail should be addressed to the system manager at the address specified in the "Notice of Systems of Records" published by the General Services Administration and shall be clearly marked on the request and on the envelope "Privacy Correction Request." Where the individual cannot determine the precise system manager or believes that the same record appears in more than one system, he may address his request to the office of the Associate Commissioner, Management, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 I Street NW., Washington, D.C. 20536, which shall assist him in identifying the system or systems in which the record is located.

(b) Initial determination. Within 10 working days of the receipt of the request, the appropriate Service official shall advise the individual that his request has been received. If the record is to be amended or corrected, the system manager may so advise the individual but if correction is refused, in whole or in part, it must be done by the head of the component in which the record is located, or his designee. If a correction is to be made, the individual shall be advised of his right to obtain a copy of the corrected record upon payment of the standard fee, established in 28 CFR 16.46. If a correction or amendment is refused, in whole or in part, the individual shall be so advised, shall be given reasons for the refusal, and shall be advised of his right to appeal to the Deputy Attorney General in accordance with the procedures set forth in 28 CFR 16.48.

(c) Appeals. A refusal, in whole or in part, to amend or correct a record may be appealed as provided in 28 CFR 16.48.

(d) Appeal determinations. 28 CFR 16.48 provides for appeal determinations.

(e) Statements of disagreement. Statements of disagreement may be furnished by the individual in the manner prescribed in 28 CFR 16.48.

(f) Notices of correction or disagreement. When a record has been corrected, the system manager shall, within thirty working days thereof, advise all prior recipients of the record whose identity can be determined pursuant to the accounting required by the Privacy Act or any other accounting previously made, of the correction. Any dissemination of a record after the filing of a statement of disagreement shall be accompanied by a copy of that statement. Any statement of the Service giving reasons for refusing to correct shall be included in the file.

[40 FR 44481, Sept. 26, 1975, as amended at 48 FR 49653, Oct. 27, 1983]

§ 103.29 Records not subject to correction.

The following records are not subject to correction or amendment by individuals:

(a) Transcripts or written statements made under oath;

(b) Transcripts of Grand Jury Proceedings, judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings which form the official record of those proceedings;

(c) Pre-sentence reports comprising the property of the courts but maintained in Service files; and

(d) Records duly exempted from correction by notice published in the Federal Register.

§ 103.30 Accounting for disclosures.

(a) As accounting of each disclosure of information for which accounting is required (see § 103.24 of this part) shall be attached to the relating record. A copy of Form G–657, "Privacy Act Information Request," Form G–658, "Record of Information Disclosure (Privacy Act)," or other disclosure document shall be used for this accounting. The system manager shall advise individuals, promptly upon request as described in § 103.24, of the persons or agencies outside the Department of Justice to which records concerning them have been disclosed.

(b) Accounting records, at a minimum, shall include the identification of the particular record disclosed, the name and address of the person or agency to which disclosed, and the date of the disclosure. Accounting records shall be maintained for at least 5 years, or until the record is destroyed or transferred to the Archives, whichever is later.

(c) Accounting is not required to be kept for disclosures made within the Department of Justice or disclosures made pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act.

§ 103.31 Notices of subpoenas and emergency disclosures.

(a) Subpoenas. When records concerning an individual are subpoenaed by a Grand Jury, court, or a quasijudicial agency, the official served with the subpoena shall be responsible for assuring that notice of its issuance is provided to the individual. Notice shall be provided within 10 days of the service of the subpoena or, in the case of a Grand Jury subpoena, within 10 days of its becoming a matter of public record. Notice shall be mailed to the last known address of the individual and shall contain the following information: the date the subpoena is returnable, the court in which it is returnable, the name and number of the case or proceeding, and the nature of the information sought. Notice of the issuance of subpoenas is not required if the system of records has been exempted from the notice requirement pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j), by a Notice of Exemption published in the Federal Register.

(b) Emergency disclosures. If information concerning an individual has been disclosed to any person under compelling circumstances affecting health or safety, the individual shall be notified at his last known address within 10 working days of the disclosure. Notification shall include the following information: the nature of the information disclosed, the person or agency to whom it was disclosed, the date of the disclosure, and the compelling circumstances justifying the disclosure. Notification shall be given by the officer who made or authorized the disclosure.

§ 103.32 Information forms.

(a) Review of forms. The Service shall be responsible for the review of forms it uses to collect information from and about individuals.

(b) Scope of review. The Service Forms Control Unit shall review each form to assure that it complies with the requirements of 28 CFR 16.52.

§ 103.33 Contracting record systems.

Any contract by the Service for the operation of a record system shall be in compliance with 28 CFR 16.53.

§ 103.34 Security of records systems.

The security of records systems shall be in accordance with 28 CFR 16.54.

§ 103.35 Use and collection of Social Security numbers.

The use and collection of Social Security numbers shall be in accordance with 28 CFR 16.55.

§ 103.36 Employee standards of conduct with regard to privacy.

Service employee standards of conduct with regard to privacy shall be in compliance with 28 CFR 16.56.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(f).
Source: 52 FR 17565, May 11, 1987.

§ 504.1 Definitions—Privacy Act.

For the purpose of this part:

"Agency" includes any executive department, military department, government corporation, government controlled corporation, or other establishment in the executive branch of the government (including the Executive Office of the President) or any independent regulatory agency. The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission ("Commission") is an "agency" within the meaning of the term.

"Individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

"Maintain" includes maintain, collect, use or disseminate.

"Record" means any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by an agency, including, but not limited to, an individual's education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history, and that contains an individual's name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

"Routine use" means, with respect to the disclosure of a record, the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected.

"Statistical record" means a record in a system of records maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only and not used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual except as provided by section 8 of Title 13, United States Code.

"System of records" means a group of any records under the control of any agency from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual.

§ 504.2 General policies—Privacy Act.

The Commission will protect the privacy of an individual identified in any information or record systems which it maintains. Accordingly, its officials and employees, except as otherwise provided by law or regulation, will:

(a) Permit an individual to determine what records pertaining to such individual are collected, maintained, used or disseminated by the Commission.

(b) Permit an individual to prevent a record pertaining to such individual obtained by the Commission for a particular purpose from being used or made available for another purpose without the individual's consent.

(c) Permit an individual to gain access to information pertaining to such individual in Commission records, to have a copy made of all or any portion thereof, and to correct or amend such records.

(d) Collect, maintain, use, or disseminate any record of indentifiable personal information in a manner that assures that such action is for a necessary and lawful purpose, that the information is current and accurate for its intended use, and that adequate safeguards are provided to prevent misuse of such information.

(e) Permit exemptions from record requirements provided under the Privacy Act only where an important public policy use for such exemption has been determined in accordance with specific statutory authority.

§ 504.3 Conditions of disclosure.

The Commission will not disclose any record contained in a system of records by any means of communication to any person or any other agency except by written request of or prior written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains unless such disclosure is:

(a) To those officers and employees of the Commission who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties;

(b) Required under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552;

(c) For a routine use;

(d) To the Bureau of Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity under the provisions of Title 13, United States Code;

(e) To a recipient who has provided the Commission with adequate advance assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, and the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable;

(f) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government or for evaluation to determine whether the record has such value;

(g) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any government jurisdiction within or under control of the United States for a civil or ciminal law enforcement activity authorized by law, provided the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a prior written request to the Commission, specifying the particular record and the law enforcement activity for which it is sought;

(h) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual if upon such disclosure, notification is transmitted to the last known address of such individual;

(i) To either House of Congress, or, to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof, any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee of any such joint committee;

(j) To the Comptroller General, or any of that official's authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office; or

(k) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

§ 504.4 Accounting of certain disclosures.

(a) Except for disclosures under § 504.3 (a) and (b) of this part, the Administrative Officer shall keep an accurate accounting of each disclosure of a record to any person or to another agency made under § 504.3 (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), and (k) of this part.

(b) Except for a disclosure made to another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jursidiction under § 504.3(g) of this part, the Administrative Officer shall make the accounting as required under paragraph (a) of this section available to any individual upon written request made in accordance with § 504.5.

(c) The Administrative Officer shall inform any person or other agency about any correction or notation of dispute made in accordance with § 504.7 of this part of any record that has been disclosed to the person or agency if an accounting of the disclosure was made.

(d) An accounting of disclosures of records within this section shall consist of the date, nature, the purpose of each disclosure of a record to any person or to another agency, and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made.

(e) Such accounting shall be retained for 5 years or the life of the record, whichever is longer, after the disclosure for which the accounting is made.

§ 504.5 Access to records or information

(a) Upon request in person or by mail, any individual shall be informed whether or not a system of records maintained by the Commission contains a record or information pertaining to such individual.

(b) Any individual requesting access to such record or information in person shall appear in person at the offices of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, 1111 20th Street, NW., Room 400, Washington, DC., between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and

(1) Provide information sufficient to identify the record, e.g., the individual's own name, claim and decision number, date and place of birth, etc.;

(2) Provide identification to verify the individual's identity, e.g., driver's licensee, identification or Medicare card; and

(3) Any individual requesting access to records or information pertaining to such individual may be accompanied by a person of the individual's own choosing while reviewing the record thereof. If an individual elects to be so accompanied, advance notification of the election shall be required along with a written statement authorizing disclosure and discussion of the record in the presence of the accompanying person at any time, including the time access is granted.

(c) Any individual making a request for access to records or information pertaining to such individual by mail shall address such request to the Administrative Officer (Privacy Officer), Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, 1111 20th Street, NW., Washington, DC 20579, and shall provide information acceptable to the Administrative Officer to verify the individual's identity.

(d) Responses to requests under this section normally will be made within ten (10) days of receipt (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays). If it is not possible to respond to requests within such period, an acknowledgement will be sent to the individual within ten (10) days of receipt of the request (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays).

§ 504.6 Determination of requests for access to records.

(a) Upon request made in accordance with § 504.5, the Administrative Officer shall:

(1) Determine whether or not such request will be granted;

(2) Make such determination and provide notification within a reasonable period of time after receipt of such request.

(b) If access to a record is denied because information has been compiled by the Commission in reasonable anticipation of a civil or criminal action or proceeding, the Administrative Officer shall notify the individual of such determination and the reason therefor.

(c) If access to the record is granted, the individual making such request shall notify the Administrative Officer whether the records requested are to be copied and mailed to the individual.

(d) If records are to be made available for personal inspection, the individual shall arrange with the Administrative Officer a mutually agreeable time and place for inspection of the record.

§ 504.7 Amendment of a record.

(a) Any individual may request amendment of a record pertaining to such individual according to the procedure in paragraph (b) of this section except those records described under paragraph (d) of this section.

(b) After inspection by an individual of a record pertaining to such individual, he or she may file a written request, presented in person or by mail, with the Administrative Officer, for an amendment to a record. Such request shall specify the particular portions of the record to be amended, the desired amendments and the reasons therefor.

(c) Not later than 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays) after the receipt of a request made in accordance with this section to amend a record in whole or in part, the Administrative Officer shall:

(1) Make any correction of any portion of the record which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely or complete and thereafter inform the individual of such correction; or

(2) Inform the individual, by certified mail return receipt requested, of the refusal to amend such record, setting forth the reasons therefor, and notify the individual of the right to appeal that determination as provided under § 504.8 of this part.

(d) The provisions for amending records do not permit the alteration of evidence presented in the course of Commission proceedings in the adjudication of claims, nor do they permit collateral attack upon what has already been subject to final agency action in the adjudication of claims in programs previously completed by the Commission pursuant to statutory time limitations.

§ 504.8 Appeals from denial of requests for amendment to records.

(a) An individual whose request for amendment of a record pertaining to such individual is denied may request a review of such determination. Such request shall be addressed to the Chairman of the Commission, and shall specify the reasons for which the refusal to amend is challenged.

(b) If on appeal the refusal to amend the record is upheld, the Commission shall permit the individual to file a statement setting forth the reasons for disagreement with the determination. The statement must also be submitted within 30 days of receipt of the denial. The statement shall be included in the system of records in which the disputed record is maintained and shall be marked so as to indicate (1) that a statement of disagreement has been filed, and (2) where in the system of records the statement may be found.

§ 504.9 Fees.

Fees to be charged, if any, to any individual for making copies of such individual's record excluding the cost of any search for and review of the record shall be as follows:

(a) Photocopy reproductions, each copy $0.15.

(b) Where the Commission undertakes to perform for a requester, or any other person, services which are clearly not required to be performed under the Privacy Act, either voluntarily or because such services are required by some other law, the question of charging fees for such services shall be determined by the official or designee authorized to release the information, under the Federal user charge statute, 31 U.S.C. 583a, any other applicable law, and the provisions of § 503.13 of Part 503 of the Commission's regulations.

§ 504.10 Exemptions.

No system of records maintained by the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission is exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a as permitted under certain conditions by 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k). However, the Chairman of the Commission reserves the right to promulgate rules in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b) (1), (2) and (3), (c) and (e) to exempt any system of records maintained by the Commission in accordance with the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k).

§ 504.11 Reports.

(a) The Administrative Officer or designee shall provide adequate advance notice to Congress and the Office of Management and Budget of any proposal to establish or alter any Commission system of records, as required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(o).

(b) If at any time a system of records maintained by the Commission is determined to be exempt from the application of 5 U.S.C. 552a in accordance with the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k), the number of records contained in such system shall be separately listed and reported to the Office of Management and Budget.

§ 504.12 Notices.

The Commission shall publish in the Federal Register at least annually a notice of the existence and character of the systems of records which it maintains. Such notice shall include:

(a) The name and location of each system;

(b) The categories of individuals on whom the records are maintained in each system;

(c) The categories of records maintained in each system;

(d) Each routine use of the records contained in each system including the categories of users and the purpose of each use;

(e) The policies and practices of the Commission regarding storage, retrievability, access controls, retention, and disposal of the records;

(f) The title and business address of the agency official who is responsible for each system of records;

(g) Commission procedures whereby an individual can be notified if a system of records contains a record pertaining to such individual;

(h) Commission procedures whereby an individual can be notified how to gain access to any record pertaining to such individual contained in a system of records, and how to contest its content, and

(i) The categories of sources of records in each system.

General Prefactory Statement

The following routine uses apply to and are incorporated by reference into each system of records published below unless the text of a particular notice of a system of records indicate otherwise.

1. In the event that a system of records, maintained by the Department to carry out its functions, indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

2. A record from any system of records, set forth below may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a Department decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

3. A record from any system of records set forth below may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

4. A record from any system of records set forth below may be disclosed, as a routine use, in the course of presenting evidence to a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, including disclosures to opposing counsel in the course of litigation or settlement negotiations.

5. A record from any system of records set forth below may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a Member of Congress submitting a request involving the indivual when the individual is a constituent of the Member and has requested assistance from the Member with respect to the subject matter of the record.

6. A record from any system of records set forth below which contains medical information may be disclosed, as a routine use, to the medical or health advisor of any individual submitting a request for access to the record if, in the sole judgment of the Department, disclosure could have an adverse effect upon the individual, under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(f)(3) and implementing regulations.

7. A record from any system of records set forth below may be disclosed, as a routine use, to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular No. A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in the Circular.

Government-Wide Records

One system of records is reported by the Department of Labor for all Federal agencies since this Department has overall responsibility for the administration of the program in connection with which this system of records has been compiled. It is presumed that most, if not all federal agencies maintain systems of records comprising a portion of this government-wide system of records. In order to avoid duplication in reporting, the Department is reporting this system on behalf of all agencies. The Department has control over this system to the same extent as the Office of Personnel Management has control over systems of records containing federal employee personnel records.

1. Federal Employees' Compensation Act files: Except for the Panama Canal Zone, all records relating to injury or death of civilian employees or other persons entitled to benefits under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act are the records of the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Department of Labor. The Office asserts control of these records under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 8149 and Departmental regulations at 20 CFR 10.10. The systems of records for these records is being reported by the Department as a Government-wide notice. This notice, however, does not apply to other medical or related files not created pursuant to the Federal Employees' Compensation Act which may be in the possession of an agency.

Initial determinations concerning access, amendment or correction of these records shall be made by the employing agency. Administrative appeals shall be referred to the Solicitor of Labor, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

2. The Department of Labor formerly reported Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs Complaint Files on behalf of all executive agencies. This government-wide report is no longer necessary, because Executive Order 12086 (43 FR 46501, October 10, 1978) has led to the consolidation, under the Secretary of Labor, of all contract compliance functions for equal employment opportunity. Accordingly, the OFCCP Compliant Files are now reported by the Employment Standards Administration under DOL/ESA-2.

Addresses to Which Requests May Be Directed.

The addresses of the various component units of the Department as well as its field offices are contained in Appendix I annexed to this document. For general assistance, you may wish to contact the Privacy Act Coordinators listed in Appendix II.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals, including DOL employees, former DOL employees, and other individuals who are indebted to the United States.

Categories of records in the system:

Commercial credit reports, correspondence to and from the debtor, information or records relating to the debtor's current whereabouts, assets, liabilities, income and expenses, debtor's personal financial statements, and other information such as Social Security Number, address, nature, amount and history of the debt, and other records and reports relating to the implementation of the Debt Collection Act of 1982, including any investigative reports or administrative review matters.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended, 80 Statute 309; 31 U.S.C. 3700; Debt Collection Act of 1982, Pub. L. 97-365; and Title 4, Code of Federal Regulations, Chapter II.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

a. Pursuant to section 13 of the Debt Collection Act of 1982, the name, address(es), telephone number(s), Social Security Number, and nature, amount, and history of the debt of an individual may be disclosed to private debt collection agencies for the purpose of collecting or compromising a debt existing in this system.

b. Department of Justice/General Accounting Office: Information may be forwarded to the General Accounting Office and/or the Department of Justice as prescribed in the Joint Federal Claims Collection Standards, 4 CFR Chapter II. When debtors fail to make payment through normal collection routines, the files are analyzed to determine the feasibility of enforced collection by referring the cases to the Department of Justice for litigation.

c. Other Federal Agencies:

(1) Pursuant to sections 5 and 10 of the Debt Collection Act of 1982, information relating to the implementation of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 may be disclosed to other Federal Agencies to effect salary or administrative offsets, or for other purposes connected with the collection of debts owed to the United States.

(2) A record from this system may be disclosed to a Federal Agency in response to its request in connection with the hiring/retention of an employee, the letting of a contract or the issuance of a grant, license, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is necessary and relevant to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

d. Internal Revenue Service:

(1) Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service to obtain taxpayer mailing addresses for the purpose of locating such taxpayer to collect, compromise, or write-off a Federal claim against the taxpayer.

(2) Information may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service concerning the discharge of an indebtedness owed by an individual.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

The amount, status, and history of overdue debts; the name and address, taxpayer identification (SSN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of a debtor, the agency and program under which the claim arose, are disclosed pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) to consumer reporting agencies as defined by section 603(f) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681a(f)), in accordance with section 3(d)(4)(A)(ii) of the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended (31 U.S.C. 3711(f)) for the purpose of encouraging the repayment of an overdue debt.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The records are in manual files, magnetic tapes or other computer storage media, or on computer printouts.

Retrievability:

Credit data is maintained by debtor name, claim number, cross referenced to the social security number (when available) to verify name and address.

Safeguards:

When not in use by personnel responsible for the records, they are stored in locked file cabinets.

Retention and disposal:

After becoming inactive, records are cutoff at the end of the fiscal year, held one year, and then retired to a Federal Records Center under Record Group 217, GAO. Records created prior to July 2, 1975, will be retained for 10 years 3 months after the close of the account. Records created after July 2, 1975, will be retained by GAO for 6 years and 3 months after the close of the account.

System manager(s) and address:

See the appropriate agency official, 29 CFR 70.43.

Notification procedure:

As above.

Record access procedures:

As above.

Contesting record procedures:

DOL rules and regulations for contesting any record contents disclosure, and for appealing same, are promulgated by 29 CFR 70a.9.

Record source categories:

Information in this system is obtained from commercial credit reports, agency investigative reports, debtor's personal financial statements, correspondence and records relating to hearings on the debt, and from other DOL systems of records.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: Investigatory Portion of system Exempted From Certain Provisions of the Act:

(a) Criminal law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in this system of files is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Privacy Act. The disclosure of criminal investigatory information, if any, contained in the files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of any investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities, and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud of the compensation program.

(b) Other law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, which is maintained in this system's files is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4), (G), (H), and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of civil investigatory information, if any, contained in this system's files, including the names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained could also impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities.

Categories of records in the system:

Personal, medical, financial. The system also may contain information gathered in connection with investigations concerning possible violations of Federal law, whether civil or criminal, under the authorizing legislation and related Acts. Such information may be derived from materials filed with the Department of Labor, other Federal, State and local departments and agencies, court records, medical records, insurance records, records of employers, articles from publications, published financial data, corporate information, bank information, telephone data, statements of witnesses, information received from Federal, State, local and foreign regulatory and law enforcement organizations, and from other sources. This record also contains the work product of the Department of Labor and other governmental personnel and consultants involved in the investigations. Commercial credit reports of individuals indebted to the United States, correspondence to and form the debtor, information of records relating to the debtor's current whereabouts, assets, liabilities, income and expenses, debtor's personal financial statements, and other information such as the nature, amount and history of a claim owed by an individual covered by this system, and other records and reports relating to the implementation of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 including any investigative reports or administrative review matters. The individual records listed herein are included only as pertinent or applicable to the individual employee.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

30 U.S.C. 901 et seq., 20 CFR 715.1 et seq., 20 CFR 720.1 et seq., 20 CFR 725.1 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

a. Disclosure to the employer at any time after report of the injury or report of the onset of occupational illness, or the filing of a notice of injury or claim related to such injury or occupational illness, also to any party providing the employer with workers' compensation insurance coverage; State workers' compensation agencies and the Social Security Administration for the purpose of determining offsets as specified under the Act; doctors and medical services providers for the purpose of obtaining medical evaluations, physical rehabilitation or other services, and labor unions and other voluntary employee associations of which the claimant is a member which exercise an interest in claims of members as part of their service to the members. Records are made available to other Federal agencies and State and local agencies conducting similar or related investigations, and to the Justice Department in that agency's determination regarding potential litigation and during the course of actual litigation. Records may be disclosed to contractors providing automated data processing services for the Department of Labor, and may also be disclosed in any proceeding where the authorizing legislation is in issue, or in which the Secretary of Labor, any past or present Federal Employee, or any consultant, is directly or indirectly involved in investigations or other enforcement activities, is a party, or is otherwise involved in an official capacity under the Act.

A record from this system may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, State or local agency maintaining pertinent records, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a Departmental decision concerning the determination of initial or continuing eligibility for program benefits.

c. Records may be disclosed to a debt collection agency that DOL has contracted for collection services to recover indebtedness owed to the United States.

d. Department of Justice/General Accounting Office. Information may be forwarded to the General Accounting Office (GAO), and/or the DOJ as prescribed in the Joint Federal Claims Collections Standards (4 CFR Ch. II). When debtors fail to make payment through normal collection routines, the file is analyzed to determine the feasibility of enforced collection by referring the cases to the Department of Justice (DOJ) for litigation.

e. Other Federal Agencies.

(1) Pursuant to sections 5 and 10 of the Debt Collection Act of 1982, information relating to the implementation of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 may be disclosed to other Federal Agencies to effect salary or administrative offsets.

(2) A record from this system may be disclosed to a Federal Agency in response to its request in connection with the hiring/retention of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a grant, license, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is necessary and relevant to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

f. Internal Revenue Service.

(1) Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service to obtain taxpayer mailing addresses for the purpose of locating such taxpayer to collect, compromise, or write-off a Federal claim against the taxpayer.

(2) Information may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service concerning the discharge of an indebtedness owed by an individual.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

The amount, status and history of overdue debts; the name and address, taxpayer identification (SSAN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of a debtor, the agency and program under which the claim arose, are disclosed pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) to consumer reporting agencies as defined by section 603(f) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681a(f)); or in accordance with section 3(d)(4)(A)(ii) of the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966 as amended (31 U.S.C. 3711(f)) for the purpose of encouraging the repayment of an overdue debt.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

As above.

Contesting record procedures:

As above.

Record source categories:

Claim forms, medical reports, correspondence, investigative reports, employment reports, Federal and State agency records, any other record or document pertaining to a claimant or his dependent as it relates to the claimant's age, education, work history, marital history or medical condition. Commercial credit reports, personal financial statements, correspondence with the debtor, records relating to hearing on the debt, and from other DOL systems of records.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Investigatory portion of system exempted from certain provisions of the act:

(a) Criminal law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in this system of files in the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Privacy Act. The disclosure of criminal investigatory information, if any, contained in the files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of any investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities, and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud of the compensation program. (b) Other law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, which is maintained in this system's files of the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of civil investigatory information, if any, contained in this system's files, including the names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained could also impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Investigatory portion of system exempted from certain provisions of the Act:

(a) Criminal law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in this system of files in the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7)(9), (10), and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Privacy Act. The disclosure of criminal investigatory information, if any, contained in the files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of any investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities, and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud of the compensation program. (b) Other law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, which is maintained in this system's files of the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4), (G), (H), and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of civil investigatory information, if any, contained in this system's files, including the names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained could also impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

FECA benefits recipients are Federal employees injured or killed while in the performance of duty. In case of death, beneficiary records are maintained. In addition to Federal employees the FECA covers volunteers in the Civil Air Patrol, Peace Corps Volunteers, Job Corps Enrollees, Volunteers in Service to America, members of the National Teachers Corps, certain student employees, employees of the Alaska Railroad, members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, certain law enforcement officers not employed by the United States. Prior to January 1, 1957, the FECA also covered reservists in the Armed Forces of the United States. Also covered are various classes of persons who provide or have provided services to the Government of the United States.

Categories of records in the system:

Record includes reports of injury by employee and employing establishment, authorization for medical treatment, medical records, medical and transportation bills, compensation payment records, formal orders for or against payment of compensation, vital statistics such as birth, death and marriage certificates. The system also may contain information gathered in connection with investigations concerning possible violations of Federal law, whether civil or criminal, under the authorizing legislation and related Acts. Such information may be derived from materials filed with the Department of Labor, other Federal, State, and local departments and agencies, court records, medical records, insurance records, records of employers, articles from publications, published financial data, corporate information, bank information, telephone data, statements of witnesses, information received from Federal, State, local and foreign regulatory and law enforcement organizations, and from other sources. This record also contains the work product of the Department of Labor and other government personnel and consultants involved in the investigations. Commercial credit reports of individuals indebted to the United States, correspondence to and from the debtor, information or records relating to the debtor's current whereabouts, assets, liabilities, income and expenses, debtor's personal financial statements, and other information such as the nature, amount and history of a claim owed by an individual covered by this system, and other records and reports relating to the implementation of the Debt Collection Act of 1982, including any investigative reports or administrative review matters. The individual records listed herein are included only as pertinent or applicable to the individual employee.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 8101 et seq., 20 CFR 1.1 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

a. Disclosure to any third-party named in a claim or representative acting on his/her behalf until the claim is adjudicated and all appeals resolved; Federal agencies which employed the claimant at the time of occurrence or recurrence of the injury or occupational illness; Federal, State or private rehabilitation agencies to whom the claimant has been referred for evaluation of the extent and nature of the disability and/or rehabilitation; physicians making an examination for the United States under 5 U.S.C. 8213(a); medical insurance plans or health and welfare plans which the claimant is covered by in instances when there is evidence of payment by OWCP for treatment of a medical condition which is not compensable; and labor unions and other voluntary employee associations of which the claimant is a member as part of their service to members. Records are made available to other Federal agencies and State and local agencies conducting similar or related investigations, and to the Justice Department in that agency's determination regarding potential litigation and during the course of actual litigation. Records may be disclosed to contractors providing automated data processing services for the Department of Labor, and may also be disclosed in any proceeding where the authorizing legislation is in issue, or in which the Secretary of Labor, any past or present Federal employee, or any consultant, is directly or indirectly involved in investigations or other enforcement activities, is a party, or is otherwise involved in an official capacity under the Act.

b. A record from this system may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, State, or local agency maintaining pertinent records, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a Departmental decision concerning the determination of initial or continuing eligibility for program benefits.

c. Records may be disclosed to a debt collection agency that DOL has contracted for collection services to recover indebtedness owed to the United States.

d. Department of Justice/General Accounting Office. Information may be forwarded to the General Accounting Office (GAO), and/or the DOJ as prescribed in the Joint Federal Claims Collections Standards (4 CFR Ch. II). When debtors fail to make payment through normal collection routines, the file is analyzed to determine the feasibility of enforced collection by referring the cases to the Department of Justice (DOJ) for litigation.

e. Other Federal Agencies.

(1) Pursuant to sections 5 and 10 of the Debt Collection Act of 1982, information relating to the implementation of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 may be disclosed to other Federal Agencies to effect salary or administrative offsets.

(2) A record from this system may be disclosed to a Federal Agency in response to its request in connection with the hiring/retention of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a grant, license, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is necessary and relevant to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

f. Internal Revenue Service.

(1) Information contained in the system of records may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service to obtain taxpayer mailing addresses for the purpose of locating such taxpayer to collect, compromise, or write-off a Federal claim against the taxpayer.

(2) Information may be disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service concerning the discharge of an indebtedness owed by an individual.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

The amount, status and history of overdue debts; the name and address, taxpayer identification (SSAN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of a debtor, the agency and program under which the claim arose, are disclosed pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) to consumer reporting agencies as defined by section 603(f) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681a(f)); or in accordance with section 3(d)(4)(A)(ii) of the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966 as amended (31 U.S.C. 3711(f)) for the purpose of encouraging the repayment of an overdue debt.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Case files are maintained in manual files, security case files in locked cabinets, and FECA management information system information is stored on computer discs which are stored in cabinets.

Retrievability:

Files are retrieved after identification by coded file number which is cross referenced to employee by name, employing establishment, date and nature of injury. Files located in District Offices are identified by master index file, which is maintained in the National Office.

Safeguards:

Files are maintained under supervision of OWCP personnel during normal working hours—only authorized personnel may handle or disclose any information contained therein. Only personnel having security clearance may handle or process security files. After normal working hours, security files are kept in locked cabinets. All files are maintained in guarded Federal buildings.

Retention and disposal:

This system was first published on February 13, 1981. As this is a relatively new system, retention periods have not yet been finalized.

System manager(s) and address:

Associate Director, Division of Federal Employees' Compensation, Department of Labor Building, Room S3229, 200 Constitution Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Notification procedure:

Contesting record procedures:

As above.

Record source categories:

Injured employees, beneficiaries, employing Federal agencies, other Federal agencies, physicians, hospitals, clinics, educational institutions, attorneys, members of congress, OWCP field investigations, State governments. Commercial credit reports, agency investigative reports, debtor's personal financial statements. correspondence with the debtor, records relating to hearings on the debt, and from other DOL systems of records.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Investigatory portion of system exempted from certain provisions of the act:

(a) Criminal law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in this system of files in the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Privacy Act. The disclosure of criminal investigatory information, if any, contained in the files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of any investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities, and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud of the compensation program. (b) Other law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, which is maintained in this system's files of the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of civil investigatory information, if any, contained in this system's files, including the names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained could also impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Individuals filing claims for workers' compensation benefits under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act as amended and extended (33 U.S.C. 901 et seq., except as it applies to the Office of Administrative Law Judges and the Benefits Review Board); individuals providing medical and other services to the Division; employees of insurance companies and of medical and other services providers to the Division; and other persons suspected of violations of law under the Act including related civil and criminal provisions as well as respondents, witnesses and other individuals involved in investigations and enforcement actions instituted by the Department of Labor.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains information gathered in connection with investigations concerning possible violations of Federal law, whether civil or criminal under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act and related Acts. Such information may be derived from materials filed with the Department of Labor, other Federal, State and local departments and agencies, court records, medical records, insurance records, records of employers, articles from publications, published financial data, corporate information, bank information, telephone data, statements of witnesses, information received from Federal, State, local and foreign regulatory and law enforcement organizations, and from other sources. This record also contains the work product of the Department of Labor and other government personnel and consultants involved in the investigations.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

33 U.S.C. 901 et seq.; 36 D.C. Code 501 et seq.; 42 U.S.C. 1651 et seq.; 43 U.S.C. 1331 et seq., 5 U.S.C. 8171 et seq.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Records are made available to other Federal agencies and State and local agencies conducting similar or related investigations, and to the Justice Department in that agency's determination regarding potential litigation and during the course of actual litigation. Records may be disclosed to contractors providing automated data processing services for the Department of Labor, and may also be disclosed in any proceeding where the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act and related Acts are in issue, or in which the Secretary of Labor, any past or present Federal employee, or any consultant, is directly or indirectly involved in investigations or other enforcement activities, is a party, or is otherwise involved in an official capacity under the Act.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Retrievability:

Records are indexed by name.

Safeguards:

Access to and use of these records are limited to those persons whose official duties require such access.

Retention and disposal:

Record source categories:

Records from Division claim and payment files (DOL/ESA-15 and 24) and from employees, insurers, service providers; and information received from parties leading to the opening of an investigation, or developed as a product of interviews held during the course of an investigation.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

(a) Criminal law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in investigation files in the Division of Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation of the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Act. The disclosure of information contained in the criminal investigative files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of the investigatory activities, and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud of the Longshore and Harbor Workers' compensation program. (b) Other law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Act, which is maintained in the investigation files of the Division of Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation of the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs of the Employment Standards Administration is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of information contained in civil investigative files, including the names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of the investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained could also impede significantly the effectiveness of the investigatory activities.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the Act:

Investigatory portion of system exempted from certain provisions of the act:

(a) Criminal law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in this system of files is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Privacy Act. The disclosure of criminal investigatory information, if any, contained in the files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of any investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities, and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud of the compensation program. (b) Other law enforcement. In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, which is maintained in this system's files is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of civil investigatory information, if any, contained in this system's files, including the names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained could also impede significantly the effectiveness of investigatory activities.

DOL employees, applicants, contractors, subcontractors, grantees, subgrantees, claimants, individuals threatening DOL employees or the Secretary of Labor, alleged violators of Labor laws and regulations, union officers, individuals investigated and interviewed, and individuals filing claims for workers' compensation benefits under (1) the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, and amended and extended (5 U.S.C. 8101 et seq.) (except 8149 as it pertains to the Employees' Compensation Appeals Board) (2) the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act as amended and extended (33 U.S.C. 901 et seq.) (except 33 U.S.C. 912(b) as it applies to the Benefits Review Board) and (3) Title IV, Section 415 and Part C, of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended by the Black Lung Benefits Act of 1972, 30 U.S.C. 901 et seq.; individuals providing medical and other services to OWCP; employees of insurance companies and of medical and other services provided to OWCP; and other persons suspected of violations of law under the above acts and related civil and criminal provisions.

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains investigative files regarding possible violations of Federal law whether civil or criminal, resolution of criminal or conduct violations, investigatory index file cards, information relating to investigations under the LMRDA-1959 and EO 11491 and information concerning possible violations of (1) the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and related Acts (2) the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act and related Acts and (3) Title IV, Section 415 and Part C, of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended by the Black Lung Benefits Act of 1972, 30 U.S.C. 901 et seq. This information may be derived from records filed with the Department of Labor, other Federal, state and local departments and agencies, court records, medical records, insurance records, records of employers, articles from publications, published financial data, corporate information, bank information, telephone data, statements of witnesses information received from Federal, state, local and foreign regulatory and law enforcement organizations and from other sources, the records also contain information obtained by DOL investigators, auditors, and other government personnel and consultants involved in investigations.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

EO 11222, EO 11491, LMRDA-1959, 5 U.S.C. 301, 5 U.S.C. 8101 et seq.; 20 CFR 1.1 et seq.; 33 U.S.C. 901 et seq.; 20 CFR 701 et seq.; 36 U.S.C. 501 et seq.; 42 U.S.C. 1951 et seq.; 43 U.S.C. 1331 et seq.; 5 U.S.C. 8171 et seq.; 30 U.S.C. 901 35 et seq.; 20 CFR 715 et seq.; 20 CFR 720.1 et seq.; 20 CFR 725.1 et seq. and Pub. L. 95-452.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information may be disclosed to other Federal, state and local law enforcement agencies for civil or criminal law enforcement, including the Justice Department regarding potential litigation and during the course of actual litigation. These records may be disclosed to other Federal agencies for hiring or retention of employees; security clearances; letting of contracts; and issuances of licenses, grants or other benefits. The records may be disclosed to participants in the President's Anti-Organized Crime Program, and also as part of any proceeding where the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and related Acts, Longshoremen's and Harbor Worker's Compensation Act and related Acts, Title IV, Section 415 and Part C, of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended by the Black Lung Benefits Act of 1972 is in issue. The records may be disclosed as part of any proceeding in which the Secretary of Labor, or any past or present Federal employee or consultant directly or indirectly involved in investigations or other enforcement activities under the above Acts, is a party or otherwise involved in an official capacity. In addition, records may also be provided to (1) the Merit Systems Protection Board, (2) the Office of Personnel Management, (3) any source from which information is requested in the course of an investigation, to the extent necessary to identify the individual being investigated, inform the source of the nature and purpose of the investigation, and to identify the type of information requested, (4) disclose, as necessary, to a contractor, subcontractor, or grantee firm of or organization to the extent that the disclosure is in USDOL's interest and is relevant and necessary in order that the contractor/subcontractor/grantee is able to take administrative or corrective action; and (5) disclose information to Federal, state or local agencies for their use in granting, amending or revoking a certification or license.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The information is maintained both as written records stored in manual case files and on 3 x 5 card files, punch cards, disc/magnetic tapes, and computer printed listings. The investigative files and indices are stored in steel file and lektriever cabinets or in Federal Records Centers (FARC). The records are maintained in limited access areas during duty hours and in locked offices at all other times.

Retrievability:

The written case records are indexed by case number, while the file cards are indexed by subject name. The automated records are retrieved by using batch retrieval applications.

Safeguards:

Direct access is restricted to authorize staff members of the OIG. Access within DOL is limited to the Secretary, Under-Secretary, Inspector General, and other officials of employees on a need-to-know basis. Automated records can be accessed only through use of confidential procedures and passwords.

Retention and disposal:

Investigative case files are retained for 15 years after completion of the investigation and/or actions based thereon, and then destroyed. Index and cross-indexed cards are retained permanently. In instances of computer matching of files, only those records which meet predetermined criteria for investigations are maintained. All records which do not meet these criteria are destroyed. All original source computer tapes are returned or destroyed once computer matching has been accomplished.

Record access procedures:

Investigatory data compiled for civil or criminal law enforcement purposes are exempt from the provisions pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k). Individuals desiring to contest or amend information maintained in the system should direct their requests to the System Manager listed above, stating clearly and concisely what information is being contested, the reasons for contesting it and the proposed amendment to the information sought.

Contesting record procedures:

Same as above.

Record source categories:

The information contained in this system was received from individual complaints, witnesses, interviews conducted during investigations, respondents, Federal, state and local government records, individual or company records, claim and payment files, employees, insurers, service providers, grantees, subgrantees, contractors and subcontractors.

Contesting record procedures:

Same as above.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

a. Criminal Law Enforcement: In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in the files of the Office of Inspector General is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10) and (11), and paragraph (i) of the Act. A function of OIG is that of enforcement of criminal laws within (1) the meaning of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), and (2) the provisions of the President's Anti-Organized Crime Program and Titles II, V, and VI of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959; as amended. The disclosure of information contained in the criminal investigative files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of OIG investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable suspects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. This imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified or retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of OIG investigatory activities and in addition, may preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in fraud or criminal activity.

b. Other Law Enforcement: In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Act, including certain material compiled from reciprocal investigations, which is maintained in OIG investigative files is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, until such time as a determination is made based upon such information. The disclosure of information contained in civil investigative files, including names of persons and agencies to whom the information has been transmitted would substantially compromise the effectiveness of OIG investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to informants, witnessess, and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, and retained would also impede significantly the effectiveness of OIG investigatory activities.

c. Protective service: In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(3) of the Act, OIG investigatory material maintained in connection with assisting the U.S. Secret Service (USSS) to provide protective service to the President of the United States or other individuals pursuant to Section 3056 of Title 18 is exempt from paragraph (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I) and paragraph (f) of the Act. This exemption will enable OIG to continue its support of the U.S. Secret Service without compromising the effectiveness of either agency's activities.

d. Contract Investigations: In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(5) of the Act, investigatory material compiled in connection with contract investigations solely for the purpose of determining integrity, suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for a DOL contract is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d) and (f) of the Act to the extent that disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a confidential source when an express promise has been given to withhold the identity of the source (or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the sources identity would not be revealed). This exemption is necessary for OIG to collect information from certain sources who would otherwise be unwilling to provide information necessary to conduct such investigations.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Known individuals or individuals suspected of being involved in Organized Crime Labor Racketeering and Informants.

Categories of records in the system:

Records containing names, individuals, occupations, other information about known individuals or individuals suspected of being involved in Organized Crime Labor Racketeering, their business dealings and allegations against them; and types of information previously furnished by or to be expected from informants.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Routine uses for law enforcement purposes will include referral to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting a violation of law or of enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto, of any record within this system when information available indicates a violation of law or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Stored on sheets of papers/index cards and or computer discs or tapes.

Retrievability:

Retrievable by name of individual subject.

Safeguards:

Available on an official need-to-know basis and kept in locked storage when not in use.

Retention and disposal:

Kept indefinitely and continually updated.

System manager(s) and address:

Office of Organized Crime and Labor Racketeering Directors, OIG/DOL, Washington, D.C. 20210. Inquiries and requests should be addressed to: Director of Information, Privacy and Management Information Systems, USDOL, Office of Inspector General, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

This system has been exempted from the provisions of sections (c) (3), (4), (d), (e) (1), (2) and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H), (e)(5) and (8)-(f), and (h) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k), as investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes.

DOL/OIG-4

System name:

Temporary Matching Files, Loss Analysis Files.

System location:

Office of the Inspector General, U.S. Department of Labor, Frances Perkins Building, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

DOL employees, contractors, subcontractors, union officials, and those individuals or organizations filing for or receiving benefits from a program funded or operated in whole or in part by the Department of Labor—including grantees, subgrantees, claimants, representatives, beneficiaries and their dependents, providers of medical, legal or other services.

Categories of records in the system:

Records contain information which may be pertinent to the possible illegal or questionable practices of individuals or organizations as regards their connection with the Department of Labor. This information may be derived from records filed with or compiled by the Department of Labor or other Federal, state or local government agencies, records of contractors, subcontractors, grantees, subgrantees, records of employers, records of employee organizations, court records, medical records, insurance records, published data, corporate data, bank data, or information obtained from individuals with pertinent knowledge.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 USC 301 and 5 USC 552a.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

In the event of litigation where the defendant is (a) the Department, any component of the Department, or any employee of the Department in his or her official capacity; (b) the United States where the Department determines that the claim, if successful, is likely to directly affect the operations of the Department or any of its components; or (c) any Department employee in his or her individual capacity where the Justice Department has agreed to represent such employee, the Department may disclose such records to the Department of Justice to enable that Department to present an effective defense, provided such disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected.

These records may be disclosed to other Federal agencies for hiring or retention of employees; security clearances; letting of contracts; and issuances of licenses, grants or other benefits.

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records may be referred to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state or local, charged with the responsibility of investigating, enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

Disclosure may be made as necessary to a Federal, state, or local government agency, to a government contractor, subcontractor or grantee, to labor unions and insurance carriers or to a provider of medical or other services to the extent that the disclosure is necessary in order that the appropriate organization may take administrative or corrective action to improve program integrity.

Disclosure may be made to the Congress when the appropriate Departmental official determines that the information may be relevant to the deliberations of Congress.

A record from this system may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state or local agency maintaining pertinent records if necessary to obtain a record relevant to a Department decision concerning the determination of initial or continuing eligibility for program benefits.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The records are stored on computer disks/tapes and computer printed listings.

Retrievability:

The records in this system are retrieved by computer and manually using name, social security number or other personal identifier.

Safeguards:

Direct access is restricted to authorized staff members of the OIG. Access within DOL is limited to the Secretary, Under Secretary, Inspector General and other officials or employees on a need-to-know basis. Automated records can be accessed only through use of confidential procedures and passwords.

Retention and disposal:

Original source data will be maintained for a maximum of three years and will then be either returned or destroyed. For internally generated data, only those records which meet predetermined criteria will be maintained. Records which do not meet those criteria will be destroyed. At the minimum, records retention periods will meet the specifications of USDOL records schedules.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, Office of Loss Analysis and Prevention, Office of Inspector General, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210. Inquiries and requests should be addressed to Director of Information, Privacy and Management Information Systems, USDOL, Office of the Inspector General, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Record source categories:

Information contained in this system is obtained from Federal, state and local government records, individual or company records, industrial or trade union records, employees, insurers, service providers, grantees, subgrantees, contractors, subcontractors.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

This system has been exempted from the provisions of section (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I) and (f) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(k).

Retrievability:

By name of individual.

Safeguards:

Cards are in roladex machine which is locked at night. In addition, cards are number-coded so that only an authorized employee can find a desired file.

Retention and disposal:

Cards will be retained by LMSE until they can be incorporated into the LMSE records disposition schedule. Files are kept for three years, at which time they are sent to Federal Records Center for two years after which except for those records with historical value are destroyed.

System manager(s) and address:

Director, LMSE, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, Room N5408, Washington, D.C. 20216.

Notification procedure:

Mail all inquiries to Systems Manager at above address.

Record access procedures:

As above.

Contesting record procedures:

As above.

Record source categories:

Information compiled from interviews conducted during investigations, written complaints, and written reports received from other agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

a. Criminal law enforcement: In accordance with paragraph 3(j)(2) of the Privacy Act, information maintained in the system of records consisting of the card index and case files in the Division of Compliance and Enforcement of the Office of Labor-Management Standards Enforcement which relates to criminal investigations is exempt from all provisions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552a except those requirements set forth in paragraphs (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10) and (11), and paragraph (i) of the Act. One of the three branches in the Division of Compliance and Enforcement perform activities primarily relating to the enforcement of criminal laws and Titles II, V, and VI of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, as amended. The disclosure of information contained in the criminal investigative files, including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of the Division's investigations. Knowledge of such investigations could enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses and their respective families, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, or retained would impede significantly the effectiveness of the Division's investigatory activities and in addition, may often preclude the apprehension and successful prosecution of persons engaged in criminal activity in the labor-management area b. Other law enforcement: In accordance with paragraph 3(k)(2) of the Privacy Act, investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material declared exempt under paragrpah 3(j)(2) of the Act, which is maintained in the card index and case files of the Division of Compliance and Enforcement of the Office of Labor-Management Standards Enforcement is exempt from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), and paragraph (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of information contained in civil investigative files, including the names of person or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of the Division's investigations. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape civil enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses, and their respective families, and, in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, or retained would also impede significantly the effectiveness of the Division's investigatory activities.

System name:

PWBP—Office of Enforcement Index Card File.

System location:

U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW., Room N-4716, Washington, D.C. 20216.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Plan administrators, trustees, and those individuals providing advice or services to the plan and other individuals involved in investigations and enforcement actions instituted by the Department of Labor under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

Categories of records in the system:

Information including plan name, plan administrator's name, service provider name, trustees and plan participant or beneficiary's name.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The index cards are used to access case files and correspondence files which may in turn be used for the following purposes:

1. By Department of Justice, Treasury Department, Commerce Department and other Federal government personnel and consultants investigating possible violations of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

2. In any proceeding where the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 is in issue or in which the Secretary of Labor, any past or present Federal employee or consultant directly or indirectly involved in investigations or other enforcement activities under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, is a party or otherwise involved in an official capacity.

3. When considered appropriate and pursuant to 29 U.S.C. 1134(a), records in this system concerning any matter which is the subject of an investigation by the Department of Labor under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 may be available to any person actually affected by the matter under investigation, and to any department or agency of the United States.

4. Where there is an indication of a violation or potential violations of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local or foreign, or, if such agency is participating in the particular investigation, the relevant records may continue to be used by the agency to investigate possible violations of the laws administered by it and to bring appropriate proceedings.

5. A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal, State, local or foreign governmental authority, in response to its request in the connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, in the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or benefit by the requesting to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

3 x 5 index cards.

Retrievability:

Retrieved by name of plan, participant or beneficiary's name, service provider name, and/or trustee name. All cards are filed alphabetically.

Safeguards:

Access to and use of these records is limited to those persons whose official duties require access.

Retention and disposal:

Records will be retained by PWBP until they can be incorporated into the PWBP records disposition schedule.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Administrator, Pension and Welfare Benefit Programs, Department of Labor, LMSA, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Room S-4522, Washington, D.C. 20216.

Record source categories:

Cases opened in the Office of Enforcement or in any of the field offices of LMSA and other material and documents received in the Office of Enforcement.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Other Law Enforcement. In accordance with subsection (k)(2) of the Privacy Act, any investigatory material maintained in the index and investigatory files of the Office of Enforcement, Pension and Welfare Benefit Programs, which is deemed not to be exempt under subsection (j)(2) of the Act is exempt from subsection (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I) and (F) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The disclosure of information contained in such investigative files including the names of persons or agencies to whom the information has been transmitted, would substantially compromise the effectiveness of the subject investigative activity. Knowledge of such investigations would enable subjects to take such action as is necessary to prevent detection of illegal activities, conceal evidence, or otherwise escape enforcement action. Disclosure of this information could lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses and their respective families, and in addition, could jeopardize the safety and well-being of investigative personnel and their families. The imposition of certain restrictions on the manner in which investigative information is collected, verified, or retained would also impede significantly the effectiveness of the investigatory activities of the Office of Enforcement.

Material relating to criminal law enforcement [(j)(2)] is exempted from the provisions of the Act except subsections (b), (c)(1) and (2),(e)(4)(A) through (F) (e)(6), (7), (9), (10) and (11) and paragraph (i) of the Act. Disclosure of this material could enable the subject of the record to evade prosecution and could, in addition, jeopardize the safety and welfare of investigators, witnesses, informants and their respective families.

System name:

Litigation Files—Special Litigation Task Force (the "system").

System location:

U.S. Department of Labor, Office of the Solicitor, Washington, D.C.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

The Special Litigation Task Force maintains records as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(4) (the "records"). The records relate specifically to defendants, respondents, witnesses and other individuals who may have provided information relating to, or who may have been involved in, matters that are part of the Central States litigation. These records relate generally to litigation under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (the "Act") that involves the Secretary of Labor and the Central States Southeast and Southwest Areas Health and Welfare and Pension Funds (the "Central States litigation").

Categories of records in the system:

The system contains records gathered by the Special Litigation Task Force in connection with the Central States litigation. The records may be derived from materials filed with the Department of Labor, court records, articles from publications, published financial data, information received from employee benefit plans, business organizations and individuals, statements of witnesses, information received from federal, state, local, and foreign regulatory and law enforcement organizations, and from other sources. The system also contains records that incorporate the work product of the Special Litigation Task Force and other privileged documents.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

29 U.S.C. 1132, 1134.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

(1) The records may be used by the Department of Labor, Department of Justice, Treasury Department, Commerce Department and other Federal Government personnel and consultants investigating possible violations of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

(2) The records may be used in any proceeding where the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 is in issue or in which the Secretary of Labor, any past or present Federal Employee or consultant directly or indirectly involved in investigations or other enforcement activities under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, is a party or is otherwise involved in an official capacity.

(3) The records may be made available pursuant to 29 U.S.C. 1134(a) to any person actually affected by the matters therein contained.

(4) The records may be referred when there is an indication of a violation or potential violation of law to the appropriate agency, whether federal, state, local or foreign, to be used by the agency to investigate possible violations of laws administered by it and to bring appropriate proceedings.

(5) The records may be referred, when appropriate, to a bar association, court, or federal, state, local or foreign licensing authority for possible disciplinary action.

(6) The records may be disclosed to a federal, state, local or foreign governmental authority, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the lettering of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

(7) The records may be given or shown to anyone during the course of the Central States litigation if the Special Litigation Task Force has reason to believe that the person to whom such disclosure is made may have further information about the matter discussed therein and that those matters may be relevant to the Central States litigation.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The records are maintained in hard copy, microfilm/microfiche or machine readable (computer/tape) form.

Retrievability:

The records are indexed by name.

Safeguards:

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Under the specific exemption authority provided by 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), this system is exempt from the following provisions of the Privacy Act: 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I) and (f) and the portions of 29 CFR Part 70a which implement these provisions.

Notice of Intention to Exempt

Civil Law Enforcement:The principal function of the Special Litigation Task Force is the prosecution of civil lawsuits alleging violations of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974. The system of records maintained by the Special Litigation Task Force constitutes "investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes" as defined in subsection (k)(2) of the Privacy Act. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2). Disclosure of the records compiled with regard to the Central States litigation would substantially compromise the effectiveness of such litigation. Disclosure of these records could facilitate the concealment of evidence and lead to the intimidation of, or harm to, informants, witnesses and their respective families. Accordingly, these records are entitled to exemption from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I) and (f) of the Privacy Act. 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:

Under the specific exemption authority provided by paragraph 3(k)(1) of 5 U.S.C. 552a certain investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes which is maintained in the Veterans' Reemployment Rights Complaint File may be exempted from disclosure under the following provisions of the Privacy Act: 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4)(F); (e)(4)(G); (e)(4)(H); and (e)(4)(I) and (f); and the portion of 29 CFR Part 70a which implements these provisions, if the disclosure of this information could result in the threatening of investigators and/or witnesses, or occasion them and/or their families with adverse consequences or could inhibit the effective investigation of complaints under the Veterans' Reemployment Rights Act and predecessor statutes. In order to conduct effective investigations it is at times necessary to guarantee the confidentiality of information being collected. Release of such information would constitute a break of the guarantee of confidentiality, could lead to the intimidation of witnesses, harassment or dismissal from employment of those involved, and could discourage those contacted from cooperating with investigators in future investigations.

Title 29-Labor

Subtitle A-Office of the Secretary of Labor

PART 70a—PROTECTION OF INDIVIDUAL PRIVACY IN RECORDS

Sec.

70a.1 Purpose and scope.
70a.2 Definitions.
70a.3 Conditions of disclosure of information.
70a.4 Required procedure with regard to a request by an individual for a record contained within a system of records.
70a.5 Requirements for identification of individuals making requests.
70a.6 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.
70a.7 Request for correction or amendment to a record.
70a.8 Agency review of request for correction or amendment to a record.
70a.9 Procedures for appeal from initial adverse determination.
70a.10 Solicitation of social security numbers.
70a.11 Fees.
70a.12 Penalties.
70a.13 Exemptions.

Authority: Sec. 3(f), Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a(f), 88 Stat. 1896, 1900); 5 U.S.C. 553.

Source: 42 FR 6106, Feb. 1, 1977, unless otherwise noted.

§ 70a.1 Purpose and scope.

(a) Purpose. This part sets forth the basic criteria which are to be used for implementing the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93–579) as it applies to the Department of Labor.

(b) Scope. (1) Except as noted in paragraphs (b) (2) and (b) (3) of this section, the regulations set forth in this part apply whenever a record containing personal information is maintained within a system of records which is under the control of the Department and such records are retrieved by reference to a personal identifier.

(2) Requests for notification, access or amendment to personnel records maintained by the Department are governed by Parts 293 and 297 of the Civil Service Commission's regulations, Title 5, Code of Federal Regulations, and internal Department directives established pursuant to the Commission's regulations.

(3) For systems of records contained within government-wide systems of records under the control of the Department of Labor, the regulations of the agency in possession of such records shall govern the procedure for requesting access to, or amendment of the records, including initial determinations on such requests, while the Department of Labor regulations shall govern all other aspects of safeguarding these records established by the Privacy Act.

§ 70a.2 Definitions.

For purposes of this part: (a) "Agency" means an agency as that term is defined in 5 U.S.C. 552(e). It means "each authority of the Government of the United States, whether or not it is within or subject to review by another agency * * *" (5 U.S.C. 551(1)), but it does not include an advisory committee.

(b) The term "individual" means a citizen of the United States (as defined in 8 U.S.C. 1401) or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence. This definition distinguishes between the rights which are given to a citizen as an individual under this Act and the rights of proprietorships, including sole proprietors, businesses, and corporations, which are not covered by the Act. Records relating solely to nonresident aliens are excluded from the requirements of this Part. However, where a system of records relates to both citizens and nonresident aliens, those portions of the system which relate to citizens or resident aliens must comply with the provisions set forth in these regulations.

(c) The term "maintain" includes the maintenance, collection, use, or dissemination of records, or any combination of these recordkeeping functions. The term "maintain" also connotes control over and responsibility and accountability for a system of records. Effective control of a system of records does not necessarily require physical control of the system (e.g., the Civil Service Commission has control over personnel records not physically within its possession). Furthermore, records on loan from one agency to another may not necessarily be under the control of the latter depending upon the circumstances attendant to, and the conditions of the transfer. Systems of records operated under contract, or in some instances, operated by State or local governments under Federal mandates "by or on behalf of the agency * * * to accomplish an agency function" are, for purposes of this part, under the control of the agency for which the services are being performed, and consequently subject to the requirements set forth in this part. The qualifying phrase "to accomplish an agency function" limits the applicability of the Act to those systems directly related to the performance of Federal agency functions by excluding from its coverage systems which are financed, in whole or in part, with Federal funds, but which are managed by State or local governments for the benefit of State or local governments.

(d) The term "record" means a tangible or documentary record, as opposed to an intangible record, such as information contained in a person's memory. It is any item of information, or any grouping of such items of information, about an individual that includes an identifying particular (i.e., an individual identifier). An "identifying particular" is any element of data (name, number, etc.) or other descriptor (finger print, voice print, photograph) which can be used to identify an individual.

(e) The term "system of records" means a group of any records under the control of an agency from which information is retrieved by reference to the name of an individual or by some identifying particular assigned to an individual. A "system of records" for purposes of this part is a group of records which:

(1) Consists of records as that term is defined in this section.

(2) Are "under the control of" an agency, and

(3) Are retrieved by reference to an individual name or some other personal individual identifier.

"Under the control of" means those official records for which the agency is officially responsible and either has in its possession or exercises dominion over. This excludes those records which, although in the physical possession of agency employees and used by them in performing official functions, are not, in fact, agency records. Uncirculated personal notes, papers and records which are retained or discarded at the author's discretion and over which the agency exercises no dominion or control (e.g., personal telephone lists) are not "agency records" for purposes of this part.

The criteria "are retrieved by" covers those records under the control of an agency which are, in fact, accessed by use of a personal identifier, not merely that a capability or potential capability exists for retrieving personal information in some manner. For example, files on firms which contain personal information about officers of the firms are not records for purposes of this part unless the agency actually retrieves this information by reference to a personal identifier.

(f) The term "statistical record" means a record contained within a system of records which is maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only, and not used, in whole or in part, in making any determination about an identifiable individual. For a record to qualify as a "statistical record," it must be maintained as a system of records separately from other systems of records where such other systems contain records that are used to make determinations about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of an identifiable individual. The term "identifiable individual" distinguishes determinations about specific individuals from determinations about aggregates of individuals. An example of the latter is the use of census data for the apportionment of funds based upon population.

Records frequently referred to as "research records" which are only used for analytic purposes, qualify as "statistical records" for purposes of this Part, provided such records are not used in making any determination about the rights, benefits or entitlement of an identifiable individual.

(g) The term "routine use" means, with respect to the disclosure of a record, the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected. The Privacy Act restricts the use of information to such purposes, but also recognizes that there are corollary purposes "compatible with the purpose for which the information was collected" that are appropriate and necessary for the efficient conduct of government, and are in the best interest of both the individual and the public. Thus, the term "routine use" includes the common and ordinary applications for which such records are generally collected and all proper and necessary applications of records without regard to the frequency of such applications.

(h) "Disclosure officer," "responsible official" and "officer authorized to disclose information from Department records" are those officials in this Department, whose titles and addresses are listed in § 70a.4(a)(1)(ii) of this chapter, who must pass on requests to inspect or copy record information in their custody. The solicitor of Labor, in the case of appeals and with respect to withdrawal of originals is the disclosure officer for such purposes, as is the Secretary of Labor with respect to the withdrawal of originals. As the head of the Department, the Secretary may invest any officer or employee of the Department with the authority to disclose information from particular records.

§ 70a.3 Conditions of disclosure of information.

(a) Nothing in this part shall allow an individual access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

(b) Exempt as provided in paragraphs (d) through (f) of this section, neither the Department, nor its component units, shall disclose any record which is contained within a system of records subject to the requirements of this part, to any person or agency other than to the individual who is the subject of the record, unless the disclosure is to such person's parent or guardian as provided in § 70a.5 (c) of this part, or to the representative designated by such individual in accordance with the requirments contained in § 70a.5(b) of this part.

(c) If a requester satisfied the requirements set forth in §§ 70a.4 and 70a.5 of this part, and the record described in paragraph (b) of this section does in fact exist, and is not otherwise exempt from disclosure by any other provision contained in this part, the record shall be made available to the requester in accordance with § 70a.6 of this part.

(d) Upon the notarized written consent of an individual to whom a record described in paragraph (b) of this section pertains, the Department, or any of its component units, may disclose the record to an agency or a person other than the individual to the extent that the individual to whom the record pertains has so consented.

(e)(1) In the absence of written consent from the individual to whom a record described in paragraph (b) of this section pertains, the Department may disclose any such record provided such disclosure is:

(i) To those officers and employees of the Department of Labor who have a need for the information in the performance of their duties;

(ii) Required under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552);

(iii) For a "routine use" as published in the annual notice in the Federal Register;

(iv) To the Bureau of Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity under the provisions of Title 13 of the united States Code;

(v) To a recipient who has provided the Department with adequate advance written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, and that the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable;

(vi) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his designee to determine whether the record has such value;

(vii) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity authorized by law, provided the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a prior written request to the Department, or a unit component thereof, specifying the particular record and the law enforcement activity for which it is sought;

(viii) To either House of Congress, or, to the extent that a matter is within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof; or to any joint committee of Congress or a subcommittee of any such joint committee;

(ix) To the Comptroller General, or any of his authorized representatives in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Acounting Office;

(x) Under an order of a court of competent jurisdiction, in which case the Department shall make reasonable efforts to notify the subject individual of the subpoenaed record when the subpoena of such material becomes a matter of public record; or

(xi) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual (not necessarily the individual to whom the record pertains), if upon such disclosure notification is transmitted to the last known address of the individual to whom the record pertains.

(2) The authority to disclose information without the written consent of the individual does not imply mandatory disclosure. The Department shall continue to consider all relevant factors before authorizing the disclosure of information, including the effect that disclosure would have upon the individual who is the subject of the record.

(f) When a record has been amended or a requested amendment thereto has been denied, and the requester has submitted a memorandum of disagreement, the amended information, or the memorandum of disagreement, must be transmitted to prior recipients as provided in 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(4) and § 70a.9(f) of this part.

(g) Except as prescribed in paragraphs (d) and (f) of this section, and other provisions of this part related thereto, the regulations contained in this part do not require the disclosure of a record to anyone other than the individual to whom the record pertains.

§ 70a.4 Required procedure with regard to a request by an individual for a record contained within a system of records.

(a)(1)(i) Any individual, regardless of age, desiring to examine or copy records of the Department of Labor which are retrieved in the name of that individual or other identifier personal to that individual shall direct a request to the appropriate official as prescribed in paragraph (d) of this section. Any individual desiring to ascertain whether, and to whom the Department has disclosed his or her record or part thereof, or deserving to request an amendment to such record, shall direct a request to the same official.

(ii) When a person is uncertain as to whom the request should be directed, it should be sent to: Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210.

(2) Requests made in person shall be presented during the Department's normal working hours. When the request is made by mail, a notation should be made on the envelope and conspicuously on the letter indicating that the communication involves a request under the Privacy Act (i.e., "Privacy Act Request").

(b) Each request shall be in writing. It shall state the nature of the action desired and shall be reasonably detailed to permit identification and location of the record in question. so far as practicable, the request should specify the subject matter of the record, the date or approximate date when made, the place where made, the person or office that made it, and any other pertinent identifying details. The requester should also indicate whether he or she wishes to review the record in person or obtain a copy by mail.

(c)(1) The disclosure officer who is responsible for acting upon a request shall, upon receipt thereof, have the date and time the request was received immediately inscribed thereon, and within 10 working days thereafter, acknowledge such receipt to the requester. In addition, the acknowledgement shall indicate the time within which it is anticipated that a determination of the request will be made. Such an acknowledgement, however, is not required when a determination can be made within the 10-day period.

(2) If the description contained in the request is insufficient so that a professional employee who is familiar with the subject area of the request cannot locate the record with a reasonable amount of effort, the officer processing the request shall notify the applicant and, to the extent possible, indicate the additional information required. Every reasonable effort shall be made to assist an applicant in the identification and location of the record or records sought.

§ 70a.5 Requirements for identification of individuals making requests.

(a) To avoid disclosure of information to unauthorized individuals, where an individual requests personal information about himself or herself, and such information is retrieved from a system of records by means of a personal identifier, and the record(s) requested are excluded from mandatory disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act, the following requirements must be met before the disclosure officer releases the relevant information:

(1) When a request is submitted by mail, the signature of the requester shall be notarized;

(2) When a request is made in person, an official photograph accurately depicting the requester, and indicating the requester's name (e.g., government ID, driver's license, college ID, etc., shall be presented to the disclosure officer or his authorized representative, or if an official photograph is not available, a photograph accompanied by a notarization certifying the name of the individual in the photograph.

(b) When a person, other than an officer or employee of the Department with a need to know, requests access to a record about an individual other than himself or herself, then in addition to meeting the requirements set forth in paragraphs (a)(1) and (a)(2) of this section, as applicable, the requester must also provide a notarized letter of consent signed by the individual to whom the record pertains which explicitly authorizes the requester to receive the record. A notarized letter of consent is not required where the requester is a parent or legal guardian, and such person satisfies the requirements set forth in paragraph (c) of this section.

(c) An individual acting as the parent of a minor or the legal guardian of the individual to whom a record pertains shall establish his or her personal identity in the same manner prescribed in either paragraph (a) (1) or (2) of this section. In addition, such other individual shall establish his or her identity in the representative capacity of parent or legal guardian. In the case of the parent of a minor, the proof of identity shall be a certified or authenticated copy of the minor's birth certificate. In the case of a legal guardian of an individual who has been declared incompetent due to physical or mental incapacity or age by a court of competent jurisdiction, the proof of identity shall be a certified or authenticated copy of the court's order. A parent or legal guardian may act only for a living individual, not for a decedent.

(d) The disclosure officer may waive the requirements set forth in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section when he deems such action to be appropriate, and may substitute in lieu thereof, other reasonable means of identification.

§ 70a.6 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.

(ii) When the Solicitor agrees that an extension is necessary because of unusual circumstances and grants an extension of time, the officer responsible for acting on the request shall notify the requester in writing within the 30-day period of the extension, the reasons therefor, and the date on which the determination to grant or deny the request is expected to be dispatched. No extension is to exceed 10 working days.

(iii) If the disclosure officer is unable to make a determination with respect to all or part of a request within the 30-day period specified in paragraph (a)(1)(i) of this section, or such extended period as may be permitted, because some or all of the records have not been located or made available for examination and consideration in time to make an informed determination, the officer may, within such period, respond to the request by denying the request as to those records which are not available, with notification to the requester of the reasons therefor, and of the right to appeal the denial pursuant to § 70a.9 of this part. However, the disclosure officer shall make a determination at that time as to those records or portions of records which are available. In such an event, the officer shall advise the requester that the search or examination will be continued and that the denial will be subject to withdrawal, modification, or confirmation by a supplementary determination to be made as soon as processing of the request can be completed. if an appeal is filed from the initial denial, the Solicitor shall act thereon as provided in § 70a.9 of this part.

(b) Procedure for disclosure of information. (1) When a determination has been made to grant a request, the requested information shall be made available to the individual within the time period prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section. The record shall be made available to the individual in the manner requested, that is, either by forwarding a copy of the information to him or her, or by making it available for review, unless: (i) It is impracticable to provide the requester with a copy of a record, in which case the requester shall be so notified, and, in addition, be informed of the procedures set forth in paragraph (b)(2) of this section, or (ii) the responsible official has reason to believe that the cost of a copy of a record is considerably more expensive than anticipated by the requester, in which case he or she shall notify the requester of the estimated cost, and ascertain whether the requester still wishes to be provided with a copy of the information.

(2) Where a record is to be reviewed by the requester in person, the disclosure officer shall inform the requester in writing of: (i) The date on which the record will become available for review, the location at which it may be reviewed, and the hours for inspection; (ii) the type of identification that will be required in order for him or her to review the record; (iii) such person's right to have a person of his or her own choosing accompany him or her to review the record; and (iv) such person's right to have a person other than himself or herself review the record.

(3) The record shall be made available for review for as long as the disclosure officer deems appropriate, but in no event for less than 30 days.

(4) Inspection of original records shall be made in the presence of the disclosure officer or such officer's designee.

(c) Denial of request. Where it has been determined to deny a request in whole or in part, the individual shall be notified in writing of such a determination. Such notification shall specify the reasons therefor, the name and title or position of the person(s) responsible for the denial, and shall advise the requester of the procedure for appealing such an adverse determination to the Solicitor of Labor.

(d) Medical records. When an individual requests medical records concerning himself, which are not otherwise exempt from disclosure, the disclosure officer shall, if deemed necessary, because of possible harm to the individual, advise the individual that records will be provided only to a physician designated in writing by the individual. Upon receipt of the designation, the disclosure officer will permit the physician to review the records or to receive copies of the records by mail, upon proper verification of identity. The determination of which records should be made available directly to the individual and which records should not be disclosed because of possible harm to the individual shall be made by the physician.

(e) Computerized records. Where information is stored within one of the Department's computer systems, and it can only be retrieved by creating a new computer program, or modifying an existing program in a manner in which it would not otherwise be modified, thus producing a record not currently in existence, the record is not required to be furnished under the Act.

(f) Alternative Method for transmitting information. Whenever a record containing personal information about an individual is to be mailed in response to a request under this part, and the information is of such a nature that the disclosure officer has reasonable grounds for believing that the unauthorized dissemination of such information may be of significant harm to the subject of the record, then such a record shall be sent "Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested."

§ 70a.7 Request for correction or amendment to a record.

An individual, without regard to his or her age, may request the correction or amendment of any record pertaining to him or her, which is contained within a system of records subject to the requirements set forth in this part, by mailing or delivering a written request in conformity with the requirements set forth in §§ 70a.4 and 70a.5 of this part. In addition, the request must state the information in the record which the requester believes to be unnecessary, inaccurate, irrelevant, untimely, or incomplete, the nature of the amendment desired, and a concise statement of the reasons therefor. All available supporting documents and materials which substantiate the requester's position should be included with the request.

§ 70a.8 Agency review of request for correction or amendment to a record.

(a) Upon receipt of a request to correct or amend a record, which is contained within a system of records subject to the requirements set forth in this part, a determination whether to grant the request shall be made by the proper authority charged with the responsibility of acting upon such requests within the time limits prescribed in § 70a.6 of this part.

(b) Where it is determined that the request shall be granted in whole or in part, (1) the record shall be amended within the time limits prescribed in § 70a.6 of this part, and, in no event, is the record to be disclosed to any party until the amendments are so incorporated; (2) the requester shall be informed that the record has been so amended, and the record shall be made available for his or her review within the time limits prescribed in § 70a.6 of this part, and (3) all prior recipients of the record, of which an accounting is required to be kept, shall be notified as soon as possible of the amendments made to the record.

(c) Where it is determined that the request is to be denied, in whole or in part, the requester shall be so notified in accordance with § 70a.6(c) of this part.

§ 70a.9 Procedures for appeal from initial adverse determination.

(a) Time within which appeal must be filed. An applicant whose request for access, copying, amendment or correction of a record has been denied pursuant to this part may file an appeal within 90 days from the date of the denial to the Solicitor of Labor. The appeal shall state, in writing, the grounds for appeal and shall include any supporting statements or arguments. The appeal shall be addressed to the Solicitor of Labor, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20210. To expedite the processing of the appeal, each such appeal should clearly indicate on the envelope and on the appeal the following: "Privacy Act: Appeal."

(b) Receipt by Solicitor of appeal; acknowledgment. Each appeal when received by the Solicitor, shall have the date and time of such receipt inscribed thereon. The Solicitor shall acknowledge the receipt of such appeal in writing.

(c) Action on appeal. (1) Action on an appeal shall be taken promptly subsequent to receipt by the Solicitor, and a determination shall be made within 30 working days from receipt thereof. Where the Solicitor determines that a decision cannot be made with the 30-day period, the appellant shall be so notified, however, a decision shall be rendered within 40 days of the initial receipt of the appeal.

(2) On appeal, the Solicitor is authorized to determine de novo, whether the denial of appellant's initial request was proper and in accord with the applicable provisions of the statute and the pertinent regulations. In the event that the denial appealed from is one made by reason of the inability of the responsible official to make an informed determination within the specified time limits, the Solicitor's decision shall take into consideration any supplementary determination made by that official.

(3) In the event that a requester seeks review by a court of the denial of a request without first filing an appeal to the Solicitor as provided in this part, the Solicitor may, unless otherwise ordered by the court, consider such action as the filing of an appeal and issue a decision thereon in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph.

(4) If a decision on an appeal is not made by the Solicitor within the normal or extended period, as applicable under paragraph (c) of this section, the requester shall be deemed to have exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may seek relief as provided in 5 U.S.C. 552a(g). Processing of the appeal shall continue however, until a decision is made thereon, irrespective of whether the requester has invoked such judicial relief.

(d) Procedure upon determination on appeal. The Solicitor shall issue a decision in writing granting or denying the appeal, in whole or in part.

(1) Decision to grant request. (i) When the Solicitor determines that any portion of a prior request, which has been previously denied, should be granted, he shall indicate to the requester the extent to which he has decided to grant the previously denied request, and shall order the responsible official(s) to take the necessary action consistent with his decision.

(ii) If the Solicitor's decision provides for making available information which had been previously withheld, and the Solicitor has within his possession such information, he shall forward a copy of it to the requester together with his decision, unless the requester has indicated that he or she prefers to review the record in person, in which case the Solicitor shall forward the record to the appropriate official who shall make the record available to the requester within 10 working days.

(iii) If the action required by the Solicitor's decision must necessarily be carried out by a responsible official other than the Solicitor, such action shall be carried out within the following time limits:

(A) If the Solicitor's decision requires a record to be made available for review without amendments thereto, such record shall be made available in the manner initially requested, except as provided in § 70a.6(b)(1) (i) and (ii), within 10 working days of the Solicitor's decision.

(B) If the Solicitor's action requires the amendment of a record, the requester shall be given an opportunity to review the amended record within 15 working days of the Solicitor's decision. All previous recipients of the record, for which an accounting is required, shall be informed of the amendments immediately after the review by the requestor.

(iv) Whenever a record is to be made available to an appellant at the direction of the Solicitor, the responsible agency official shall notify the appellant when the record is available for review.

(2) Decision to uphold denial. Where the Solicitor determines that the denial of a request, or a portion thereof, should be upheld, the requester shall be notified: (i) Of the extent to which the denial has been upheld and the reasons therefor; (ii) of his right to file with the agency in possession of the relevant record, a memorandum setting forth the fact that such person believes the record to be erroneous and the reasons therefor; and (iii) that the decision of the Solicitor constitutes the final action by the Department of Labor for purposes of judicial review, and that the Solicitor's decision may be appealed to the District Court of the United States in the district in which the complainant resides, or has his principal place of business, or in which the agency records are situated, or in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

(3) Disclosure of record where request to amend has been denied on appeal. Where a request to amend a record has been denied by the Solicitor, and the requester has filed a memorandum pursuant to paragraph (d)(2)(ii) of this section taking exception to the Solicitor's decision, upon receipt of such memorandum the responsible agency official shall include the memorandum with the relevant record and, in addition, may also include with such record a memorandum indicating that a request to amend the particular record has been denied both by the agency and by the Solicitor, and the reasons therefor.

(i) In addition, previous recipients of a record, where a request to amend has been denied by the Solicitor, and of which an accounting is required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c), shall be provided with a copy of the requester's memorandum taking exception to the Solicitor's determination, and a copy of the agency memorandum in support of the determination, if such a memorandum has been prepared.

(ii) Any subsequent disclosure of the subject record shall also be accompanied by the requester's excepting memorandum, and the Government's supportive memorandum, if one has been filed.

§ 70a.10 Solicitation of social security numbers.

(a) Neither the Department nor its component units shall deny to any individual any right, benefit or privilege provided by law because of such individual's refusal to disclose his social security number.

(b) The requirement set forth in paragraph (a) of this section shall not apply with respect to the disclosure of a social security number to the Department, or a component unit thereof, for inclusion in systems of records which were in existence prior to January 1, 1975, and such disclosure was required by statute, Executive Order or regulation adopted prior to January 1, 1975, to verify the identity of an individual.

(c) Each component unit of the Department that requests an individual to disclose his social security number shall provide the individual, in writing, with the following information:

(1) The use or uses that may be made of the social security number;

(2) The statute or authority under which the social security number is solicited;

(3) Whether the disclosure of the social security number is mandatory or voluntary; and

(4) The consequences, if any, to an individual should he or she refuse to disclose the number.

§ 70a.11 Fees.

(a) General. (1) Pursuant to authority granted by the Privacy Act, the payment of standard charges as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section will, except as otherwise provided in this section, be required of the requester to cover the direct costs of duplicating records requested under this part. No fee shall be assessed to any requester for any cost attributed to the search for and the review of any record.

(2) Circumstances under which copying facilities or services may be made available to a requester without charge, or at a reduced charge, are delineated in paragraph (e) of this section. Where a requester desires the agency to provide such services as certification, authentication, or other special services not required under the Privacy Act, with respect to requested records, fees in addition to those required for copying will be assessed as set forth in § 70.68 of this chapter, and as authorized by the general user-charge statute, section 483a of Title 31, United States Code.

(b) Copying charges—(1) Fee schedule for copying of records. The fees payable pursuant to this section for obtaining requested copies of records which have been made available under this part will be computed on the following basis and subject to the following conditions:

(i) Standard copying fee. The standard copying fee is $0.10 for each 8½ by 11 inch page of record furnished. The standard fee is applicable both where the copies are reproduced by the person desiring them, using Government-furnished reproduction equipment, such as coin-operated machines, or where, in the absence of availability of such facilities, the copies are reproduced by agency personnel. This standard fee is also applicable to the furnishing of copies of computer print- outs as stated in paragraph (c) of this section.

(ii) Voluminous material. If the volume of page copy desired by the requester is such that the reproduction charge at the standard page rate would be in excess of $200, the person desiring reproduction may request a special rate quotation from the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management.

(iii) Limit of service. Not more than 10 copies of any document will be furnished, unless the requester has received the prior written approval of the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management.

(iv) Manual copying by requester. The Department shall provide facilities for manual copying, without charge, during normal working hours.

(c) Computerized records. (1) Information maintained, in whole or in part, in computerized form which is required to be made available under this part, shall be made available as follows:

(i) When there is an existing computer printout, the material shall be made available at the per page rate stated in paragraph (b) of this section for each 8½ by 11 inch page.

(ii) When there is no existing printout of information required to be made available under this part, then the information shall be printed out and made available to the requester in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section.

(d) Payment of fees. (1) Medium of payment. Payment of the applicable fees as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section shall be made in cash, by U.S. postal money order, or by check payable to the Department of Labor. Postage stamps will not be accepted. Cash should not be sent by mail.

(2) Advance payment or assurance. Payment of the known and officially estimated copying fees shall be made or assured to the satisfaction of the disclosure officer prior to the performance of substantial copying services. Where the requester does not know and has no official estimate of the copying costs at the time the request is made, the request should specifically state that whatever costs will be involved pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section will be acceptable, or will be acceptable up to an amount not exceeding a named figure. When it becomes apparent that the duplication cost is going to exceed such named figure, the disclosure office shall notify the requester as required by § 70a.6(b) of this part.

(3) Adjustment of fees. Where an estimated fee, paid by the requester in advance, exceeds the fee chargeable under the applicable schedule for the copying services actually performed, the balance will be refunded by the Department. Where the actual fees due for the services are in excess of the estimate, the requester will be required to remit the difference. In cases where the estimated costs required under the fee schedule for responding to a request are such that an advance deposit is deemed necessary, the disclosure officer shall advise the requester of the estimated costs and the need for an advance deposit. In addition, where it appears that the information sought by the requester might be made available at less cost by revision of the request, the disclosure officer shall indicate to the requester that he or she may confer with knowledgeable Department personnel, if he or she so desires, in order to reformulate the request in a manner which will reduce the fees and meet the needs of the requester.

(4) Post-copying costs. The scheduled fees for furnishing copies of records made available pursuant to the Act cover the costs of furnishing the copies at the place of duplication. Where the volume of page copy, or the method of transmittal requested, is such that transmittal charges incurred by the Department are in excess of $1, then the transmittal costs will be added to the copying fees set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, unless, appropriate stamps or stamped envelopes are furnished with the request, or authorization is given for collection of shipping charges on delivery.

(e) Waiver or reduction of fees. (1) When the disclosure officer or the appellate officer granting a request for a record determines that the waiver or reduction of the standard charge would be in the public interest, he or she may make the requested record available at no charge or at a reduced charge, whichever he or she deems to be appropriate.

(2)(i) Where a copy of a record is made available for the first time to the subject of the record or an individual designated by the subject person, then the disclosure officer shall assess no fee.

(ii) In addition, where it is determined that a person, because of special circumstances, is unable to pay the fees prescribed in paragraph (b) of this section, and it is clear that the public interest would be served by providing the requested information free of charge, then no fee shall be charged for such information.

(f) Authentication of copies. Requirements pertaining to the certification or attestation under seal of copies of records required to be made available under this part are the same as the requirements for authentication of copies of records under the Freedom of Information Act as set forth in § 70.68 of this chapter.

§ 70a.12 Penalties.

(a) General. (1) This section sets forth criminal sanctions for three violations of the Act:

(i) Unauthorized disclosure,

(ii) Failure to publish a public notice of a system of records subject to the requirements of this part and the Act, and

(iii) Obtaining access to information under false pretenses.

(2) Paragraphs (a)(1) (i) and (ii) of this section apply to employees of the Department, and pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(m), certain contractor personnel for contracts agreed to on or after September 27, 1975.

(b) Unauthorized disclosure. Any officer or employee of the Department, who by virtue of his employment or official position, has possession of, or access to, agency records which contain individually identifiable information, the disclosure of which is prohibited by this part, and who knowing that disclosure of the specific material is so prohibited, willfully discloses the material in any matter to any person or agency not entitled to receive it, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

(c) Failure to give public notice of a system of records. Any officer or employee of the Department who willfully maintains a system of records without meeting the notice requirements of section (3)(4) of the Act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

(d) Obtaining access to information under false pretenses. Any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from the Department of Labor under false pretenses shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

§ 70a.13 Exemptions.

(a) General exemption. (1) General. Section (j) of 5 U.S.C. 552a permits certain agencies within the Department to promulgate rules in accordance with the requirements of sections 553 (b) (1), (2), and (3) (c) and (e) of Title 5, United States Code, to exempt certain systems of records from all the requirements of the Privacy Act except those set forth in paragraph (a)(3) of this section.

(2) Systems of records which may be exempt pursuant to the general exemption. Those types of systems of records which may be exempt from certain provisions of the Privacy Act by virtue of section (j) of 5 U.S.C. 552a are those systems which:

(i) Are maintained by an agency, or a component thereof, which performs as its principal function any activity pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws, and

(ii) Contain information compiled for the purpose of: (A) A criminal investigation, including reports of informants and investigators associated with an identifiable individual, or (B) identifying individual criminal offenders and alleged offenders, and consists only of identifying data and notations of arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, and parole and probation status.

(3) Requirements from which systems are exempt under the general exemption. Those systems of records which qualify for the general exemption are not subject to any provisions of the Privacy Act, nor any of the provisions set forth in this Part, except for the following:

(i) The conditions of disclosure required under paragraph (b) of 5 U.S.C. 552a and § 70a.3 of this part.

(ii) The requirements to account for the disclosure of records and maintain an accounting of such disclosures as set forth in sections (c)(1) and (c)(2) of 5 U.S.C. 552a;

(iii) The requirements prescribed in section (e)(4) of 5 U.S.C. 552a to publish annually in the Federal Register notice of the existence and character of systems of records, except that the procedures for: (A) Identifying a record, (B) gaining access to it, (C) contesting its accuracy, and (D) identifying the source of a record, need not be included in such notice;

(iv) The obligation set forth in section (e)(6) of 5 U.S.C. 552a to check for the accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness of records before disclosing such records to any person other than an agency, or to the public pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act;

(v) The requirement restricting the maintenance of records pertaining to an individual's exercise of his First Amendment rights (See section (e)(7) of 5 U.S.C. 552a);

(vi) The requirement to establish rules governing the development, maintenance and safeguarding of systems of records as prescribed in sections (e)(9) and (e)(10) of 5 U.S.C. 552a;

(vii) The requirement to give notice of any new use or intended use of the information contained within a system of records prior to publication pursuant to section (e)(4)(D) of 5 U.S.C. 552a (See section (e)(11) of 5 U.S.C. 552a); and

(viii) The criminal penalties set forth in section (i) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(4) Procedure required to exempt system of records under general exemption. In order to exempt a system of records described in paragraph (a)(2) of this section from all of the provisions of the Privacy Act, excluding those provisions set forth in paragraph (a)(3) of this section, a notice must be published in the Federal Register in accordance with the rulemaking provisions set forth in paragraph (a)(1) of this section. Such notice shall include at least the following:

(i) The name of the system of records (i.e., the same name used in the annual notice published pursuant to section (e)(4) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, and

(ii) The specific provisions of the Act, and the regulations, from which it is proposed to exempt the system, and the reasons therefor.

(b) Special exemption–(1) General. The Department, or its component units, may promulgate rules in accordance with sections 553 (b) (1), (2) and (3) (c) and (e) of Title 5, United States Code, to exempt those types of systems of records described in paragraph (b)(2) of this section from the requirements of the Privacy Act, and the regulations of this part, set forth in paragraph (b)(3) of this section.

(2) Systems of records which may be exempt under special exemption. The following types of systems of records may be exempt from those provisions of the Privacy Act, and the corresponding provisions of this Part, set forth in paragraph (b)(3) of this section.

(i) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes.

(A) Systems of records containing solely investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, other than systems within the scope of paragraph (a)(2) of this section, may be exempt to the extent indicated in paragraph (b)(1). However, if any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit, that he would otherwise be entitled to by Federal law, or for which he would otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of such material, such material shall be provided to such individual, except to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(B) The phrase "investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes" is the same as that used in exemption (b)(7) of the Freedom of Information Act.

(C) (1) The phrase "to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source * * *" means that if a record can be disclosed in such a way as to conceal its source, a promise of confidentiality to the source is not sufficient grounds for withholding such a record. In certain cases the contents of records may be such that the identity of the source would be revealed even if the name of the source of other identifying particulars were removed (e.g., where a record contains information that could only have been furnished by one individual known to the subject). In such a case the substance of the record may be withheld to protect the identity of a source and but only to the extent necessary to do so. When any reasonable doubt exists as to whether the disclosure of a record, or a portion thereof, would reveal the identity of a confidential source then such record, or the applicable portions thereof, may be withheld.

(2) In no instance is paragraph (b)(2)(i)(C)(1) of this section to be applied in a manner which deprives an individual from learning of the existence of information maintained in a record about him, even though the information may have been received from a "confidential source". The fact of the record's existence and, to the maximum extent feasible, a general characterization of that record must be made known to the individual in every case. Furthermore, this section in no way precludes an individual from ascertaining the substance and source of confidential information, should that information be used to deny him a promotion in a Government job, access to classified information, or some other right, benefit or privilege for which he is entitled to bring legal action, when the Government chooses to base any part of its legal case on that information.

(ii) Records maintained to provide protective services. Systems of records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the Presiddent of the United States, or to other individuals pursuant to section 3056 of Title 18, United States Code, may be exempt as indicated in paragraph (b)(1) of this section. This exemption pertains to systems, the compilation of which are necessary for assuring the safety of individuals protected pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056, but are not within the scope of the law enforcement records exemption set forth in paragraph (b)(2)(i) of this section.

(iii) Statistical records. Systems of records consisting of statistical records which are required by statute to be maintained and used solely for statistical research or reporting purposes, and not used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual, except as provided by section 8 of Title 18, United States Code, may be exempt as indicated in paragraph (b)(1) of this section. The language, "required by statute to be maintined * * * solely", means that systems of records which qualify for this exemption are those composed exclusively of records, that by statute, are prohibited from being used in any manner associated with the making of a determination about an individual to whom a particular record pertains, not merely that the agency does not use the information for such purposes.

(iv) Investigatory material compiled for determining suitability for Federal employment. (A) Systems of records containing only investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment. Federal contracts, or access to classified information may be exempt as indicated in paragraph (b)(1) of this section, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(B) Paragraph (b)(2)(iv)(A) of this section permits, among other things, the exemption of systems of records from the individual access provisions of the Act, and the corresponding provisions of this part, §§ 70a.4 through 70a.9, when disclosure of the records contained therein would cause the identity of a confidential source to be revealed, but only under the following conditions:

(1) The material must be maintained only for purposes of determining an individual's qualifications, eligibility or suitability for employment in the Federal civilian service, or on a Federal contract, or for access to classified material. By implication, employment would include appointments to Federal advisory committees or to membership agencies, whether or not salaried;

(2) The material must be relevant and necessary for making a judicious determination as to qualifications, eligibility or suitability of an individual for a particular position, and the information must be of such a nature that it can only be obtained by providing assurance to the source that his or her identity will not be revealed to the subject of the record (e.g., for "critically sensitive positions"); and

(3) The contents of the record, even with the removal of individual identifiers, would reveal the identity of the source.

(C) Regulations issued by the Civil Service Commission establishing procedures for when a pledge of confidentiality is to be made in order to obtain the information described in paragraph (b)(2)(iv)(A) of this section shall be complied with before this exemption is to be employed.

(D) The compilation of investigatory material with regard to Federal contracts pertains not only to investigatory material collected about individuals being considered for employment on an existing Federal contract, but also to investigatory material compiled to evaluate the capabilities of firms competing for Federal contracts.

(c) Requirements from which systems of records may be exempt under special exemption. A system of records which meets the requirements of paragraph (b)(2) of this section need not comply with the following provisions of the Privacy Act and the corresponding requirements set forth in this part:

(1) The requirement to make an accounting of a record available to the individual to whom it pertains at his or her request. (See section (c)(3) of 5 U.S.C. 552a);

(2) The requirement for access to records as set forth in section (d) of 5 U.S.C. 552a and §§ 70a.3 through 70a.9 of this part;

(3) The provisions of section (e)(1) of 5 U.S.C. 552a which restricts the contents of records to only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish the purpose of the agency; and

(4) The provisions of section (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, which require the annual notice of system of records published in the Federal Register to set forth:

(i) The procedures whereby an individual can be notified at his request:

(A) If a system of records contains a record pertaining to him, and

(B) How that person can gain access to any record pertaining to him contained in a system of records, and how he can contest its contents; and

(ii) The categories of sources of records in the system.

(d) Procedure required to exempt a system of records under special exemption. In order to exempt a system of records described in paragraph (b)(2) of this section from the provisions of the Privacy Act set forth in paragraph (b)(3) of this section, and the corresponding provisions of this part, notice of intention to exempt must be published in the Federal Register, and such notice shall meet the requirements prescribed in paragraph (a)(4) of this section. The Department of Labor has published notice of intention to exempt the following record systems:

(1) ESA-18, Farm Labor Contractor Employee Records File is exempt under paragraph 3(k)(2) from paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4), (6), (h) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. Disclosure of information would enable subjects of the file to take action to prevent detection of illegal activities and could lead to the intimidation of informants, witnesses or their families. Except for information which would reveal the identity of a confidential source, relevant records will be made available only after a determination has been made based upon the information contained therein.

(2) OASA-3, General Investigation File is exempt under paragraphs (3)(j)(2) and 3(k) (2), (3) and (5) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. Information related to criminal investigations [3(j)(2)] is exempt from the provisions of the Act except for the requirements of paragraphs (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10) and (11), and (i). Disclosure of information could enable the subject of the record to take action to escape prosecution and, in addition, might lead to the intimidation of witnesses, informants or their families. Other material which is exempted under 3(k) (2), (3) and (5) of the Act relates to civil law enforcement investigations, including shared information, files maintained in connection with assisting the U.S. Secret Service to provide protective services to government officials, and investigatory material compiled to determine the suitability, eligibility and qualification of DOL contractors. In the first two instances, the material is exempted from the requirements of paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. Contract investigations are exempt from the provision of (c)(3), (d) and (f). Civil law enforcement material is exempted until such time as a determination is made based upon the information except that information which would reveal the identity of a confidential source will continue to be exempted. Contract information is exempt to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a source when an express pledge of confidentiality has been given or the circumstances indicate that confidentiality has been implied. These exemptions are necessary to preserve the integrity of the investigations and to prevent the intimidation or harassment of informants, witnesses or their families.

(3) LMSA-1, Index Cards, Division of Enforcement relates to investigations under the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act and E.O. 11441. This system is exempt and paragraphs 3(5)(2) and 3(k)(2) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. Material relating to criminal law enforcement (3(5)(2)) is exempted under paragraphs, (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F); (e) (6), (7), (9), (10) and (11), and (i) of the Act. Disclosure of this material could enable the subject of the record to evade prosecution and could, in addition, jeopardize the safety and welfare of investigators, witnesses, informants and their respective families. Material related to civil law enforcement (3(k)(2)) is exempt from the provisions of paragraphs (c)(3), (d), (e) (4), (6), (H), and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. Disclosure would enable the subject to take action to prevent detection of illegal activities or avoid the consequences of violation of the law and, further, could lead to the intimidation or harassment of witnesses, informants, or their families.

(e) Segregation of systems of records. System of records which may be exempt under paragraphs (a) or (b) of this section shall, to the extent practicable: (1) Be separated from systems of records which are not so exempt, and (2) when it is practicable to exempt only a portion of a system of records, rather than the entire system, then only such portion shall be exempted.

Prefatory Statement of Routine Uses

The following routine uses apply to, and are incorporated by reference into, each system of records set forth below:

Law Enforcement

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

Disclosure When Requesting Information

A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use' to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

Disclosure of Requested Information

A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter. A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a federal, state, local or foreign agency as a "routine use"in response to such an agency's request, where there is reason to believe that an individual has violated the law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, if necessary, and only to the extent necessary, to enable such agency to discharge its responsibilities of investigating or prosecuting such violation or its responsibilities with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto. A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a foreign agency as a "routine use"in response to such an agency's request when the information is necessary for the foreign agency to adjudicate and determine an individual's entitlement to rights and benefits, or obligations owed to the foreign agency, such as information necessary to establish identity or nationality.

Office of Management and Budget

The information contained in this system of records will be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular No. A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

Members of Congress. Disclosure may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

Contractors Information from a system of records may be disclosed to anyone who is under contract to the Department of State to fulfill an agency function but only to the extent necessary to fulfill that function.

Courts Information from a system of records may be made available to any court of competent jurisdiction, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, when necessary for the litigation and adjudication of a case involving an individual who is the subject of a Departmental record.

National Archives, Government Services Administration. A record from a system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration: For records management inspections, surveys and studies; following transfer to a Federal records center for storage; and to determine whether such records have sufficient historical or other value to warrant accessioning into the National Archives of the United States.

STATE-01

System name: Biographic Register Records

System location: Department of State Annex 6, 1700 N. Lynn Street, Arlington, Virginia 22209.

Authority: Section 3 of the Administrative Procedure Act, as amended (Pub. L. 89-478, 80 Stat. 250); the Freedom of Information Act, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552); the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a); Executive Order 12065; and the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (Pub. L. 95-521).

Subpart A—General Policy and Procedures

§ 171.1 Availability of information.

(a) Unclassified information, documents, and forms which have previously been provided to the public as part of the normal services of the Department of State will continue to be made available on the same basis as before. Any Departmental officer who receives a request for records through normal channels of contact with the public, media, or the Congress which would not normally be made available shall advise the requester that the request will be referred to the Information and Privacy Coordinator, Foreign Affairs Information Management Center, for processing under the appropriate statute or executive order as provided in these regulations.

(b) All identifiable records of the Department of State shall be made available to the public upon compliance with the procedures established in this subchapter, except to the extent that a determination is made to withhold a record in accordance with an appropriate exemption as provided herein.

§ 171.2 Requests for information.

(a) Requests for identifiable records in accordance with this subchapter may be made by the public in person during regular business hours from the Department of State, 2201 C Street, NW, Washington, D.C. where the receptionist will refer the requester to the proper office for service and the necessary forms for making a request.

(b) Requests by mail and referrals from other agencies should be addressed to the Information and Privacy Coordinator, Foreign Affairs Information Management Center, Room 1239, Department of State, Washington, D.C. 20520, who will coordinate action as specified in this request. In addition, requests may be directed to the Department's field offices and overseas posts; routine, unclassified, administrative records may be released to the individual if it is determined that such release is authorized. Any unfilled request shall be submitted to the Information and Privacy Coordinator. Individuals are urged to clearly indicate on their requests the statute under which they are requesting access to information; this notation will facilitate the processing of the request by the Department.

(c) While every effort is made to guarantee the greatest possible access to all requesters, regardless of the specific statute under which the information is requested, the following guidance is provided for individuals in requesting records:

(1) Freedom of Information Act. Requests for documents concerning the general activities of government and of the Department of State in particular (see Subpart B).

(2) E. O. 12065. Requests for mandatory review and declassification of Department records and requests for access by former Presidential appointees (see Subpart C).

(3) Privacy Act. Requests from U.S. citizens or resident aliens for records pertaining to themselves and maintained by the Department under the individual's name (see Subpart D).

(4) Ethics in Government Act. Requests for the financial Disclosure Statements of Department Employees covered by this Act (see Subpart E).

(d) The burden of adequately identifying the record so requested lies with the requester. Individuals may seek assistance regarding any facet of their requests from the Information and Privacy Coordinator.

§ 171.3 Public reading room.

A public reading room or area where records may be made available is located in the Department of State, 2201 C Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20520. The receptionist will refer the applicant to the proper room. All those statutes, regulations, and guidelines pertaining to access to information required to be made available to the public shall be located in the reading room. Fees will not be charged for access by the public to this room or the indexes and regulations contained therein, but fees, in accordance with § 171.6, will be charged for furnishing copies thereof. Persons desiring to utilize their own portable copying equipment should request approval in advance from the Information and Privacy Coordinator. Any arrangements for the use of such equipment must be consistent with security regulations of the Department of State and are subject to the availability of personnel to monitor such copying.

§ 171.4 Extension of time limits.

While every effort is made to meet the time limits cited in each section of this Subchapter, unusual circumstances may arise which would necessitate the extension of these time limits. Extensions shall be granted in those instances where it is necessary, in order to guarantee proper processing of the request, to:

(a) Search for and collect the requested records from overseas posts or other establishments that are separate from the office processing the request;

(b) Search for, collect, and appropriately examine a voluminous amount of separate and distinct records which are demanded in a single request; or

(c) Consult with another agency having a substantial interest in the determination of the request or among two or more components of the Department of State having substantial subject matter interest therein. Such consultation shall be conducted with all practicable speed. In such instances the requester shall be given written notification by the Information and Privacy Coordinator of the extension of the time limit and the reason for such extension.

§ 171.5 Archival records.

The Department ordinarily transfers custody of records as soon as practicable after they become twenty (20) years old to the National Archives and Records Administrative. These records are generally transferred in large blocks defined by years and/or major subject categories.

Correspondence regarding access to these records should be addressed to the Chief, Diplomatic Branch, Civil Records Divisions, National Archives and Record Administrative, Washington, D.C. 20400.

§ 171.6 Fees-general.

(a) The Department will charge a fee of $.10 per page for copies of documents which are identified by an individual and reproduced at the individual's request for retention, except that there will be no charge for requests involving costs of $1.00 or less.

(b) Remittances shall be in the form of either a personal check or bank draft drawn on a bank in the United States, a postal money order, or cash. Remittance shall be made payable to the order of the Treasurer of the United States and delivered or mailed to the Information and Privacy Coordinator, Foreign Affairs Information Management Center, Room 1239, Department of State, 2201 C Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20520. The Department will assume no responsibility for cash sent by mail.

(c) A receipt for fees paid will be given only upon request.

(d) See section 171.13 for additional fees chargeable for Freedom of Information requests.

Subpart D—Privacy Provisions

§ 171.30 Definitions.

As used in this subpart, the following definitions shall apply:

(a) The term "Department" means the Department of State, its offices, bureaus, divisions, field offices, and its overseas posts.

(b) The term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

(c) The term "maintain" includes maintain, collect, use or disseminate.

(d) The term "record" means any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by the Department, including, but not limited to education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history that contains the individual's name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or photograph.

(e) The term "system of records" means a group of any records under the control of the Department from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to an individual.

(f) The term "statistical record" means a record in a system of records maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only and not used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual, except as provided in 13 U.S.C. 8.

(g) The term "routine use" means, with respect to the disclosure of a record, the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected.

(h) The term "amend" means to make any correction to any portion of the record which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete.

(i) The term "personnel record" means any personal information maintained in a system of records as defined in paragraph (e) of this section that is needed for personnel management programs or processes such as staffing, employee development, retirement, grievances, and appeals.
Rules and procedures promulgated by the Office of Personnel Management under the Privacy Act for personal records for which it has responsibility will be followed by the Department with regard to such records except when inconsistent with provisions of the Foreign Service Act.

§ 171.31 Identifying information.

All requests for access to a record or records must reasonably describe the system of records and the individual's record within the system in sufficient detail to permit identification of the requested record(s). System names, descriptions, and the identifying information required for each system are published in the Department's public notice of systems of records appearing in the Federal Register. As a minimum, requests should include the individual's full name (maiden name, if appropriate), present mailing address (including zip code), date and place of birth, and other information helpful in identifying the record. Helpful data includes circumstances which give the individual reason to believe that the Department of State maintains records under her/his name, as well as the approximate time period of the records. This information will facilitate the timely search of record systems and assist the Department in locating those records which actually pertain to the individual requester. In certain instances, it may be necessary for the Department to request additional information from the requester, either to ensure a full search or to ensure that a record retrieved does in fact pertain to the individual.

§ 171.32 Exemptions.

Portions of systems of records maintained by the Department are authorized to be exempted from a limited number of provisions of the Privacy Act. In utilizing these exemptions, however, the Department contemplates exempting only those portions of systems necessary for the proper functioning of the Department and which are consistent with the Privacy Act and these regulations. The following exemptions are authorized under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k):

(a) Records specifically authorized under criteria established by an Executive Order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy and in fact, properly classified pursuant to such Executive Order (k)(1);

(b) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, other than material within the scope of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2): Provided, however, that if any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit for which she or he would otherwise be eligible as a result of the maintenance of such material, such material shall be provided to such individual, except to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of the regulations, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence (k)(2);

(c) Records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056 and 22 U.S.C. 2666 (k)(3);

(d) Records required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records (k)(4);

(e) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, nominations or referrals to international organizations, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of these regulations, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence (k)(5);

(f) Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualification for appointment or promotion to the Federal service which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examinations process if disclosed (k)(6); or

(g) Evaluation material used to determine potential of an individual for promotion in the armed services, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of these regulations, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence (k)(7); or

(h) Records originated by another agency when that agency has determined that the record is exempt under 5 U.S.C. 52a (j). Also, pursuant to Section (j)(2) of the Act, records compiled by the Special Assignment Staff, the Command Center, and the Passport and Visa Fraud Branch of the Office of Security may be exempted from the requirements of any part of the Act except subsections (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i) to the extent necessary to assure the effective completion of the investigative and judicial processes.

(i) Portions of the following systems of records are exempted under 5 U.S.C 552a(j) to the extent authorized and determined by the agency originating the records. The names of the systems correspond to those published in the Federal Register by the Department.

System Name: STATE DEPT.
Consular Service and Assistance Records. STATE–5.
Coordinator for Combatting Terrorism Records. STATE–6.
External Research Records. STATE–10.
Extradition Records. STATE–11.
Intelligence and Research Records. STATE–15.
International Organizations Records. STATE–17.
Law of the Sea Records. STATE–19.
Overseas Records. STATE–25.

Munitions Control Records. STATE–42.

(j) Portions of the following systems of records are exempted from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (3) and (4), (G), (H), and (I), and (f). The names of the systems correspond to those published in the Federal Register by the Department.

(1) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). The reason for invoking the exemption is to protect the material required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense and foreign policy.

Board of Appellate Review Records. STATE–2.
Consular Service and Assistance Records. STATE–5.
Coordinator for Combatting Terrorism Records. STATE–6.
External Research Records. STATE–10.
Extradition Records. STATE–11.
Foreign Assistance Inspection Records. STATE–48.
Intelligence and Research Records. STATE–15.

Visa Records. STATE–39.
Berlin Document Center. STATE–41.
Munitions Control Records. STATE–42.

(2) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(k)(2). The reasons for invoking the exemptions are to prevent individuals the subject of investigation from frustrating the investigatory process, to insure the integrity of law enforcement activities, to prevent disclosure of investigative techniques, to maintain the confidence of foreign governments in the integrity of the procedures under which privileged or confidential information may be provided; and to protect the confidentiality of sources of information.

Board of Appellae Review Records. STATE–2.
Consular Service and Assistance Records. STATE–5.
Coordinator for Combatting Terrorism Records. STATE–6.
Extradition Records. STATE–11.
Foreign Assistance Inspection Records. STATE–48.
Intelligence and Research Records. STATE–15.

Security Records. STATE–39.
Visa Records. STATE–39.
Munitions Control Records. STATE–42.

(3) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(k)(3). The reason for invoking this exemption is to preclude impairment of the Department's effective performance in carrying out its lawful protective responsibilities under 18 U.S.C. 3056 and 22 U.S.C. 1666.

Consular Service and Assistance Records. STATE–5.
Extradition Records. STATE–11.
Intelligence and Research Records. STATE–15.
Overseas Records. STATE–25.
Passport Records. STATE–26.
Personality Cross Reference Index to the Secretariat Automated Data Index. STATE–28.
Personality Index to the Central Foreign Policy Records. STATE–29.
Security Records. STATE–36.
Visa Records. STATE–39.

(4) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(4). The reason for invoking this exemption is to avoid needless consideration of records which are used solely for statistical purposes and from which no individual determinations are made.

Foreign Service Institute Records. STATE–14.
Personnel Payroll Records. STATE–30.
Personnel Records. STATE–31.

(5) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). The reasons for invoking this exemption are to insure the proper functioning of the investigatory process, to insure effective determination of stability, eligibility and qualification for employment and to protect the confidentiality of sources of information.

Board of the Foreign Service Records. STATE–3.
Equal Employment Opportunity Records. STATE–9.
Foreign Assistance Inspection Records. STATE–48.
Foreign Service Grievance Board Records. STATE–13.
Legal Adviser Personnel Records. STATE–20.
Overseas Records. STATE–25.
Personality Cross Reference Index to the Secretariat Automated Data Index. STATE–28.
Personnel Records. STATE–31.
Security Records. STATE–36.
Senior Personnel Appointment Records. STATE–47.

(6) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552(k)(6). The reasons for invoking this exemption are to prevent the compromise of testing or evaluation material used solely to determine individual qualifications for employment or promotion, and to avoid giving unfair advantage to individuals by virtue of their having access to such material.

Foreign Service Institute Records. STATE–14.
Personnel Records. STATE–31.

(7) Exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(7). The reason for invoking this exemption is to prevent access to such material maintained from time to time by the Department in connection with various military personnel exchange programs.

Overseas Records. STATE–25.
Personality Cross Reference Index to the Secretariat Automated Data Index. STATE–28.
Personality Index to the Central Foreign Policy Records. STATE–29.
Personnel Records. STATE–31.

(k) Portions of certain documents in the following systems of records are exempted pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) from subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d); (e)(4), (G), (H), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

Privacy Act Requests Records. STATE–40.

[45 FR 58108, Sep. 2, 1980; 45 FR 62426, Sep. 19, 1980]

§ 171.33 Time limits.

Whenever possible, the Department will acknowledge the request within 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) of receipt of the request and furnish the requester information as soon as possible thereafter.

§ 171.34 Access to records.

(a) Verification of personal identity. The Department will require reasonable identification of individuals to assure that records are disclosed only to the proper person(s).

(1) Access in person. When access to a record is granted in person, the Department will require a verification of identity by the individual; employee identification card, driver's license, medicare card, annuitant identification, or passport are examples of acceptable identification.

(2) Access by mail. For individuals who seek access by mail, the Department will require verification of identity; comparison of signature of the requester and those in the record, if any, will be used to determine identity.

(3) Statement verifying identity. If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification or a signature is not on record, the Department will require a signed statement from the individual asserting her or his identity and stipulating that the individual understands that knowingly or willingly seeking or obtaining access to records about another individual under false pretenses is punishable by a fine of up to $5,000.

(b) Sensitive records. In certain cases where the Department determines that the requested record is of sufficient sensitivity, it may require the individual to furnish a signed notarized statement verifying the requester's identity. The Department will inform the individual at the time the record is retrieved whether or not such a statement is necessary.

(c) Accompanying individual. If, when exercising physical access to a record, the requester is accompanied by any other person, the Department will require the requester to sign a statement authorizing disclosure of the contents of record in the presence of the accompanying individual.

(d) Authorized representatives or designees. When an individual wishes to authorize another person or persons access to her or his records other than as provided in paragraph (e) of this section, the individual shall submit a signed, notarized statement authorizing and consenting to access by a designated person or persons.

(e) Guardians. The parent(s) of any minor, or the legal guardian of an individual who has been declared to be incompetent due to physical or mental incapacity or age by a court of competent jurisdiction, may act for and on behalf of said individual upon presentation of appropriate documentation of such relationship.

(f) Medical records. If, in the judgment of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Medical Services or her/his designee, the release of medical information directly to the requester could have an adverse effect on the requester, the aforementioned officer will attempt to arrange an acceptable alternative in granting access to such record(s). This will normally involve the release of such information to a doctor named by the requester.

(g) Records relating to civil actions or proceedings. The requirements of this section do not entitle an individual to the right of access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

§ 171.35 Requests for amending records.

(a) An individual has the right to request that the Department amend a record pertaining to her or him which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. At the time the Department grants access to a record it will also furnish guidelines for requesting amendments to the record. These guidelines will also be available in the public reading room in the Department of State, Washington, D.C. between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, except for legal public holidays, or may be obtained by writing the Information and Privacy Coordinator, Foreign Affairs Information Management Center, Department of State, Room 1239, Washington, D.C. 20520.

(b) Requests for amending records must be in writing and mailed or delivered to the Information and Privacy Coordinator, Foreign Affairs Information Management Center, Department of State, Room 1239, Washington, D.C. 20520, who will coordinate the review of the request to amend a record with the appropriate office(s). The Department will require verification of personal identity as provided § 154.5(c)(3) of these regulations before it will initiate action to amend a record to ensure that the requester is not deliberately or inadvertently seeking to change records about other persons. Such requests should contain, as a minimum, identifying information needed to locate the record, a brief description of the items of information to be amended, and the nature of the requested amendment. The requester should submit as much documentation, arguments or other data as seems warranted to support her/his request for amendment.

(c) All requests for amendments to records will be acknowledged within 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays). Whenever possible all requests for amendments to records will be reviewed within 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) of their receipt by the Office responsible for the record, and the requester will be advised of the results of the review. In those cases where the review cannot be completed within 10 days, the requester will be so advised and informed when the review will be completed. Except in unusual circumstances, this review will be completed no later than 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after receipt of the request to amend a record.

(d) In reviewing a record in response to a request to amend, the Department shall determine whether the record is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency and shall incorporate the criteria of accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness of the record in that review.

(e) If the office responsible for the record agrees with an individual's request to amend a record, it shall:

(1) Advise the individual in writing;

(2) Amend the record accordingly; and

(3) If an accounting of disclosure has been made, advise all previous recipients of the record of the amendment and its substance.

(f) If the office responsible for the record, after an initial review of a request to amend a record disagrees with all or any portion of the requested amendment, an officer at the Deputy Assistant Secretary level or equivalent, shall:

(1) Advise the individual of its refusal and the reasons for it; and

(2) Inform the individual that she or he may request a further review in accordance with Subpart G.

* * * * *

Subpart F—Denial Procedures

§ 171.50 Denials of access or of amendment.

The decision to deny an individual access to records, or to deny an amendment request under Privacy Act provisions shall be made by: (a) The Department official of a rank not below the Deputy Assistant Secretary or equivalent level who is responsible for the system of records involved, (b) the Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Classification/Declassification Center, or her/his designees, (c) the Director/Deputy Director of Mandatory Review and the Director of Systematic Review in A/CDC, and (d) officials designated by the Under Secretary for Management/Chairman of the Oversight Committee for E.O. 12065. When an authorized official denies access to a record or portion thereof, the official will advise the individual in writing of the denial and the specific reasons therefor. The denial letter will also advise the individual of her/his right to seek administrative review of the Department's decision.

Subpart G—Appeals Procedures

§ 171.60 Appeal of denial of access to records.

(a) Review of an initial denial of access to a record under the Freedom of Information Act (5 USC 552), the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 USC 552a), or Executive Order 12065 may be requested by the individual who submitted the initial request for access. The request for review (hereinafter referred to as the appeal) must be in writing and should be sent by certified mail to the Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs, Chairman, Appeals Review Panels, Department of State, 2201 C Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20520. The appeal should be received within 60 days of the date of receipt by the appellant of the Department's refusal to grant access to a record in whole or in part.

(b) The time for decision on the appeal begins on the date the appeal is received by the Chairman, Appeals Review Panels. The appeal of a denial of access to records shall include any documentation, information and statements to support the individual's request for access and to refute the use of the exemption(s) cited in the Department's justification concerning the denial of access.

(c) The Chairman of the Appeals Panels or her/his designee and at least two other members chosen by her/him from a list of senior officers designated for this purpose by the various bureaus of the Department shall constitute a panel to consider and decide the appeal. There shall be a written record of the reasons for the final determination. The final determination will be made within 30 working days for Executive Order and Privacy Act appeals, and within 20 working days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays) for FOIA appeals. For good cause shown, the Chairman of the Appeals Review Panels may extend such determination beyond the 30-day period in Privacy Act cases.

(d) The Chairman shall then notify the requester in writing of the panel's decision to grant access and of the Department's regulations concerning access.

(e) When the final decision of the Panel is to refuse to grant an individual access to a record, the Chairman of the Panel shall advise the individual in writing:

(1) Of the refusal to grant the appeal and the reasons therefor including the exemptions of the Freedom of Information Act, the Privacy Act of 1974, and/or Executive Order 12065 under which access is denied;

(2) Of her/his right to seek judicial review of the Department's decision, where applicable.

§ 171.61 Appeal of refusal to amend records.

(a) Review of an initial refusal to amend a record under the Privacy Act of 1974 may be requested by the individual who submitted the initial request for amendment. The review (hereinafter referred to as the appeal) should be requested in writing within 60 days of the date the individual is informed of the Department's refusal to amend a record in whole or in part. The appeal must be in writing and should be sent by certified mail to the Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs, Chairman, Appeals Review Panels, Department of State, 2201 C Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20520.

(b) The time for decision on the appeal begins on the date the appeal is received by the Chairman, Appeals Review Panels. The appeal should include any documentation, information or statements advanced for the amendment of the record.

(c) The Chairman of the Appeals Review Panels and two other members of the Panels designated by him shall constitute a panel to consider and decide the appeal; there shall be a written record of the reasons for the final determination. The final determination will be made within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays), unless for good cause shown, the Chairman of the Appeals Review Panels extends such determination beyond the 30-day period.

(d) When the final determination is that the record should be amended in accordance with the individual's request, the Chairman of the Appeals Review Panels shall direct the office responsible for the record to comply. A responsible official of the Department shall then:

(1) Amend the records as directed;

(2) If any accounting of the disclosure has been made, advise all previous recipients of the record of the amendment and its substance;

(3) So advise the individual in writing.

(e) When the final decision is that the request of the individual to amend the record is refused, the Chairman of the Panels shall advise the individual:

(1) Of the refusal and the reasons for it;

(2) Of her and his right to file a concise statement of the reasons for disagreeing with the decision of the Department;

(3) Of the procedures for filing the statement of disagreement;

(4) That the statement which is filed will be made available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed together with, at the discretion of the Department, a brief statement by the Department summarizing its reasons for refusing to amend the record;

(5) That prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided a copy of any statement of dispute to the extent that an accounting of disclosures was maintained; and

(6) Of her/his right to seek judicial review of the Department's refusal to amend the record.

(f) When the final determination is to refuse to amend a record and the individual has filed a statement under paragraph (e) of this section, the Department will clearly annotate the record so that the fact that the record is disputed is apparent to anyone who may subsequently have access to, use, or disclose it. When information that is the subject of a statement of dispute filed by an individual is subsequently disclosed, the Department will note that the information is disputed and provide a copy of the individual's statement. The Department may also include a brief summary of the reasons for not making a correction when disclosing disputed information. Such statements will normally be limited to the reasons given to the individual for not amending the record. Copies of the Department's statement shall be treated as part of the individual's record for granting access; however, it will not be subject to amendment by the individual under these regulations.

Subpart H—Other Agency Material

§ 171.70 Referral.

While processing a request for access, the Department may locate in its files documents originated by other Federal agencies. The Department shall refer the documents to the originating agency for review and possible declassification and release to the requester. The originating agency is then responsible for contacting the requester directly concerning the release of the material and for notifying the Department of its determination. The Department of State will notify the requester of the referral unless the association of the reviewing agency with the information requires protection in the interest of national security.

§ 171.71 Concurrence.

While processing a request for access, the Department may locate Department of State documents containing information originated by or of substantive interest to other Federal agencies. The Department shall refer these documents or portions thereof to the originating or interested agency for review, possible declassification and concurrence regarding the documents' release. The other agency will then return the documents to the Department so that it may contact the requester regarding the material.

NOTICE OF SYSTEMS OF RECORDS

The identification of the operating unit or units within the Department to which the particular system of records pertains appears as

'DOT/' followed by a designating abbreviation. The abbreviations and their meanings are as follows:

OST - Office of the Secretary of Transportation
CG - United States Coast Guard
FAA - Federal Aviation Administration
FHWA - Federal Highway Administration
FRA - Federal Railroad Administration
MARAD – Maritime Administration
NHTSA - National Highway Traffic Safety Administration
RSPA - Research and Special Programs Administration
SLS - Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation
TSC - Transportation Systems Center
UMTA - Urban Mass Transportation Administration

PREFATORY STATEMENT OF GENERAL ROUTINE USES

The following routine uses apply to, except where otherwise noted or where obviously not appropriate, each system of records set forth below.

1. In the event that a system of records maintained by the Department to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigation or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

2. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses if necessary to obtain information relevant to a Department decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

3. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, to a federal agency, in employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

4. A record from this system of records may be disclosed, as a routine use, in the course of presenting evidence to a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal, including disclosures to opposing counsel in the course of settlement negotiations.

5. The information contained in this system of records will be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular No. A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

6. Disclosure may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual. In such cases, however, the Congressional office does not have greater right to records than the individual. Thus, the disclosure may be withheld from delivery to the individual where the file contains investigative or factual information or to other materials which are being used, or are expected to be used, to support prosecution or fines against the individual for violations of a statute, or of regulations of the Department based on statutory authority. No such limitations apply to records requested for Congressional oversight or legislative purposes; release is authorized under 49 CFR 10.35(a)(9).

7. One or more records from a system of records may be disclosed routinely to NARS (GSA) in records management inspections being conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

8. Access to Systems of Records of the Department is authorized to member(s) of the Office of Inspector General where the records are considered '...pertinent to the DOT programs or operations being reviewed. Existing orders or (internal) directives contrary to this provision are hereby superseded.' The Secretary of Transportation by the foregoing has clarified the role of Inspector General personnel 'who have need for the record(s) in the performance of their duties.'

9. The Department may make available to another agency or instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction, including State and local governments, listings of names from any System of Records in the Department for use in law enforcement activities, either civil or criminal, or to expose fraudulent claims, regardless of the stated purpose for the collection of the information in the System of Records. These enforcement activities are generally referred to as 'matching' programs because two lists of names are checked for match using automated assistance.

This routine use is advisory in nature and does not offer unrestricted access to Systems of Records for such law enforcement and related antifraud activities. Each request will be considered on the basis of its purpose, merits, cost effectiveness and alternatives using 'Revised Supplemental Guidance for Conducting Matching Programs' published by the Director, Office of Management and Budget, dated May 11, 1982.

System name:

System Name: DOT Grievance Records Files.

System location:

System Location: Records are maintained in the personnel office which services the aggrieved employee if the grievance was processed under DOT 3770.2, Agency Administrative Grievance System, pursuant to 5 CFR Part 771. If processed under a negotiated grievance procedure from an approved labor agreement on behalf of a member, of a group of members, of a recognized collective bargaining unit, or if processed by the union, the grievance record shall be maintained in the office of the official administering the labor agreement pertainig to the collective bargaining unit.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Categories of Individuals: Current and former DOT employees who have submitted grievances with their respective administrations under DOT Order 3770.2, of grievances pertaining to members of DOT Collective Bargaining Units which were submitted in accordance with negotiated grievance procedures.

Categories of records in the system:

Categories of Records: The system contains records relating to grievances filed by or on behalf of DOT employees within the Department of Transportation. Grievance case files contain relevant documents used in the processing of grievances under systems applicable to DOT employees, including statements of employees, witnesses, reports of interviews and hearings, factfinders and/or arbitrator's findings and recommendations, copies of decisions and correspondence and exhibits. Grievances in DOT may be submitted and processed through individually negotiated grievance systems contained in various labor agreements applicable to different collective bargaining units throughout the agency, or as prescription in DOT 3770.2, which is the Agency Administrative Grievance System applicable to DOT headquarters employees and all employees of DOT operating administrations, except where operating administrations have promulgated their own grievance systems.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Routine Uses: These records and information in these records may be used:

To disclose pertinent information to the appropriate Federal, State, or local agency responsible for investigating, prosecuting, enforcing, or implementing a statute, rule, regulation, or order, where the disclosing agency becomes aware of an indication of a violation or potential violation of civil or criminal law or regulation.

To disclose information to any source from which additional information is requested in the course of processing a grievance to the extent necessary to identify the purpose(s) of the request and identify the type of information requested.

To disclose information to a Federal agency in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the conducting of a security clearance, the conducting of a security or suitability investigation of an individual, the classifying of jobs, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefits by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to requesting the agency's decision on the matter.

To provide information to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from that congressional office made at the request of that individual.

To disclose information to another Federal agency or to a court when the Government is party to a judicial proceeding before the court.

By the National Archives and Records Administration (General Services Administration) in records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 USC 2904 and 2906.

By the agency maintaining the records or the Office of Personnel Administration (OPM), in the production of summary descriptive statistics and analytical studies in support of the function for which the records are collected and maintained, or for related work force studies. While published statistics and studies do not contain individual identifiers, in some instances the selection of elements of data included in the study may be structured in such a way as to make the data individually identifiable by officials.

To disclose information to officials of the Merit Systems Protection Board, including the Office of the Special Counsel, the Federal Labor Relations Authority and its General Counsel, or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission when requested in performance of their authorized duties.

To disclose in response to a request for discovery or for appearance of a witness, information that is relevant to the subject matter involved in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding.

To provide information to officials of labor organizations recognized under the Civil Service Reform Act when relevant and necessary to their duties of exclusive representation concerning personnel policies, practices, and matters affecting work conditions.

Current and former DOT employees who have been counseled or otherwise treated regarding alcohol or drug abuse or for personal or emotional health problems.

Categories of records in the system:

Records in this system include documentation of visits to employee counselors (Federal, state, local government, or private) and the diagnosis, recommended treatment, results of treatment, and other notes or records of discussions held with the employee made by the counselor. Additionally, records in this system may include documentation of treatment by a private therapist or a therapist at a Federal, state, local government, or private institution.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 3301 and 7901, 21 U.S.C. 1101, 42 U.S.C. 4541 and 4561, and 44 U.S.C. 3101.

Purpose(s):

These records are used to document the nature of the individual's problem and progress made and to record an individual's participation in and the results of community or private sector treatment or rehabilitation programs.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

a. To disclose information to qualified personnel for the purpose of conducting scientific research, management audits, financial audits, or program evaluation, but such personnel may not identify, directly or indirectly, any individual patient in any report or otherwise disclose patient identities in any manner (when such records are provided to qualified researchers employed by DOT, all patient identifying information shall be removed).

b. To disclose information, when an individual to whom a record pertains is mentally incompetent or under legal disability, to any person who is responsible for the care of the individual.

c. To disclose information to the Department of Justice that is relevant and necessary to evaluate and defend claims against the United States that are based upon participation in alcohol, drug, or other treatments or rehabilitation programs conducted by DOT.

DOT's general routine uses (49 FR 15345) do not apply to this system or records. These are the only routine uses provided for DOT's Employee Counseling Services Program records. Furthermore, in many instances a full disclosure of the contents of the record is not required. Whenever possible, a partial disclosure will be made or a summary of the contents of the record will be disclosed. Full disclosure of the record will be made only when a partial disclosure or a summary will not suffice.

System name:

Military Pay and Personnel System.

System location:

Department of Transportation (DOT),

a. U.S. Coast Guard (CG), Department of Transportation Computer Center, 400 7th Street SW, Washington, DC 20590.

b. U.S. Coast Guard Pay and Personnel Center, 444 SE Quincy Street, Topeka, KS 66683.

c. U.S. Coast Guard, 2100 2nd Street SW, Washington, DC 20593.

d. Decentralized data segments are located at the unit maintaining the individual's pay and personnel record.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

a. All Coast Guard military personnel, active duty and reserve.

b. Retired reserve Coast Guard military personnel waiting for pay at age 60.

c. Active Duty National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) Officers.

d. Personnel separated from service in all the preceding categories.

Categories of records in the system:

All categories of records may include identifying information, such as name(s), date of birth, home residence, mailing address, social security number, payroll information, and home telephone.

Records reflect:

a. Work experience, education level achieved, and specialized education or training obtained in and outside of military service,

b. Military duty assignments, ranks held, pay and allowance, personnel actions such as promotions, demotions, or separations,

c. Enrollment or declination of enrollment in insurance programs,

d. Performance evaluation,

e. The individual's desire for future assignments, training requested, and notation by assignment officers,

f. Information for determinations of waivers and remissions of indebtedness to the U.S. Government, and

g. Information for the purpose of validating legal requirements for garnishment of wages.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

a. To the Department of Treasury for the purpose of disbursement of salary, U.S. Savings Bonds, and allotments,

b. To government agencies to disclose earnings and tax information,

c. To the Department of Defense and Veterans Administration for determinations of benefit eligibility for military members and their dependents,

d. To contractors to manage payment and collection of benefit claims,

e. To the Department of Defense for manpower and readiness planning,

m. To credit agencies and financial institutions for the purpose of processing credit arrangements authorized by the individual concerned,

n. To other government agencies for the purpose of earning garnishment,

o. To prepare the Officer Register and Reserve Officer Register which is provided to all Coast Guard officers and the Department of Defense,

p. To other federal agencies and collections agencies for the collection of indebtedness to the Federal Government.

See Prefatory Statement of General Routine Uses.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

The storage is on computer disks, magnetic tape, microfilm, and paper forms in file folders.

Retrievability:

Retrieval from the system is by name or social security number and can be accessed by employees in pay and personnel offices and other pay and personnel employees located elsewhere who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties.

Safeguards:

Computers provide privacy and access limitation by requring a user name and password match. Access to decentralized segments are similarly controlled. Only those personnel with a need to have access to the system are given user names and passwords. The magnetic tape backups have limited access in that users must justify the need and obtain tape numbers and volume identifers from a central source before they are provided data tapes. Paper record and microfilm records are in limited access areas in locking storage cabinets.

Retention and disposal:

Leave and Earnings Statements, pay records, are microfilmed and retained on site four years, then archived at the Federal Records Center, and destroyed when 50 years old. The official copy of the personnel record is maintained in the Official Service Records, DOT/CG 626 for active duty officers, the Enlisted Personnel Record System, DOT/CG 629 for active duty enlisted personnel or the Official Coast Guard Reserve Service Record, OST/CG 576 for inactive duty reservists. Duplicate magnetic copies of the pay and personnel record are retained at an off site facility for a useful life of seven years. Paper records for waivers and remissions are retained on site six years three months after the determination and then destroyed. Paper records to determine legal sufficiency for garnishment are retained on site six years three months after the member separates from the service or the garnishment is terminated and then destroyed.

System manager(s) and address:

a. All information on Coast Guard members and other than b., c., and d. below:

(1) For active duty members of the Coast Guard:

Chief, Office of Personnel, Department of Transportation, U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters, 2100 2nd Street, SW, Washington, DC 20593

(2) For Coast Guard inactive duty reserve members and retired Coast Guard reservists awaiting pay at age 60:

Chief, Office of Readiness and Reserve, Department of Transportation, U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters, 2100 2nd Street, SW, Washington, DC 20593.

b. For Coast Guard Waivers and Remissions:

Chief, Personnel Services Division (G-PS), Office of Personnel, U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters, 2100 2nd Street, SW, Washington, DC 20593.

c. For records used to determine legal sufficiency for garnishment of wages and pay records:

Commanding Officer (LGL), U.S. Coast Guard Pay and Personnel Center, 444 SE Quincy Street, Topeka, KS 66683.

d. For data added to the decentralized data segment the commanding officer, officer-in-charge of the unit handling the individual's pay and personnel record, or Chief, Administrative Services Division, for individuals whose records are handled by Coast Guard Headquarters.

e. For NOAA members:

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Commissioned Personnel Division, 11400 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852.

Notification procedure:

Inquiries should be directed to:

a. For all information on Coast Guard members other than b., c., and d. below:

Department of Transportation, U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters (G-TIS), 2100 2nd Street, SW, Washington, DC 20593.

b. For records used to determine legal sufficiency for garnishment of wages and pay records.

Commanding Officer, U.S. Coast Guard Pay and Personnel Center, 444 SE Quincy Street, Topeka, KS 66683.

c. For data added to the decentralized data segment the commanding officer, officer-in-charge of the unit handling the individual's pay and personnel record, or Chief, Administrative Services Division, for individuals whose records are handled by Coast Guard Headquarters. Addresses for the units handling the individual's pay and personnel record are available from the individual's commanding officer.

d. For all information on NOAA members:

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Commissioned Personnel Division, 11400 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852.

Record access procedures:

Contact the addressee under notification procedures and specify the exact information you desire. Requests must include the full name and social security number of the individual concerned. Prior written notification of personal visits is required to insure that the records will be available at the time of visit. Photographic proof of identity will be required prior to release of records. A military identification card, driver's license or similar document will be considered suitable indentification.

Contesting record procedures:

Contact the addressee under notification procedures and specify the exact information or items you are contesting and provide any documentation that justifies your claim. Correspondence contesting records must include the full name and social security number of the individual concerned.

Record source categories:

a. The individual's record from the following systems of records:
(1) Official Officer Service Records, DOT/CG 626.
(2) Enlisted Personnel Record System, DOT/CG 629.
(3) Official Coast Guard Reserve Service Record, OST/CG 676.
b. Information is obtained from the individual, Coast Guard personnel officials, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration personnel officials, and the Department of Defense.

DOT/CG 624

System name:

System Name: Personnel Management Information System (PMIS).

System location:

System Location: Commanding Officer
Pay and Personnel Center (PPC)
444 S.E. Quincy St.
Topeka, KS 66683

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Categories of Individuals: All regular Coast Guard personnel on active duty. All Reserve Coast Guard personnel on extended active duty and Reserve personnel on initial active duty for training.

Categories of records in the system:

Categories of Records: A single computer record which currently contains about 450 data elements on each member. Some data elements are used only for enlisted, others only for officers. The file contains personal information such as name, place of birth, rank, location, etc. The file also contains pay date elements which will form the basis for deriving pay entitlements for Coast Guard military personnel under the Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Routine Uses: The file is used to produce a number of reports used throughout the Coast Guard. Types of reports are:
Locator Listing for Headquarters and Districts,
Personnel Roster for the unit to assist in verifying information,
Number of personnel in pay grades for advancement levels and budget expenditures,
Current reports for this system of records are listed in the Reports Distribution Manual generated by the Coast Guard for this system,
Queires and batch processing are used to recruitment levels,
Various Coast Guard offices receive the locator listing and management reports,
Government agencies other than Coast Guard categories,
See prefatory statement of General Routine Uses, 3 through 5 do not apply.

Disclosure to consumer reporting agencies:

Disclosures pursuant to 5 USC 552a(b)(12): Disclosures may be made from this systems to 'consumer reporting agencies' (collecting on behalf of the U.S. Govt.) as defined in the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 USC 1681a(f)) or the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1982 (31 USC 3701(a)(3)).

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Policies and Practices:

Storage:

Storage: The storage is on computer disks with tape backups. The file is updated once a week. Once a month the file is dumped to a tape file for historical purposes.

Decentralized segments are maintained at each District Office and at Personnel Support Centers. See Appendix I for locations.

Retrievability:

Retrievability: Retrieval from the system is by use of name or Social Security Number or a combination of personal and non-personal characteristics.

Users retrieve information direct from the file through card input or direct terminal access. Data elements to be retrieved and method of use are selected by the user.

An extract file containing summary records is produced monthly for use on a 'time sharing' system. Retrieval of information from this extract is by direct terminal access only. Data elements to be retrieved and method of use are selected by the user.

Safeguards:

Safeguards: The computer provides privacy and access limitations by requiring a user name and password match. In addition each element of the file has its own level of accessability which must be held by the user. Only those staff components at Headquarters with a need to have access to the file are given user names and passwords. Access to the 'Time Share' extract is similarly controlled. The backup tapes and monthly dumps also have limited access in that users must justify the need before they are provided the tape numbers.

Retention and disposal:

Retention and Disposal: End-of-Year system backup tapes and day to day transaction tapes are retained indefinitely. Statistical and other report extract tapes are recycled into the system and consequently destroyed. Paper working files are disposed of in accordance with current record disposal instructions.
